NEW DEAL ROAD TO AUTOCRACY, SAYS J. W. DAVIS

Sees Dictatorship in Offing for U. S.

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—John W. Davis delivered a sweeping attack against the whole New Deal theory tonight as tending toward the establishment of autocracy in the United States similar to the Fascist and communist dictatorships in Germany, Italy, and Russia.

Although he did not mention President Roosevelt and his advisers by name, Mr. Davis' references to them were unmistakable in his scornful denunciations of public officials responsible for unconstitutional laws.

Mr. Davis spoke before a large gathering of lawyers and jurists in the Waldorf-Astoria at a session of the New York State Bar association, which is holding a three day annual meeting in this city.

Speech Regarded Significant.

His address was regarded as particularly significant because of his position as one of the foremost leaders of conservative Democrats who have been disaffected by the New Deal. Like former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, who is expected to attack the New Deal in a speech before the American Liberty league in Washington tomorrow night, Mr. Davis is a former Democratic candidate for the presidency. He is also a member of the American Liberty league. He has appeared in court to argue against the constitutionality of several New Deal measures.

It was expected that the Davis and Smith speeches, coming on successive nights, would give impetus to speculation as to whether they would lead conservative Democrats in a bolt from President Roosevelt in the election campaign.

TEXT OF ADDRESS

"There is a popular impression," Mr. Davis said, "that lawyers are men of strife and thrive upon contention. You and I know—to borrow an idiom from an exalted source—that nothing could be farther from the truth. We are preëminently friends and lovers of peace, even when we have to fight for it. While we worship liberty, we also admire order and rely upon the power of established rules and principles to maintain and preserve them both. From this serene and detached height we look down on the dissensions of mankind, intervening now and then only to compose their differences.

"It is startling to men so tranquilly disposed to find that the battle has suddenly surged in their direction and that, instead of being mere onlookers, they are not only surrounded by the fray but are in the very thick of it.

"Yet this has happened. Weapons are waving around us; hoarse cries are resounding; neo-barbarians are pressing in on every side. In such a posture of affairs nothing is left for us peace-loving lawyers but to seek safety in flight or join in the encounter, giving and taking blows in our turn. Craven or combatant—there is no other choice. This is where we find ourselves.

A Crisis for the Bar.

"If my figure of speech needs interpretation, it may be taken to signify a deep conviction that the contentious problems of this day and hour make a greater demand upon the wisdom, self-sacrifice and courage of the American bar than any others that have arisen in the life of any man here present. No more compelling call has come to any generation of American lawyers.

"The problems to which I refer have to do with the scope and definition of those powers which any government may rightfully exercise over its citizens and, so far as America is concerned, with the distribution or redistribution of those powers among the departments of our government and between the states and nation under our federal system. These are not questions for lawyers alone, but they lie within our accustomed field. On such matters we are presumed to be competent to form and express an opinion; and if the bar fails now to give to the country the guidance it is equipped to furnish, it will justly forfeit its chief claim to public respect and confidence.

"Perhaps we are to blame for not

DUCE WARNS 52 NATIONS 'STEEL RING' STIRS WAR

Attacks Alliance Aimed at Italy.

Invaders Turn Back

Italy's southern army retires after advancing almost 200 miles northward across uninhabited Ethiopian desert and capturing the deserted village of Neghelli, capital of Galla Borana. Italian flying columns now reported to be only 30 miles from starting point at Dolo on frontier of Italian Somaliland as Gen. Rodolfo Graziani, Fascist commander, seeks a safer position. Details on page 7.

ROME, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Benito Mussolini served sharp and direct warning on his 52 sanctionist adversaries today against ringing Italy with steel.

Calling the British-initiated Mediterranean security arrangements a "danger to European peace," Il Duce reaffirmed his country's contention that sanctionist nations must take individual responsibility for their actions.

He sent Italy's "most formal reservation and protest" against the British memorandum on a five-power Mediterranean mutual assistance accord direct to the half-hundred sanctionist nations, ignoring the league of nations' sanctions committee of eighteen.

Duce Attacks Accord.

Great Britain, France, and the other nations, Mussolini charged, have improperly based their negotiations for Mediterranean security on an "arbitrary and non-existent hypothesis" of Italian attack. The arrangements, Italy contended, were conducted outside the league covenant.

Britain's memorandum, published by the league Wednesday, disclosed Britain, France, Greece, Turkey and Jugo-Slavia had agreed to pool their military, naval and aerial forces in the event of an unprovoked Italian assault. Other members of the little entente—Rumania and Czechoslovakia—approved Jugo-Slavia's adherence.

Informed Rome observers said the danger to Europe of a mutual assistance agreement such as was announced at Geneva was "alive and real." Such arrangements, these persons said, breed extreme "nervousness."

Challenge to Britain.

They saw, too, in portions of Italy's memorandum a challenge to Great Britain and the other nations to disclose the extent of military preparations included in the agreement.

Fascists contended the whole Mediterranean dispute began with Britain's dispatch to those waters of her home fleet, even before the question of an oil embargo against the Fascist kingdom arose to cause strain.

The term "Mediterranean security" was used loosely, they added, since the agreement left out Spain and other Mediterranean nations, while effectually taking in such countries as Czechoslovakia and Rumania.

Smashing Victories Claimed.

While Mussolini was reaffirming that Italy does not intend to let her "colonial action" in Ethiopia become "a menace to European peace," his high African commanders claimed smashing successes on both northern and southern fronts.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio, reporting on a 3 day battle in the Tembien mountain region with the forces of Ras Kassa, wirelessed that the engagement on the northern front had wound up in "complete Italian victory" late last night.

Italian press dispatches from Asmara, Eritrea, said 8,000 Ethiopians had been killed and 4,000 taken prisoner in the battle. Previous dispatches had described the Ethiopian losses as "several thousand."

[Addis Ababa provided its own "particulars," Ethiopian authorities claiming the Tembien battle, fought near Makale, had cost 1,700 Italian lives and that 800 Italian soldiers, many of them of Austrian extraction, had surrendered to Kassa's men.]

Capture Rebel Chieftain.

ADDIS ABABA, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Reports current here today said Emperor Haile Selassie's troops have captured Ras Gasasa, leader of rebellious elements in Gojjam province. The capture was said to have been made in the Lake Tsana region.

SKETCHES OF THE NEWS

Bellefontaine, O., Jan. 24.—(AP)—John Mills, whose notes through cupped hands led the Mills brothers from street singing in a small Ohio town to fame on radio and screen, died today at the age of 25.

The eldest of the colored quartet, he had been ill with a lung ailment he contracted last April during a London stage and radio engagement.

Four years ago he and his brothers sang as unknown troubadours on the streets and in the barber shops of Piqua, O. They lived in an abandoned gashouse on the town's outskirts.

Instructed by Mother.

John died in the new Bellefontaine home his savings had supplied for his mother, who instructed all the boys in music as children. The mother, Ethel Mills Jackson, said the other boys were in Philadelphia with their father, John Sr., who took John's place as leader and basso of the quartet when he became ill.

Mrs. Jackson said she taught her children, John, Harry, Herbert, and Donald, "regular" music she herself learned under private instruction in Knoxville, Tenn., but that they "picked up" the wild, minor key harmonies which shot them to sudden acclaim.

The brothers subsisted precariously until their curbstone caroling attracted the attention of Mrs. A. G. Snyder of Piqua.

Works Without Charge.

She obtained for them numerous engagements at homes and private parties and finally interested Harold Greenamyer, orchestra leader, now in Miami, Fla.

Greenamyer spent several months working with them without charge. Less than four years ago he obtained for them a contract with a Cincinnati radio station.

They went to New York, took whatever engagements they could find, and soon their barbaric rhythms and colored spirituals were heard on the air, through the talkies, and from the stage. Further renown came in Europe last year.

Hungry Oscar Eats Bed; Fare Too Much for Him

Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Oscar, an ostrich at the municipal zoo, died because he ate his bed. An autopsy showed today that prairie hay, put into the cage for bedding, had stuck in his craw.

SIX FLYERS DIE WHEN TWO ARMY PLANES COLLIDE

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Six army flyers were killed tonight when two bombing planes collided 1,000 feet over Luke field and plunged to the ground in flames.

The victims of one of Hawaii's worst aviation disasters comprised one officer and five enlisted men. Army authorities named them as:

Lieut. William G. Beard, San Francisco; Staf Sergeant Bernard F. Jablonowsky; Privates John B. Hartman of Chicago, Bruce Taylor, Gardner, and Parkhurst. Private Hartman is survived by his mother, residing at 7042 St. Lawrence avenue, Chicago. She is Mrs. Ida M. Smith.

Two others aboard the planes escaped the shattering crash by bailing out with parachutes. They are Air Reserve Lieutenant Charles E. Fisher of Asheville, N. C., and a private named Lanigan.

The planes collided with a roar heard virtually all over Honolulu, several miles away, and the glare of the burning ships was visible along famous Waikiki beach, which is ten miles from Luke field on Ford Island.

They fell within 100 feet of the fleet air base gasoline tanks. Navy fire fighters extinguished the flames before the tanks were ignited.

Drives His Car Into Lake Slip and Loses Life

C. J. Danek, 35 years old, 3812 South Austin boulevard, Cicero, budget representative for the Western Electric company, was drowned early today when the automobile he was driving ran off the eastern end of North Water street and sank in the waters of the lighthouse slip.

The car was seen, moving eastward at a fair rate of speed, by Frank Leach of the Sherry hotel, 1725 East 53d street, who was parked with a young woman in his car about a half block west of the slip. When the car took the plunge Leach hurried to a telephone and summoned the police and firemen.

Rear End Above Water.

They arrived at the scene to find that the car, nosing downward as it ran off the end of the street, had crashed through the ice on the slip and that its rear end, holding a pocket of air, was barely under the surface of the water.

Danek, who had crawled over the front seat to the rear, was apparently still alive. Some of the witnesses who crowded near said that they saw the head of the man move. But while firemen were striving to get to him the car slipped farther beneath the surface. After some delay ropes were placed around it and it was hauled up far enough to permit the removal of the body.

First Report Three in Car.

Leach, when he notified the police of the tragedy, said that he believed there were three or possibly four persons in the car when it passed him. He was not positive about this, however, and those who dragged the vehicle out said they did not believe any one had been with the driver. This theory was supported by the fact that the doors were found closed.

Danek's wife, Marie, said her husband had attended a Western Electric company dinner at the Medinah club, 505 North Michigan avenue, last night. It is supposed he became confused when leaving the club and drove in the wrong direction.

Scotland Yard Works on First British Gang Murder

ST. ALBANS, Hertfordshire, England, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Scotland Yard was called in to investigate tonight what police called Britain's first murder along gangster lines. The victim, an elderly unidentified man, apparently had been "taken for a ride" in an automobile and his body dumped on a roadside. Police said they are working on the theory the crime was the work of a race course gang.

Weather Man Tries It Again: Warmer Today

On the Other Hand

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 24.—Enterprising natives were using the streets as frying pans today as thermometers registered 102 degrees Fahrenheit in the shade and 120 degrees in the sun. Two deaths and many sunstroke victims were reported. The weather bureau reported no relief from the heat wave was in sight.

Chicago's weather man, perplexed for three days about a cold spell that persists in spite of his forecasts, gathered maps and data last night and ventured another prediction for today. It was:

"Slightly warmer, possibly a little snow."

Amplifying the official promise, the forecaster, J. R. Lloyd, said he expected another temperature drop to around 5 below zero early today and then an upturn. By this afternoon, he dared to say, the maximum for the day should reach 10 above zero. Then it will get colder again, Mr. Lloyd predicts, with a low mark of 10 below zero tomorrow morning.

Down It Goes Again.

At midnight last night the weather bureau thermometer at the Chicago airport registered 7 below zero. This represented some improvement over the low mark of yesterday, which was 14 below zero at 8 a. m., but the reading gave little evidence that the record breaking cold wave had come to its end.

The mercury did fight its way up to 2 degrees above zero at 2 p. m. yesterday. Thus it broke a subzero spell that had endured since 7 a. m. Wednesday morning—55 hours. The minimum on Wednesday was 17 below and on Thursday 17.1 below, making an average minimum for the three days of 18 below, the fourth coldest three day stretch in the history of the Chicago weather bureau.

The three day period just ended was the coldest since Feb. 8, 9 and 10, 1899, when the average minimum was 18.7 below zero. The record low for a three day period in the weather bureau's history was on Dec. 22, 23, and 24, 1872, when the average minimum was 20.7 below.

Cold Grips Eastern States.

The polar blasts still held sway over most of the central states yesterday, although most of the force of the "zero area" was concentrated in the eastern seaboard states. The cold had also invaded the gulf states, and near freezing temperatures were reported in northern Florida.

The town of Mundelein, regarded as the coldest spot in Lake county, had an unofficial minimum of 36 below zero early yesterday. This was also the low reading at Galena, Ill. Rhinelander, Wis., had 31 below, and Watertown, S. D., reported 26 below.

Park Rapids in northern Minnesota had the record low for the country yesterday, suffering in 40 below zero temperature. New York had a minimum of 2 degrees above zero. Pittsburgh had a reading of 10 below.

Road Travel Still Hazardous.

Highways in the Chicagoland area, which had been blocked by snowdrifts for three days, were nearly all passable yesterday. Many of the roads, however, were routed for only one way trafic and motorists were warned that highway travel is still hazardous.

Fire which wrecked a four story building at 15 to 17 South Clinton street yesterday morning caused damage estimated at $50,000. Street car service on Clinton street had to be

ROOSEVELT VETO OVERRIDDEN BY HOUSE, 324-61

Final Approval Is Declared Certain.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—With the words of a vigorous presidential veto ringing in their ears, members of the house of representatives today promptly overrode the veto and repassed the war veterans' bonus bill. The vote was 324 to 61.

The measure, providing for the immediate payment of adjusted service certificates in $50 government bonds, was sent to the senate, which will meet Monday. The upper house also is expected to override the veto by more than the two-thirds majority necessary.

Calls for Inflation.

Payment of the 2 billion 337 million dollar bonus by inflationary methods was immediately suggested in the house. Representative Josh Lee [Dem., Okla.] introduced a bill calling for cashing of the "baby bonds" with "new money" based on government reserve gold stocks.

The President took less than 48 hours to consider the bill and decide upon a veto. Similarly, the house was ready to override the veto as soon as it had been read. A movement by leaders to postpone the vote until Monday was howled down.

The veto message, less than 300 words in length, was in the President's hand, the first thus written since Theodore Roosevelt's time. According to the White House secretariat, it was written in bed by Mr. Roosevelt last night. At his press conference today the President refused to discuss whether he had considered his veto message. A few minutes later copies of the message were handed out.

Convictions Are Unchanged.

Pointing out that the bill differed in only two respects from the bill which he vetoed at the last session, the President wrote that the congress could read his former veto message for his reasons.

"My convictions are as impelling today as they were then," he declared. "Therefore I cannot change them."

In last year's message the President voiced a protest against "coercion by minorities," referring to the pressure of veterans' organizations, and predicted that passage of a bonus bill would be followed immediately by a demand for general pension legislation for all veterans.

Three Change Vote; 50 Absent.

In the voting only three Democrats changed their vote to support the presidential veto. In all other respects the vote was identical with that of last Wednesday, except that 50 were absent today, unprepared for the quickness of the vote.

Among the 61 votes to uphold the bonus veto were four cast by three Democrats and one Republican from Chicagoland. The Democrats who supported the veto were Fred Bierman of Iowa; Donald C. Dobbins, Champaign, Ill., and Michael K. Reilly, Wis. Carl E. Mapes, Michigan, was the Republican supporter.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns was notified shortly before noon that the veto message would be on its way to Capitol hill from the White House within a few minutes. When the house assembled at noon, so few members were present that a quorum call was necessary.

As bells rang in committee rooms and in the two house office buildings proclaiming the call, the representatives began hurrying in, conversing excitedly as the news of the veto message spread.

Message from President.

When the last of the 385 representatives answered to their names the White House messenger appeared in the big doorway at the rear of the chamber and advanced down the center aile.

"Mr. Speaker," he boomed, "a message from the President of the United States!"

Another official took the large brown envelope, sealed with the great seal of the President, and carried it to Speaker Byrns, who commanded the reading clerk to read the message.

The message covered two pages of foolscap. The house, for once, was silent as the clerk began:

"To the House of Representatives:

I return herewith, without my approval . . .

Bonus Opponents Applaud.

A burst of applause came from the small contingent who have repeatedly opposed the bonus. The speaker requested that the reading not be interrupted by demonstrations.

Although the clerk found difficulty in reading the President's handwriting, he stumbled through the short message. Hardly had he read the last words when cries of "Vote! Vote!" came from the members.

William B. Bankhead [Dem., Ala.] arose to suggest that consideration of the veto be postponed until Monday. The senate was not in session, he pointed out, and the bill could not be passed in both houses and made a law until the senate reconvened Monday. Moreover, there were a number of absentees, taken unaware by return of the veto at this time, Bankhead said, and they should be given an opportunity to vote.

Blanton's Mind on Votes.

Representative Tom Blanton [Dem., Tex.] opposed the leader's motion. In doing so he made an amusing slip.

"If we wait until Monday, there will be a number of American Legion votes—I mean posts—who will feel it necessary to wire us," he said. "Let's save them the expense of those telegrams."

John J. O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.], another powerful Democratic leader, supported Bankhead, but the ordinarily popular O'Connor was shouted down.

"Vote! Vote!" roared the house. "Sit down!"

PROPOSE TO PUT U.S. CONSTITUTION IN EVERY SCHOOL

A movement to place illuminated copies of the constitution of the United States in every schoolroom in the nation was broached yesterday at a luncheon for business men given at the Palmer house by James D. Cunningham, chairman of the Constitution Educational association. Mr. Cunningham is chairman of the board of trustees of Armour institute and a former president of the Illinois Manufacturers association.

The cost of the plan is to be defrayed by public spirited citizens, Mr. Cunningham said. The movement will be launched with announcement shortly before Washington's birthday of an essay contest for school children on the subject of the constitution.

Members of the advisory committee of the Constitution Educational association include L. H. Armour, Alden B. Swift, Sterling Morton, A. B. Dick, Thomas E. Wilson, James B. Forgan Jr., Milton S. Florsheim, Samuel M. Hastings, Thomas E. Donnelley, Rush C. Butler, Charles R. Walgreen, James E. Bennett, and Joseph C. Belden.

RADIO CONTROL SEEN THREAT TO PRESS FREEDOM

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Two publishers warned their colleagues today of what they said were dangers to freedom of the press incidental to use and control of radio.

E. M. Harris of the national radio committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' association charged in an address to the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' association that there was a "very definite and partisan control" of radio through the federal radio commission.

E. Arthur Sweeny of the Greensburg Tribune-Review, reporting for the Pennsylvania association's committee on editorial affairs, said the controversy over use of radio chains for political propaganda "may have a bearing on our own constitutional right, the freedom of the press."

Harris, publisher of the Richmond, Ind., Item and Palladium, said the power of fear "is applied by the party in control of the government to further its own ends" in controling radio stations. He explained station owners will not jeopardize their investment "by doing anything contrary to the wishes of the political party which controls their license."

"DEBT'S A DEBT"; $55 MAN MERELY DOES HIS DUTY

Happy to Repay Relief Despite Razz.

BY MARCIA WINN.

When Anton Rodney, 158 West Grand avenue, reported for work at his WPA snow shoveling job in Douglas park yesterday, his fellow workers greeted him with two epithets. One, uttered derisively, was "our honest man." The other was "you crazy Pole."

ANTON RODNEY. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

And the reason for this, Rodney admitted sadly as he returned home from work, is that he is planning to repay the Illinois Emergency Relief commission for the $131.18 worth of food which it gave him during two years and is planning to repay it out of the $55 a month he receives from the WPA.

Debt's a Debt, He Insists.

"Gee," the 40 year old Rodney said, his dark face flushing, "the foreman said to me—'What're you doing that for?' and I said, quickly, 'Shhhh! Don't tell those other guys.' But I guess he did, for when I came out from checking in to work, they all were laughing and making fun of me. 'That Pole,' they said, 'that Pole'."

"A debt's a debt," Rodney went on truculently, as though ashamed of his offer and determined to justify it. "Owing the relief people is just like owing for your room. I owe nearly $200 in back rent. I'm starting to pay that back, too. Am I so crazy then because I want to pay back the money for my groceries? It's not unusual. All people pay their debts."

"No," interpolated a camera man. "Not all people."

He Repays—Dollar by Dollar.

"Yes," disputed Rodney. "They all do if they can. When I was on relief a guy I know used to take me to dinner sometimes. I didn't want to go, but he said he wouldn't eat if I didn't. Last pay day I sent him a dollar and next week I'm going to send him another.

"It's the same way with the relief," he continued. "I just thought I should pay. I won't miss the few bucks I give them a month. I'm not married. I don't drink. I don't gamble. I just wish I could pay it all at once and be through with it. figure it will take a little time. Maybe two years. But that's all right."

Struggles for a Job.

Born in eastern Galicia, Rodney came to America 15 years ago. I knew no one in Chicago. He could not speak English. So he went to night school, learned English and got a job as bellboy. Until two years ago he had steady employment as bellboy, elevator operator, or shipping clerk. Then jobs got scarce and he went on the relief rolls. Two months ago he was assigned to the WPA.

"This snow shoveling—I like it," said Rodney. "I get more exercise than when I was a bellboy. It's more fun, too. I like to work until I sweat; then I sleep good at night."

And the Exercise Is Free.

"Some people," he observed gleefully, "have to go to a gymnasium for their exercise, but I get it free.

"The only thing now is the others razzing me. I used to tell them I was going to pay that money back and they laughed at me, so I stopped mentioning it. Now they've started again. But I'm going to do it. You wait and see."

PAIR CONVICTED OF MURDERING BETRAYED WIFE

Mineola, N. Y., Jan. 25 [Saturday].—[Special.]—Mrs. Mary Frances Creighton and Everett Applegate, her paramour, both of Baldwin, N. Y., were convicted early today of murder in the first degree in the death by poison of Applegate's wife, Ada, last Sept. 27. The jury deliberated four hours.

County Judge Cortland A. Johnson told the jurors, some of whom are married and have children, to take "everyday reason and common sense" into the jury room.

Judge Johnson warned the jury not to convict Applegate because the prisoner had been charged with having intimate relations with Mrs. Creighton's 16 year old daughter, Ruth. He declared that if both defendants were to be found guilty both must be connected with the administration of the poison to Mrs. Applegate. Mrs. Creighton had admitted that she had given a glass of milk containing poison to Mrs. Applegate.

She knew there was poison in the milk, she said, adding that "Applegate told me." However, she said she did not know that the dose would be fatal. Applegate, his wife, and their 13 year old daughter lived in the Creighton home.

rerouted for most of the day. A score of employés of mercantile firms in the building fled to the street. The fire started in the elevator shaft and its origin was uncertain last night.

The firemen were hampered by frozen mains and had difficulty in getting water to the blaze.

Another Fire and Blast.

Another fire in a three story building at 2336 Warren boulevard caused $5,000 damage. A defective chimney was blamed for the blaze. A boiler explosion did damage of $3,500 to an undertaking establishment at 7631 Jeffery avenue.

It was reported that more than 125 firemen suffered from frostbite while fighting blazes during the last three days.

The city health department reported 315 complaints of insufficient heating in buildings. Landlords of the buildings were warned to comply with minimum heating regulations.

Schools throughout the city reported a reduction of from 12 to 20 per cent in attendance as a result of the cold. Numerous mild cases of ear and nose frost bites were treated.

As the gales swept the Atlantic seaboard, ocean shipping was endangered. Upper New York, caught in a three day blizzard, was menaced by a milk shortage. In New York City 28,000 relief workers refused to remove snow, complaining it was too cold.

Many Deaths in Fires.

Scores of fires were reported throughout the nation's "zero" area, most of them caused by overheating. At Knoxville, Md., Arthur Swope, a widower, and his son and two daughters were burned to death by flames that destroyed their isolated frame home on a mountain. The only survivor of the tragedy was Swope's 10 year old son, Charles.

At Benton's Ferry, near Fairmont, W. Va., fire originating from an overheated stove fatally burned three members of a family. In New York two persons were burned to death and a dozen others were carried down on ladders to safety when flames swept the upper floors of a four story rooming house.

Wallace Redd Jr., 23 years old, a Randolph-Macon college graduate, was killed by a falling chimney at Beaverdam, Va., when he rushed into a burning building to rescue another man. Two women perished in a fire at Baldwin, Kas.

In New Ulm, Minn., half a business block on the main thoroughfare was destroyed by fire with an estimated loss of $200,000.

11 IN A FAMILY OF 12 KILLED AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

Survivor Is Expected to Die of Injuries.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Eleven of 12 persons, all riding in one automobile, were killed this afternoon when the car stalled in the zero weather and was struck by a fast Wabash passenger train on a crossing near Grabill, 15 miles northeast of here. The lone survivor was critically injured.

The victims all were members of one family and included a new baby prematurely born probably in the course of the accident. They were returning from a funeral when they were killed.

Dead and Injured.

The dead besides the new baby were:

MARION McBRIDE, 43, father of the family,
SUSAN McBRIDE, 40, his wife, and
MARION McBRIDE JR., 12,
CLARA, 14,
MARY, 10,
ARTHUR, 8,
VIRGINIA, 6,
ROBERT, 3,
RICHARD and RAMONA, 17 months, twins, their children.

Two of the children, Clara, a freshman in the Leo, Ind., High school, and Philip, 5, were brought to St. Joseph's hospital here, where Clara died late tonight. Attendants held little hope for Philip.

Wreckage Strewn Quarter Mile.

The car, a 10 year old sedan, was demolished. Bits of it and the mangled bodies were strewn along the railroad right of way for a quarter of a mile.

The McBride family had been living in a chicken coop on a friendly farmer's property near Leo. It was said the presence of chickens in the coop and a lack of adequate heating facilities had made their existence especially uncomfortable during the recent cold weather. McBride had a job with WPA after having been unemployed for some time.

The entire family had attended the funeral of William Connor, brother of Mrs. McBride, in Fort Wayne earlier in the day and was returning home when the accident occurred. McBride had stopped in Grabill and asked town officials to clear out a road to his home. He said the drifts were nearly waist deep and he doubted that he could get through.

Buys Candy for Babies.

McBride also stopped at a store and bought candy for all his children. Then he started up his old car and drove only a short distance until the motor went dead and the car stopped, directly on the railroad crossing.

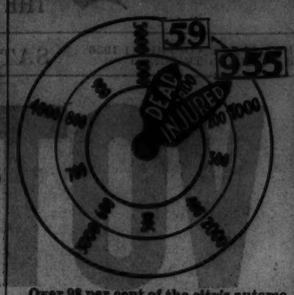
All occupants of the car were mangled. Ambulance attendants said some were dead when picked up and others died en route to hospitals.

Because of the condition of the bodies many conflicting reports went out, some that Mrs. Connor was in the car, others that she was not. It was definitly learned tonight, however, that she was safe at home.

Coroner Walter E. Kruse would make no comment tonight on a report at the wreck scene that McBride stalled the car deliberately. Engineer W. F. Rowley of Fort Wayne said the car came on the tracks just as he blew a warning whistle.

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1936 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

WARNS AUTOISTS THEY MUST OBEY BOY PATROLMEN

Motorists who ignore the trafic signals of members of the schoolboy patrols will be arrested and prosecuted, George W. Fleming, secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee, warned yesterday.

"Schoolboy patrolmen must be obeyed," Mr. Fleming said. "They make up one of the most valuable units in the plan to make Chicago's streets safe. They serve as regular trafic policemen, and as such they have the right to make complaints of violations against reckless motorists."

The warning was issued, Mr. Fleming said, because of numerous recent complaints that motorists refuse to obey the directions of special guards at busy school crossings, thus jeopardizing the lives of children.

AFRICAN, SCOTCH SUBJECTS FIGHT LOYALTY TO KING

GLASGOW, Scotland, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Thirteen leftist members of the Glasgow city corporation voted today against a resolution of sympathy and loyalty to England's new king, Edward VIII.

The resolution was passed, however, by a vote of 57 to 13, after the leader of the leftists called royalty the "basis of capitalism."

DESORT DEVISES SELF-ENFORCING ALIMONY RULE

Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday devised an automatic plan in the Superior court to guarantee that Morris Einhorn, 3914 West 15th street, be allowed to see his sons, Israel and Isaac, under the provisions of a divorce decree granted his wife a year ago. Judge Desort told Attorney Norman Becker, counsel for Einhorn, that his client need make his $10 weekly payment for the support of the boys, who live with their mother at 4124 Arthington street, only on the occasions when he is permitted to see them.

TRAIN HURLS CAR 60 FEET, JUNKS IT; DRIVER BRUISED

Although his automobile was hurled 60 feet and demolished by a North Shore electric train at the Linden avenue crossing in Wilmette yesterday, Joseph B. Swan, 24 years old, 932 Lake avenue, Wilmette, was only slightly injured. Swan, who went home after getting first aid for bruises at the Evanston hospital, told the police of the suburb that the signal lights at the crossing were not working and that he failed to see the train approaching.

Edward Block, 46 years old, 4115 South Francisco avenue, driver of a fire department supply truck, was injured internally and a dozen passengers on an eastbound Chicago avenue street car were shaken up when the fire truck and street car collided at Sangamon street and Chicago avenue last night. Block was taken to the Henrotin hospital. The fire truck, which skidded into the side of the street car, was damaged.

At 4 p. m. yesterday 69 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. In the same period 59 were killed and 955 injured within the Chicago city limits. A Cook county death yesterday:

Unidentified man, 50 years old, died in Alexian Brothers hospital of injuries incurred earlier in the day at Blanche street and Elston avenue, where he was struck by the automobile of Valentine Christmann, 649 Wrightwood avenue.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

Mrs. Fannie Blinder, 78 years old, 3128 Carlisle place, died in her home yesterday of a heart attack.

140,000 MARCH BY BIER OF KING IN FINAL TRIBUTE

Sorrowing Throngs Stand All Night in Rain.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 24.—More than 140,000 persons, most of them women and walking six abreast, today filed past the bier of the late King George V., lying in state in Westminster hall, the great banqueting room of kings.

When the gates to Westminster were closed at 10:30 o'clock tonight, a drizzling rain, which had begun to fall at dusk, did not stop the formation of a new line of mourning subjects. They planned to wait under umbrellas all night until 8 a. m. to file by the bier.

The stream of people waiting to see their sovereign's coffin at one time today extended for a mile down the bank of the Thames as far as Vauxhall bridge. Similar scenes will be repeated tomorrow, Sunday and Monday.

Family Prays at Coffin.

This popular participation in the royal mourning is always emphasized as the chief part of the drama at royal deaths here in England as on the continent, and its importance is shown by the fact that four days is allotted to it.

The crowds waiting in the drizzling rain were held up once tonight when Queen Mother Mary and King Edward VIII., accompanied by King Haakon and Queen Maud of Norway, went to Westminster. The doors were immediately closed to the public while the royal party remained for half an hour, praying before the king's coffin.

The coffin, lying on a catafalque, makes a tremendous spectacle. As the crowds file by, it is as if they were walking by a purple velvet island glittering with the jeweled royal crown and flanked by statuesque medieval troops with their halbreds. Over the coffin is draped the late king's state robes. The effect, especially on women, is moving.

Mourning Is Quiet.

On the whole, however, the tenor of mourning is quieter than it was for King Edward VII., according to those who were here at the time of his death.

The crowds who emerged today were dry-eyed for the most part, but they seemed deeply impressed by the pomp and solemnity of the death pageantry in the great hall. This evening one of the yeomen guarding the catafalque collapsed from the strain. His place was taken by another.

One aspect which stood out today and yesterday as compared with similar spectacles recently in continental countries was the absence of visible signs of police and military guards to protect the lives of the principals from violence.

The people who filed past the coffin today were from all parts of England; fur coats mingled with threadbare rain coats, and all seemed to be orderly and quiet.

Hawk Mourning Bands.

Just outside Westminster hall is a statue of Oliver Cromwell, who ruled England as a dictator for several years after the second civil war.

Among the great crowds hawkers and peddlers did a roaring business selling mourning bands, black neckties, purple mourning rosettes to be worn in button holes, post cards with the late king's portrait, and badges of the new king. They lent a carnival touch by contrast to the somber occasion.

In shop windows, cafés and inns there appeared portraits of the late king with borders and spotlights directed upon them.

Influx of Royalty Begins.

The influx of royalty and former royalty for the funeral Tuesday began tonight with the arrival of the king and queen of Norway—Maud is a sister of George V. King Boris of Bulgaria and King Carol of Rumania also started from their capitals for London.

Crown Prince Humbert of Italy will leave Rome for London Sunday. Much curiosity has been aroused by Humbert's coming in view of the strained relations between Britain and Italy. He will stay at the Italian embassy instead of at Buckingham palace, where most of the royal guests will be quartered.

A rehersal of Tuesday's funeral procession was held today. Soldiers and sailors marched over the route from Westminster to Paddington station with a truck to see how much time it will take. It is estimated that the state procession will last two hours.

3,000 Sailors To Participate.

More than 3,000 sailors will participate in Tuesday's ceremonial. The gun carriage bearing the late ruler will be drawn by a crew consisting of five officers and 142 men from Chatham.

A naval guard consisting of 105 officers and men will be at Paddington station and a royal marine guard of 50 officers and men at Westminster hall.

Nineteen hundred sailors and 580 royal marines will line the first part of the route from Westminster. The naval escort in the procession itself will consist of 24 naval and royal marine officers, 350 sailors and 150 royal marines.

16 Pipers To March.

Scottish troops also will take part. Sixteen pipers of the 2d battalion of the Black Watch will accompany the cortège to Windsor, where the remains will be buried.

In the procession, also, will be the pipe and drum band of the 4th Cameron Highlanders, of which King George was colonel-in-chief, and a detachment from the Cameron depot.

At Windsor the gun carriage will be drawn by sailors from the warships Excellent and Portsmouth. An escort of 100 officers and men from the royal yacht Victoria and Albert will take part in the procession.

Immediately behind the gun carriage will walk King Edward, his brothers, and foreign monarchs. The queen mother, the princess royal, the duchesses of York, Gloucester and Kent, and Queen Maud of Norway will ride in landaus drawn by famous Windsor grays.

Foreign Troops To March.

After the mourners will march troops representing the three fighting services and detachments of foreign armies.

The entire route will be draped in black and purple and will be lined with foot guards. Windows commanding a view of the funeral procession, both in London and Windsor, are selling rapidly at prices varying from $10 to $50. Shop and hotel proprietors are reaping a good harvest.

Accommodation for peers, members of parliament, privy councilors, officers of the fighting services and the civil service are being arranged in the Horse Guards parade in Whitehall, where workmen are erecting stands for 11,000 privileged spectators.

King Edward today spent several hours at his new job, working in his offices in Buckingham palace. A statement was issued saying that despite the strain of this week's events, his health is excellent.

FEDERAL COURT CASHIER HELD IN $15,000 THEFT

Admits Falsifying Books; Goes to County Jail.

Ferdinand W. Scherer, 62 years old, cashier in the office of the United States District court clerk for the last ten years, was arrested yesterday in his home at 6536 North Oshkosh avenue on a federal warant charging him with defrauding the government of $15,000 by making false entries on his books.

Scherer was immediately arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker and pleaded guilty to the charge. He was held to the federal grand jury in $5,000 bond and was taken to the county jail last night.

Plan Complete Quiz of Books.

Scherer made no statement before the commissioner except to enter his plea. Later, when questioned by Assistant United States District Attorneys Warren Canaday and Thomas B. Hart, Scherer merely said: "The money is gone. I don't know where it went."

Canaday and Hart announced that they would begin a complete investigation of Scherer's books today to determine just how the $15,000 was taken and if there were any other peculations.

In the event it can be shown that Scherer converted the $15,000 to his own use and these expenditures can be traced, an additional charge of embezzlement may be brought against him, the prosecutors said.

Handles Millions on Job.

In his capacity as cashier in the clerk's office Scherer handled millions of dollars in bankruptcy accounts, escrows, court judgments and filing fees, Canaday said. He also had control over the $32,500,000 in processing taxes which the federal court ordered the packers to place in escrow during the pendency of AAA litigation here.

The $15,000 shortage was traced to the bankruptcy accounts in a recent audit made in the clerk's office by the bureau of investigation of the department of justice. These audits are now made annually in all government offices under a law passed a year and a half ago.

How Shortage Occurred.

According to the auditors the shortage occurred as follows: Scherer had taken a total of $15,000 from eight small bankruptcy accounts. While these accounts were pending no complete audit of them could be made, but late in 1934 they were about to be closed as the concerns were reorganized. Scherer then entered a fictitious claim for $15,000 against the American Bond and Mortgage company, a large concern still in bankruptcy. He wrote a check for the false claim and applied the money to the eight small accounts, which then balanced.

The check was written on Dec. 26, 1934, the date given in the charge against Scherer. The recent audit disclosed the $15,000 shortage in the American Bond and Mortgage company account.

Acting Chief Deputy.

Scherer was a deputy clerk in the Cook County Criminal court for many years before he was appointed cashier in the United States District court clerk's office by Charles W. Bates, then clerk. When Bates was succeeded by Henry W. Freeman last July Scherer continued as cashier and was also acting chief deputy in the office. He is bonded for $5,000.

Last Dec. 17 Scherer suffered a nervous breakdown and had not been at work since. He is blind in the left eye.

Scherer was arrested in his home by Chief Deputy United States Marshal Joseph Tobin and government agents. He is married and has a son.

FREE MAE WEST AID OF CHARGE INVOLVING INDECENT STAGE PLAY

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Jim Timony, Mae West's business manager, and 14 players were found not guilty late today by a Municipal court jury of charges that they presented an indecent show.

Four hours were required by the 11 housewives and one man to reach a verdict on the play, "Ladies by Request," of which Timony was author-producer.

The farce was presented in court yesterday before a bored jury and a silent but capacity audience.

Deputy City Prosecutor Robert Anderson declared the play in court was not the same as the play police raided.

THREAT LETTER WRITER IS SENT TO A HOSPITAL

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Austin P. Palmer, retired engineer who pleaded guilty of having written threatening letters to President Roosevelt on Jan. 15, was committed to Bellevue hospital for observation when arraigned today before Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson.

Final sentence will be passed Jan. 30 when the hospital reports.

Judge Patterson acted on a recommendation of federal probation officers. The government opposed a motion by Palmer's attorney to have a private physician examine Palmer.

Palmer is said to have lost a large amount of money and blamed it on New Deal policies.

Hold Memorial Rites Here Tomorrow for George V.

A memorial service for the late King George V. will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock in St. James' Episcopal church, Wabash avenue and Huron street. The Rev. Dr. Duncan H. Browne, rector of the church, will conduct the service. Mayor Kelly, Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, and the staf of the 6th Corps area and Lewis Bernays, British consul general, are among those who will participate. Officers and many members of British societies in Chicago will also attend.

WOMAN ADMITS LEADING GANG OF CHILD BURGLARS

Her Son and Girl Held with Five Others.

A woman who helped dispose of the loot of twenty burglaries committed by a gang which included her own son and a 14 year old girl, was arrested yesterday and made a confession to Acting Captain Herbert Burns of the Irving Park police.

The woman is Mrs. Marie Shupert, 38 years old, 6118 Eddy street. She was charged with receiving stolen property and being an accessory to burglary. As a result of her confession police also arrested Walter Huerich, 30 years old, owner of a jewelry store at 4026 Milwaukee avenue, and charged him with receiving stolen property.

Seven Children in Gang.

Mrs. Shupert's son, Arthur, 15 years old; Ruth Funk, 14 years old, 6111 Addison street, and five other boys committed the actual burglaries. They are being held for juvenile authorities. The other five of the gang were Ruth's two brothers, Charles, 15 years old, and Herbert, 13; Arthur Klima, 16 years old, 6114 Eddy street, and Jack Ellsworth and Sunny Swiewinder, both 16 years old and living at 6241 Addison street.

The Shupert boy had appeared in the Juvenile court before, Capt. Burns said, and the Ellsworth and Swiewinder boys were wards of the court who had been put out to board with families living at the Addison street address.

Girl Seized, Accuses Pals.

The arrest of the young burglars came about through the report of a jeweler that Ruth Funk had tried to sell him some articles which he suspected were stolen. She, her brother Charles, and Arthur Shupert were arrested and named other members of the gang and Mrs. Shupert.

Mrs. Shupert admitted to Capt. Burns that when her sons brought home stolen articles she wrote a note to Huerich, identifying the boys, and then called Huerich on the telephone, asking him to buy the articles, some of which police found in his store.

The boys confessed that they had committed some twenty burglaries, opening doors of homes with skeleton keys or chisels while the occupants were attending the movies in the evening. Their loot, Sergt. Dabbert said, approximated $1,000.

Rabbit Tunnels Out and Chews Up Mistress, 3

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—After tunneling out of its hutch, a big pet rabbit attacked 3 year old Elizabeth Fry of suburban Hawthorne. The little girl was treated for a badly chewed knee and the rabbit put under observation as a possible rabies carrier.

207,153,540 GALS. OF WHISKY HELD UNDER U. S. BOND

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Bonded warehouses, the treasury reported today, held 207,153,540 gallons of domestic whisky Dec. 31, 1935.

Withdrawals of distilled spirits amounted to 90,536,787 taxed gallons, compared with withdrawals of 62,495,845 gallons the previous year. Of this amount, 61,872,982 gallons represented whisky, an increase of 62 per cent.

The alcohol tax unit of the treasury said domestic production of all distilled spirits exceeded withdrawals by more than 100,000,000 gallons in 1935. Stocks in bonded warehouses of all distilled spirits increased from 98,028,386 gallons on Dec. 31, 1934, to 215,518,136 gallons.

Production of beer in 1935 was 47,891,578 barrels, compared with 43,155,146 barrels the previous year.

NEW KING FIXES "QUEEN MOTHER" AS MARY'S TITLE

LONDON, Jan. 24.—(AP)—King Edward VIII. himself today designated the widowed Queen Mary, his mother, as "the queen mother," thereby ending a controversy as to her proper title.

By Edward's special command, the prayers in the order of service for all churches in England during the late King George's funeral next Tuesday, read in part:

"We commend, O Lord, to thy fatherly goodness, Mary, the queen mother, and all members of the royal family."

TWO DEATHS HELD ACCIDENTAL.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict holding accidental the deaths of Joseph Scarr, 70 years old, and his sister, Miss Anna Scarr, 68 years old, who were asphyxiated in a garage behind 4407 School street. Scarr was a junkman.

STELLE ASSAILS RISING COST OF HANDLING RELIEF

Demands Changes in Administrative Policy.

State Treasurer John Stelle created a stir at a meeting of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission yesterday by launching an attack on relief administrative costs and the practice of giving supplemental aid to WPA "security wage" workers. His remarks, which he refused to reserve for the privacy of an executive session, drew sharp retorts from others at the meeting. Stelle is an ex-officio member of the IERC.

After Stelle left the remaining four members present adopted a resolution again urging Gov. Horner and the general assembly to provide additional funds for the continuation of relief until May 1. A similar resolution was sent to Springfield a month ago, but the only result to date has been the appropriation of $2,500,000, which, with $2,000,000 in February sales tax revenue, will be exhausted Feb. 15.

Urges Change in Districts.

Stelle, who has been slated by the Democratic organization to run for the lieutenant governorship, began his remarks by stating that relief districts in the state should coincide with the seven Works Progress administration districts in the matter of boundaries and headquarters location.

"The two organizations should keep in closer contact," Stelle declared. "Where relief officials find clients failing to report for WPA employment, they could then immediately take it up with WPA district executives. This would reduce administrative costs."

Executive Secretary Leo M. Lyons of the IERC agreed that if this were done some of the 13 district representatives could be eliminated.

Stelle also proposed consolidation of some of the downstate counties which have only 100 to 125 relief families, yet have the same administrative staffs they had when the case load was 300 or 400.

Administrative Cost Rises.

No action was taken, although Stelle pointed out that administrative costs represented 12.3 per cent of total expenditures in December, in contrast to percentages of from 8 to 10 per cent in most preceding months. Estimates indicate that the January percentage will be 12.4.

In opposing the relief commission's practice of supplementing WPA workers over and above the federal funds they receive, Stelle contended that such aid is a matter for local charity.

Robert J. Dunham, WPA administrator for Illinois and a commission member, warned that a change in policy of supplementing WPA wages would "throw the relief-WPA situation up in the air."

William H. Sexton, another member, declared it would be "a derogation of our authority to throw this burden on local charities."

"With the present trend in the general assembly," Stelle predicted "we are going to face a situation on Feb. 15 where we'll have only sales tax revenue to run on. If we supplement WPA wages, we'll be taking something away from regular relief families."

Action on the policy of supplementation was deferred.

A. F. OF L.'S COUNCIL DELAYS AMENDMENT ACTION UNTIL MARCH

Miami, Fla., Jan. 24.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor's executive council today deferred action on a proposed constitutional amendment denying courts the right to void social legislation after deciding the amendment might prove a double edged weapon.

President William Green announced the council had put over until its March meeting carrying out the 1935 convention mandate to prepare an amendment to "safeguard social and economic interests of the people."

"We are going into this matter carefully," he said. "We don't want to defeat our own aims by giving congress power that might be conceivedly used against labor through adoption of laws fixing wages, hours, or denying workers the right to strike."

The council also wants to determine definitly whether congress by a rider resolution forbidding the courts from invalidating the accompanying legislation could accomplish now the same practical purpose as would the proposed amendment to the federal constitution.

HODES' FRIENDS STIRRED BY HIS LOSS OF AWARD

'Disqualify' Allred in Achievement Race.

Action of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of the United States in making its award for outstanding civic accomplishments by a young man during 1935 to Gov. James V. Allred of Texas was criticized yesterday by Capt. Jack Reilly.

Capt. Reilly led other friends of Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes in presenting Mr. Hodes' name for consideration, and the award, announced Tuesday, was finally made as between Gov. Allred and Mr. Hodes.

Emphasize Age Requirement.

"I do not wish to appear as disparaging any accomplishments by Gov. Allred," said Capt. Reilly, "but it happens that he was already beyond the age limit established by the organization when the award was established in October. Gov. Allred celebrated his 36th birthday last March 29.

"The terms of the award were that any young man 35 years of age or younger should be eligible, and that the award should be for outstanding civic achievement during 1935."

On behalf of Mr. Hodes his friends emphasized that during 1935 he finished his services on the Illinois tax commission, where he took a leading part in improving assessment methods throughout Illinois and led a campaign to eliminate duplicating units of local government.

Stress Other Achievements.

They also stressed his consolidation of six separate law offices into a coordinated city law department following his appointment as corporation counsel by Mayor Kelly; his establishment of a division of research in the corporation counsel's office, which has attracted national attention among municipal law officers, and his publication during the year of two books, "It's Your Money," a simple explanation of the processes of taxation which became a best seller, and "Essays on Illinois Taxation."

PREDICT SMITH TO HIT NEW DEAL IN TALK TONIGHT

New York, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith will go to Washington tomorrow for his first visit to the capital since October, 1933, and to take the rostrum with an address before the American Liberty league, widely predicted as unsparing in its criticism of the Roosevelt administration.

Definitly by the boards was the invitation to stop at the White House, issued last month by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President. The invitation was "acknowledged," Smith said in a birthday interview last Dec. 30, when he also said he had not been in Washington since October, 1933.

At the same time he denied the purported statement of an anonymous White House spokesman that he and Mrs. Smith frequently had been invited to the White House.

Among those who hazarded guesses today on what the former governor might say was the political commentator of the New York Sun, George Van Slyke, who said Smith "is prepared to analyze, indict, and repudiate the New Deal policies. . . ."

GERMAN ABBOT HERE TO TEACH OLD LITURGIES

Says Pope Would Combat Nationalism in Church.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Dom Albert Hammenstede, prior of the Benedictine abbey of Maria Laach, near Coblenz, Germany, arrived last night at Rosary college, River Forest, which will be his headquarters until this summer. There he is to conduct classes in historic liturgies of the church for Catholic clergy of the central west.

DOM ALBERT HAMMENSTEDE.

Dom Albert, whose abbey is the oldest in Germany, refused to comment on the politico-religious situation in his homeland but he reported a new unofficial relationship between Catholic and confessional [conservative Protestant] churchmen there. Prejudices are being broken down, he said, and informal conferences have been held between Catholic priests and confessional clergy.

Confer on Basic Doctrins.

At one meeting of the two groups, he related, the doctrin of the sacraments was discussed—an absolutely impossible occurrence a decade ago—in which both sides expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the outcome of the conversations. Dom Albert explained that such meetings have no official recognition by either church.

"There is a sort of an unexpressed, self-understood rapprochement between Catholics and Protestants," said Dom Albert. "Protestants see the good intentions of the Catholics and Catholics see the good will of the Protestants."

Nationalism Concerns Pope.

In commenting on his teaching duties in America, Dom Albert told of a conference with Pope Pius on the rôle to be played in the future by Catholic liturgy in combatting "the modern heresy of exaggerated [ecclesiastical] nationalism."

"Any essential change in regard to the classical character of the liturgy would open wide the ways to nationalistic churches," he said.

"But the whole matter has a still deeper significance. Because of our highly developed technical civilization there is the imminent danger of losing the great treasures comprised in the words 'humanistic education' or 'the humanities.'

Youth Cramped by Narrowness.

"Every thinking man must see how superficial and spiritually withered our modern mentality has become since it no longer recognizes or utilizes the knowledge and principles of the philosophy, literature, and art of antiquity.

"Youth of today, absorbed in the modern materialistic manner of thought, no longer is able to reflect about abstract and spiritual realities."

TELLS LIE TEST HE WOULD USE ON HAUPTMANN

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Dr. William Moulton Marston, psychologist, described today the systolic blood pressure deception test, or "lie-detector," which he has explained to Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, with the suggestion it be used on Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

A subject, he explained, has the instrument known as the sphygmanometer attached to his left arm. He is asked questions on subjects the examiner is wholly informed about, and thus is set the "truth" level.

At the beginning the pressure moves up and down with moderate rapidity during the truth-telling period.

When the subject lies the pressure is more regular than when he begins making truthful statements. Questions not related to the crime in question are asked, and the pressure zips up and down, rapidly; the subject is told to tell his own story in his own words and the pressure goes sharply to a high point.

Dr. Marston said he expected to hear by Monday if a test might be made with Hauptmann. The governor, he said, will seek a court order permitting it.

SLAIN DOCTOR'S WIDOW EXPECTS CHILD IN JULY

Mrs. Ruth Peacock, widow of Dr. Silber C. Peacock, who was mysteriously murdered on Jan. 2, is expecting a posthumous child, to be born in July, it was learned yesterday after Mrs. Peacock had conferred with Coroner Walsh. At the conference Mrs. Peacock expressed her conviction that her husband was slain when he resisted robbers. He was shot to death after answering a fake telephone summons to the bedside of a sick child. Coroner Walsh announced that the inquest into the physician's death will be resumed Tuesday at the county morgue.

Assistant State's Attorney Marshall Kearney and the police, it was learned yesterday, have been investigating leads furnished by a hotel key found in Dr. Peacock's car. Mr. Kearney indicated that the room to which it would afford entry had been located, but he asserted that no one had been arrested and that the regular occupant of the room had not been found.

William Slonczewski, 17 years old, 8232 Burley avenue, one of five youths who on Nov. 2 mistreated and robbed a 16 year old girl at 82d street and Brandon avenue, was found guilty of petty larceny by Municipal Judge J. M. Braude yesterday.

DIGEST SUBSCRIBERS ALSO BALLOT AGAINST NEW DEAL POLICIES

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Popular disapproval of the New Deal was expressed in a special pool of Literary Digest subscribers supplementing the main pool concluded last week, the result being practically the same in both counts. A total of 229,248 subscribers cast ballots in the latest ballot and the percentage was 62.94 against the New Deal policies as compared with 62.66 in the recent canvass of ten million votes.

The count in the special referendum covering the forty-eight states showed 144,279 voting against the Roosevelt policies and 84,969 endorsing the New Deal schemes. The percentage in all the states held practically the same but with a shade larger negative vote.

Ten states support the administration in the supplement poll whereas twelve were for it in the larger count.

In several instances the percentages in the states of the main and the subscribers' poll were identical.

LEARNS FIANCE IS DEAD AS SHIP MAKES U. S. PORT

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Miss Anna Shlitkamp, a vivacious blonde from the Netherlands, was one of the merriest young women aboard the Hamburg-American liner Hamburg, during the passage to New York, which ended today. She was wined and dined by her fellow passengers because she was coming here to be married.

When the liner reached quarantine tonight she learned for the first time that her fiancé, Henrik Riege, an engineer for the Shell Oil company at Houston, Tex., had died Jan. 17, the day after she sailed.

Capt. Theodore Koch, commander of the Hamburg, said he received the death notice from the oil company on the day of Mr. Riege's death. But Miss Shlitkamp had been so happy, he said, he held up the sad news.

TELLS OF COSTLY THEFTS BY USERS OF ELECTRICITY

Edison Man Says Loss Mounts in Depression.

Electric power companies have had to combat a large increase in theft of electric current throughout the depression years entailing the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars in revenues, A. R. Leighton, assistant chief special agent of the Commonwealth Edison company, told the Illinois chapter of International Association of Electrical Inspectors at its annual meeting in the Hotel Sherman yesterday. Such diversion of electricity, he said, probably reached a peak in 1932 and now is declining.

Mr. Leighton, whose department is charged with responsibility for detecting illegal diversion of current in Chicago, told of the methods used to steal electricity.

Dishonest Consumers' Technique.

Often, he said, the dishonest consumer tampers with the meter so that it undermeasures the current. Again, he may "jump" the meter—hook up a wire so as to detour the current around the measuring apparatus.

Such diversions, he asserted, are practiced not only by consumers in single homes and flats but by industrial companies as well. A recent survey shows that 65,000 cases of diversion have been uncovered in recent years by 38 electric companies. He said there is no way of telling what the undetected theft of current aggregates.

"To remedy this situation," Mr. Leighton related, "the installation of outdoor meters, in full view of neighbors, has been found to reduce thefts materially. In 85 cases these meters caused an increase in revenue of 100 per cent."

Outside Meters Effective.

The Edison company, like many other large utilities operators, is now placing meters on the outside of buildings in new installations and gradually changing the location of existing installations from the inside to the outside. Mr. Leighton pointed out that the outside meter not only cuts down on diversions, but also makes monthly readings easier.

When thefts of current can be proved, the utility companies force the consumer to make restitution, basing their claims on the average consumption before the pilfering began and after.

WOMAN HELD AS CHECK PASSER.

Mrs. Marie Vogt, 33 years old, 3446 Monroe street, a divorcee, was held at the detective bureau last night on charges of passing 31 worthless checks—ostensibly drawn on pay roll accounts—for a total of several hundred dollars.

CARL A. Mi[illegible] [Wallinger Photo.]

Carl A. Miller, advertising man, was elected illustrious potentate of Medinah temple of the Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine at the annual meeting of the group in the temple at Ohio street and Wabash avenue last night. He will succeed Harry J. Gardner. Mr. Miller has been a Mason since April 12, 1904. In 1922 he entered the 33d degree of the order. Other officers elected last night are: Chief rabban, Cass L. Griffis; assistant rabban, Adolph G. Voss; high priest and prophet, Edward W. Shepherd; treasurer, Arthur H. Vincent; recorder, Norman J. Kissick; oriental guide, Joseph G. Bowley.

U. S. OUSTS MONEY FOR TOKENS IN ALASKAN COLONY

PALMER, Alaska, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Better control of finances in the government's Matanuska colony by substitution of tokens for money at the commissary was announced by officials today. A. B. Betts, a colony official, said the tokens afforded a "simple way of keeping track of expenditures."

The government recently re-budgeted the families for their commissary allowances.

"Many of the colonists have earned money selling milk, other dairy products and wood," Betts said. "If they leave the colony premises, they will be given cash to make purchases."

JOHN PROAS, 84, STREET PENMAN, IS FOUND DEAD

John Proas, 84 years old, who was for years a familiar figure in loop streets, where he plied his calling as a writer of cards in a beautiful script, was found dead last night by members of a police squad who broke into his room at 509 North Franklin street.

Death apparently was due to heart disease. Proas's body had fallen against a stove, and it was believed he was stricken as he was placing fuel on his fire.

In the room was a diary which the old penman had kept. The last entry was made at 4:12 a. m. Thursday. It said: "Put coal on the fire."

REBELS OF G. O. P. FACE NEW SPLIT IN OWN FORCES

28 Committeemen Divide on Whom to Sponsor.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Rebels against the present leadership of the Cook county Republican central committee massed their strength at a luncheon meeting yesterday only to disclose that they are likely to divide in just the same manner as they split away from the rest of the committee.

They mustered a total of twenty-eight members, twenty-four of them ward committeemen and the remaining four district committeemen from the suburbs, one from each section being represented by a proxy. All were opposed to the domination of the committee by Chairman William H. Weber, Secretary Edward F. Moore, and George F. Harding, veteran south side leader.

Postpone Big Split.

For about two hours they listened to speakers, most of whom presented names of candidates for state or county office. But not a speaker mentioned a candidate for the governorship. And a canvass of the situation showed that if there had been an attempt to take a vote on any one aspirant to that office there would have been another big split.

The twenty-eight terminated all close association with the Weber-Moore-Harding group Thursday night after a recently adopted rule against indorsements except by an 80 per cent vote had been scrapped and the Harding forces had approved the governorship candidacy of Wayland Brooks with twenty-eight committeemen signed up for him.

With exactly the same number of committeemen in their ranks, the rebels held another of their daily luncheons at Henrici's restaurant for the acknowledged purpose of going ahead with the formation of a complete state and county ticket. They talked, but took no action.

Clash of Opinions.

The trouble was that an undisclosed number at the meeting have signed up to support H. Wallace Caldwell, county commissioner and former president of the school board, for the governorship. Apparently about as many were friendly to the contention of Fred Lundin and others that a downstater should head the ticket.

This latter group now is inclined to consider John G. Oglesby of Elkhart, former lieutenant governor, as the most desirable of the downstaters. But they were not willing to propose Oglesby's name. And the Caldwell supporters were not ready to act.

Another group luncheon will be held today and more stalling is expected, but it is reported that soon—probably on Monday—there will be an effort to put through a Caldwell indorsement.

The Lineup to Date.

Yesterday's affair, combined with the pro-Brooks declaration Thursday night, gave observers their first opportunity to scan the lineup of county committeemen as they stood at that time. Shifting to Brooks is predicted at the regular headquarters, but the hostile forces now are divided for and against Brooks as follows:

Democrats Complete Slate; Launch Campaign on Feb. 3

BY PERCY WOOD.

With their state, county, and judicial tickets approved, the Democratic organization made plans last night to send its state candidates, headed by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, the choice for governor, on a preliminary downstate tour starting Feb. 3.

The candidates will make a trip of about ten days' duration into both rural and urban sections. A much more comprehensive tour of the counties outside Cook will be undertaken before the April 14 primaries, during which Dr. Bundesen is expected to present his platform. This second trip will probably start about March 1.

The last obstacle to serious campaigning was removed yesterday when the Cook county central committee, meeting in the Morrison hotel, approved the county, sanitary district, and judicial slates, and reaffirmed the Bundesen selection.

Courtney Speaks His Mind.

This session was made notable by the remarks of State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney. Courtney, who with other incumbents of county offices has been slated for organization support, made an answer to talk within the last ten days that he was to be dumped by the organization.

Although Courtney was introduced in a kindly fashion by County Chairman P. A. Nash, who said that the organization had been unanimous for his renomination, the young prosecutor spoke sharply of the purported attempt to supplant him.

"I have tried," he said, "to carry out policies which the people would approve. How well I have succeeded has been demonstrated within the last ten day by the press and civic organizations when there was talk of dropping me.

"Every man should conduct himself in a manner which will reflect credit on the party. It is difficult to win without party indorsement, but indorsement is not sufficient for election. One must have the approval of the Supreme court—the citizenry.

Prosecution Before Politics.

"There is no time for politics in the prosecution of crime. A prosecutor cannot persecute his political opponents and the office cannot be used to promote political issues. Honest and aggressive action is required.

"I have tried to give that sort of administration, but I know that there was some opposition to my renomination. That wasn't formed two weeks ago. It came into being some months ago. Every man must expect criticism, but if a man is to receive opposition in his own party it should be put on the table where it can be met.

"I'll not indulge in personalities, but the opposition to me was based on selfish motives and selfish motives alone. So I am happy to know that the Democrats have submerged that opposition to me."

The state's attorney continued, a little less heatedly, saying that the party should "welcome the feelings of every man," adding that "if the party is to be governed by the dictates of a few it will not give the people the government that they are entitled to."

Pledges Support to Ticket.

Later Courtney made the enigmatic statement that "no man should be punished for opposing a policy."

He concluded by pledging support to "the men on the ticket."

Chairman Nash made no comment when Courtney finished.

Dr. Bundesen was next presented. The candidate for governor spoke briefly, thanking the committee again for its support and adding that, if elected, he would try to give "an efficient administration and will be loyal to the organization."

PAY RAISES GO ROUND 'N' ROUND IN COUNTY BOARD

Where They'll Come Out Nobody Knows.

The 15 Cook county commissioners on some days gather and go into session as the county board. On other days they sit and confer as members of the county board's finance committee. It would seem that under the circumstances the county board would approve what its finance committee does.

This is not always true. For instance, the commissioners yesterday reversed themselves for the third time on a matter involving proposed salary raises for four "head men" in the office of County Assessor John S. Clark.

On Tuesday It's No.

On Tuesday the commissioners sat as the finance committee and gave final consideration to a 1936 budget of $20,633,000. Included in the budget were proposed salary restorations of 7½ per cent for employés whose positions were in existence in 1931. The county board had already decided that restorations were to be made and the finance committee approved.

At the same time proposals were made that Mr. Clark's helpers be granted increases as follows: H. Gordon Bollman, A. V. Capraro, and John E. Battle, from $5,100 to $5,550 annually, and John M. Bates, from $4,400 to $4,625 annually. But the county board finance committee decided that as the county board hadn't acted on these jobs—which were created after 1931—there would be no raises for these men.

On Wednesday It's Yes.

On Wednesday the budget came before the county board for final action. The assessors' raises were in it at the moment and the budget was passed by a vote of 10 [Democrats] to 5 [Republicans]. Some commissioners were surprised that the dual nature of the commissioners had made them do one day what they had said they couldn't do the day before.

It was learned, however, that Maurice F. Kavanagh, chairman of the finance committee, and a few other county officials had decided the four men ought to have a raise and had arbitrarily put the increases in.

The Circle Leads Back to "No."

Yesterday the commissioners sat again as the finance committee. In this capacity they decided that Bollman, Capraro, and Battle should not have their raises. They voted to recommend that President Clayton F. Smith of the county board, at the regular board meeting Monday, veto the salary increases for the trio.

Specifically the commissioners want these men to have the same thing they wanted to have on Tuesday, but not on Wednesday. As for Bates, they desire that he shall have what they wanted for him on Wednesday, but not on Tuesday. It's all very puzzling.

DAVIS ASSAILS BUROCRACY AS WORST OF GOVERNMENTS

HOLDS SHACKLES PRICE OF WEALTH SHARING PLANS

Urges Lawyers to Take Part in Battle.

foreseeing this abrupt shift of the battle in our direction. It may be that in our easy going way we had taken things too much for granted. We believed that certain things had settled into the minds and hearts of the American people too firmly for any gust of passion to dislodge. The basic propositions on which our whole scheme of government and law is built seemed so thoroughly established that only outright revolution, as we thought, would dare to challenge them. In the light of established doctrin and decision it did not occur to us that any one could be found to dispute, either in theory or in practice, certain fundamental axioms. Among these I name the following:

"First—That the federal government is one of limited powers, having only those given to it expressly or by necessary implication in the constitution, and that all powers not so delegated are reserved to the states or to the people;

"Second—That the executive, legislative and judicial departments are, and must remain, separate and distinct and that the powers of no one of them can be surrendered to or exercised by another;

"Third—That every governmental power of whatever sort is subject in its exercise to the limitations fixed by the constitution and the bill of rights and that action which oversteps these bounds is void; and, finally,

Fourth—That where a constitution and a statute, state or federal, are in conflict, it is the high and solemn duty of the courts to pronounce between the two—just as it is the equal duty of the legislative and executive branches to accept their ruling.

Held Self Evident.

"It would be wasted time to undertake a demonstration of these propositions to a gathering of American lawyers, or of informed American laymen, for that matter. To do so would be too much like expounding to a body of mathematicians the accuracy of the multiplication table. It is not easy to see, therefore, why any one familiar with our plan of government should have been surprised or disappointed or irritated when the Supreme court, in passing upon recent laws, laid its course by the constitutional landmarks that have guided the republic since its voyage first began. In honor and conscience it could not do otherwise.

"For I think we can agree—you and I—on the fifth controlling axiom, namely,

"That an oath to preserve, protect, and defend the constitution of the United States, or any oath in similar form, whether taken by Presidents, members of congress, or judges on their induction into office—or even by humble lawyers like ourselves on our admission to the bar—binds the conscience and the honor of him who takes it to do nothing for himself which violates the law of the constitution and not to permit the doing of the same by another, if within his power to prevent.

Sole Reliance of Freedom.

"It may seem a slender reed, this appeal by public oath to the consciences of men, but in the last analysis it is chief, if not the sole, reliance of all free government. Just as the obligatory force of contracts is the prop of our whole social order, so the solemn promise of a public officer to keep within the law that makes him is the cement that holds all free government together.

"To violate this oath or to treat it lightly is surely the mortal sin. For liberty, it has been well said, is possible only when the sovereign power is made to obey the law. With every recognition of room for doubts or differences of opinion where the question is nicely balanced, it still remains true that a willful violation of the constitution or a willful usurpation of power by any official, high or low, is an offense that no man who loves his country can pardon or condone. Guilt in such things is guilt and it cannot be covered by bland excuses or pious aspirations.

"In vain we call old notions fudge
And suit our conscience to our dealing;
The ten commandments will not budge

Law Finds a Champion.

"Such is our law; and if we have lived to grieve at the passage of not one, but a whole series of statutes passed in bold defiance of its basic principles, we have also lived to rejoice that in the courts of the country the law has found its champions and defenders.

"The irritation of which I speak does not vent itself upon court decisions alone. I read, for instance, a declaration by one official of a farmers' organization that all those who brought suit against the AAA are enemies of the republic.' And warnings are given here and there that it is dangerous to insist upon rights guaranteed by the constitution as it is, lest, as a result of such insistence, radical changes may occur and worse things still may come upon us.

"Submit, they say, to the burden laid on you today or we will load you with a heavier one tomorrow; I presume some would even write it 'and/or we will load you with a heavier one tomorrow.' I cannot accept this reasoning. The constitution and the rights of the citizens may be changed quite as effectively by gradual encroachment as by direct attack. And there is no surer way for men or nations to lose their rights than by failing to assert them. Far better is it to have amendments openly proposed and publicly debated than to have creeping changes wrought without notice of their coming.

DISCUSSES AMENDERS

"With this in mind, I wish tonight to leave the courts to their appointed mission and discuss with you proposals made by those more candid souls who are not willing to engage in guerrilla warfare on the constitution, subverting it by the process of stealthy and gradual invasion, but who boldly call for its amendment. They tell us openly that the federal government needs more power than it has; that the states have more power than they need; that congress is too ignorant, or too busy, or too indolent to make the laws without executive assistance, and that having emerged from the 'horse and buggy age' of our ancestors into the complexities of the modern world, many things heretofore entirely outside the orbit of any governmental power whatever must now be brought within its scope.

"These ideas, whenever they are put in concrete and understandable terms, are entitled to a respectful hearing and to an answer on the merits. No reproach can be leveled at any man who thinks our frame of government can be bettered by amendment and who gives his reasons for saying so. Obviously he starts with the odds against him; for the conspicuous success our plan has won at home, all Jeremiahs to the contrary notwithstanding, and the frightful object lessons furnished in the modern world by countries where a different scheme has been followed, offer of themselves strong arguments against any change. But I doubt whether those who would amend the constitution are sufficiently answered merely by praise of the constitution as it is, sound and well merited as I believe such praise to be. When panaceas are offered on the one side, only to be answered by panegyrics on the other, the argument lacks in conclusiveness. We must plead the case to issue.

Holds Argument Cloudy.

"So far, I submit, those who offer panaceas have done very little in spite of much fervent oratory to make their position clear. It is all very well to say that law is a part of the life of a people and must change with their changing lives; that the constitution itself is not an iron framework, fixed and immutable, but a plan of government subject to alteration by the popular will that gave it birth. But when it is indicted for its supposed insufficiencies the bill of particulars is extremely vague. When new patent medicine is offered the patient is entitled at least to have the formula printed on the outside of the bottle.

"Perhaps we should not take too seriously those trial balloons which were sent up in the last congress in the form of resolutions proposing constitutional amendments. One of these, however, strikes my fancy by its all-inclusiveness. It is H. J. Res. 316, offered by Mr. Keller of Illinois, to the effect that:

"'The congress shall have power to make all laws which in its judgment shall be necessary to provide for the general welfare of the people.'

Simplicity Disarming.

"This is disarming by its very simplicity. All that is needed to render it complete is to add a judicial clause following the lines of the law promulgated by the German government last summer which admonishes the courts that where offenses are not punishable under the penal code they shall be punished when they deserve it 'according to the underlying idea of a penal code or according to healthy public sentiment.' With courts and congress so furnished, constitutional questions would become of no further consequence.

"Without spending time on the form of other proposals, consider for a moment some of the subjects which men in high places as well as out of them seek to put within the reach of the federal power—a power, by the way, which always advances and never retreats. They would give to congress or its creatures, by an amendment to the constitution, power to regulate [which in this connection means to control] the hours, wages, and conditions of all labor, the terms of its employment and discharge, production—all production; industry—all industry; business—all business—and trade and commerce of all kinds wherever carried on.

"One of the proposed amendments, offered by Senator Costigan [S. J. Res. 3], goes on to provide that in exercising these powers congress shall be free from any of the requirements of 'due process' embodied in the fifth and fourteenth amendments. There is cause to wonder, in passing, whether some of the legislation of these last three years was not enacted in the belief that such an amendment was already on the books.

Sees It Gigantic Task.

"The magnitude of the task suggested need not be enlarged upon, for it beggars all description. Throughout a continental area stretching from the pine trees to the palms, over industries as diverse as lumbering in Maine and mining in Arizona, dressmaking in New York and pork packing in Chicago, in every occupation whereby men serve their fellows and earn their livelihood, one will, and that the will of the congress and its creatures, is to reign supreme, unchecked it may even be by any constitutional guarantees! And yet some of our hot reformers can be satisfied with nothing else.

"What is put forward to justify such a drastic experiment in vivisection on the living body of our national life? We are admonished that modern life is very complex; that the commerce of the country has become a 'seamless' web, and that, since transportation has improved, communication has grown easier, knowledge of nature and the world around us has advanced, trade between the states, along with these things and by reason of them, has finally grown so great that the rule of freedom which gave birth to the constitution must now give way to the reign of regulation. The federal government, it is urged, must control the economic life of the nation henceforth as it does the rivers from the mountains to the sea.

Tribute to Constitution.

"The statement itself is a tribute, perhaps unintended, to the beneficence of the constitution as it has been and is. The preservation of freedom in commerce between the states was one of the cardinal objects of the constitution, if not its primary concern. It has been under this freedom and by very reason of it that the trade and trafic of the country, without embargoes, without quotas, without restricted production, without price fixing, and without artificial restraint, has grown to its present splendid proportions. Unless the very success of the experiment condemns it, why should the system that fostered all this be no longer trusted to preserve it? And if the physical agencies which man has learned to employ have changed, let it never be forgotten that the man himself has changed but little.

"He has gradually made for himself better tools, but he responds today to the same impulses, nurses the same hopes and ambitions, is stirred by the same fears and passions as when history first began. Political science is not a thing of machines or statistics, but of human behavior and the lives of men. Every governmental policy must be tested primarily by its effect upon the character, virtures, and development of the human beings subject to it.

"INSANE DELUSION"

"Surely the idea that nothing can go well unless government has a hand in it is one of the most insane delusions that has ever vexed the mind of man. As a matter of daily observation the things that go best are precisely those with which government has least to do.

"I believe that it can be demonstrated to a mathematical certainty that the distress tormenting the whole round world today is due more to the folly of governments than to any and all other causes combined. Why must the American government be equipped with new and greater powers in order to enlarge upon the blunders into which it and others have fallen?

"It is not persuasive to argue that other national governments—not all, God be praised!—have and are exercising powers similar to those which it is now proposed to confer upon our own. There is nothing in their example to tempt us to throw away those checks and balances, those limitations on authority, that jealousy of power, that scrupulous regard for the individual which we have so long boasted to the world as our unique contribution to the science of free government.

Hits Appeal to Passion.

"Nor is the argument helped in any way by demagogic appeals to passion. Wicked men, it is said, have abused the freedom they have enjoyed. The statement is undoubtedly true. I know of no period in which such things have not occurred. But the remedy is to be found in 'ridding the earth of the bad,' by specific laws directed to known evils and enforced by appropriate sanctions.

"The evil conduct of some furnishes no warant for putting gyves and fetters on the guilty and innocent alike and locking them all in an 'immense and artificial organization of society.' And if the indictment stops with a general charge of mere incompetency on the part of business leaders, the cure offered promises to be far worse than the disease.

"I have said—and I repeat—most of the economic illness of the modern world is directly traceable to government. It was the folly of governments, for instance, that brought on the world war. It was the folly of governments that forced the economic clauses of the peace. It was and is the folly of governments that followed the military conflict with an economic warfare that still persists. I might go further without exhausting the subject.

Burocracy No Substitute.

"Whether, with these handicaps, the most supreme wisdom on the part of private citizens, great and small, could have averted the depression I gravely doubt. In any event the creation of a great and cancerous burocracy is no substitute for private judgment and initiative nor a cure for its mistakes.

"Those who convince themselves and hope to convince others of the superior wisdom and virtue of government officials suffer, it seems to me, from a curious form of sun-blindness that has afflicted man throughout the ages when gazing on his rulers. Always he has been able to delude himself into thinking of the governing power as a great and mysterious divinity behind the veil.

"Under theocracies his superstition led him to believe in the oracles delivered to his ruling priests. From such superstition was born the doctrine of the divine right of kings and a belief in the power of the monarch to heal by the laying on of his hands.

"We are witnessing today the spread throughout the world of a similar superstition which leads men to see in government, the state, or society, a mysterious and benevolent something above and beyond the imperfect and erring mortals who act in its name. There can be no sound thinking on the subject until we tear away the mask and see behind these names only fallible men who for a longer or shorter time, with greater or less right, with less or more of wisdom, have power to impose their will upon their fellow men.

History Shows the Path.

"I speak, and the adjectives are not original, of a great and cancerous burocracy. That such a burocracy has followed every increase of federal power history plainly tells us. There is no slightest hope that congress, invested with this broader jurisdiction, will exercise its newfound power for itself.

"Any one familiar with Washington can testify that the number and variety of questions presented to congress are already overwhelming. No man, however able or diligent, can grasp more than a small percentage of the whole. It was so 25 years ago; it is doubly so today.

"Every new addition to federal functions has lessened the attention that congress can give to it or to anything else. Load congress with sole responsibility for the labor, industry, and trade of the nation and it will become something worse than an occasional rubber stamp. It will sink—indeed, it is visibly sinking—to the level of the parliament of Paris, devoting itself to registering the edicts of the king.

"Burdened with the discharge of more duties than it can surmount, it will continuously wash its hands of them in the burocratic stream. It can do no less. And its influence on the ultimate form and details of the law of the country, as it issues the rules and regulations of executive bureaus, will be little more than that of the present congress of the soviets, the reichstag of Germany, or the Italian parliament.

Busy Obeying Orders.

"Faced with the performance of impossible tasks, the energies of its members will be more and more absorbed in securing their own reëlection and, for the rest, obeying the orders they receive.

"Look around you and see how fast burocracy grows in a system to which it has fastened itself. Already I read that the housing accommodation of Washington is exhausted and some governmental divisions must be translated to the satellite village of Baltimore—'a rural resettlement,' as it were. While each fresh bureau, forgetting what transient phantoms its members are at best, cries out in its blooming egotism, 'only give us more power and we will pour you out such a blessing as there shall not be room to receive.' The 'blessing' when it comes usually proves to have been taken from the unforgotten pocket of the forgotten taxpayer.

"If experience teaches anything, it is that of all methods of government burocracy is the least responsible, the least intelligent, and the most arrogant and tyrannical.

"'However faulty a legislative chamber may be,' said Cavour, 'an antechamber is worse.' It is the nature of burocracies that responsibility is widely diffused, decision is anonymous and action painfully slow. Questions, passed from desk to desk, are tardily disposed of or left to rot in burocratic files until time has relieved the official from the unpleasant necessity of decision. Matters are decided on grounds not always removed from personal and political considerations.

Starts Creeping Paralysis.

"Once the halting, blundering hand of the burocrat has settled down on an industry, or a country, a creeping paralysis sets in that betokens the end of growth or even of life itself.

"I beg you to believe that in saying all this I level no personal reproach at any of the able and devoted men who now, as always in the past, are willing to enter the official service of the nation. With due allowance for degrees of worth and merit, it may be assumed that by and large they are fully equal in point of worth and intelligence to the mass of their countrymen.

"I regret to say that I cannot believe that mere induction into office gives men superior strength and wisdom or a sudden knowledge of the things which other men have spent their lives to learn. Miracles of that sort do not occur. And if the actions of these officers are not biased by a hope of personal gain, it is equally true that their judgment is not cooled and sobered by the fear of personal loss. Moreover, the mistakes made by men in private life are limited in their power to harm; while the errors of those in office spread their disastrous effect as far as the wide range of their authority.

Party Politics "Suspected."

"Again, without making any personal allusions, there is room, is there not, for a lingering suspicion that mere party politics plays an occasional part in the selection of burocratic personnel? The irreverent say that such things have actually occurred. It is an impressive moment, no doubt, for the humble citizen when he gets a summons to appear before the chief of the division of circumlocution in the industrial evolution administration. But he must learn to hide his surprise when he finds behind the desk assigned to that potentate his erstwhile neighbor, Hiram Hokum—a man not much reputed in his home for wisdom, but a faithful party servant who has now entered into his reward.

"For ours is a government by parties, as is every democracy, and as such it has its obvious weaknesses, atoned for, we hope, by greater benefits. As Lord Bryce puts it, 'No government demands so much from the citizen as democracy and none gives so much back.' But the very existence of these weaknesses, of which the spoils system is among the greatest, warns us against a 'fatal confidence in the men of our choice,' or imposing on our government tasks that governments by nature are wholly unfitted to perform.

"Regulation" Hides Many Sins.

"Burocracy is a name of evil import. Regulation is a term behind which every form of tyranny, great and small, can hide itself.

"Yet there are collateral evils in this program of greater menace still. One of the most vigorous academic advocates of constitutional reform opines that the whole national government needs to be reshaped to get a working machine that can respond to group needs without giving way to purely interested pressures by the more highly organized among them!' Here is romanticism at its best! Here is a truly millennial aspiration!

"The idea that men will tamely submit their daily lives and occupations, their economic welfare and their individual hopes and ambitions to the control of other men without struggling to capture the seats of decision for themselves is a lotus eater's dream. If congress is to have power either by its own actions or through its delegates to fix the hours and wages of labor, will that end the matter? Will employer and employé thereafter lie down in perpetual peace together? What assurance have those labor leaders who seem to favor such a plan as a step toward shorter hours and higher wages, what assurance have they that the advocates of longer hours and lower wages may not some day leap into the saddle?

"Are they willing to surrender the bargaining power that has been won after so many years of painful effort for the mere chance of carrying this or that election? And if congress or its bureaus are to fix wages throughout the continent, will it be a uniform rate for all the trades and all the sections?

"And if not, how long will one section or one worker be content if it appears, as a result of governmental action, that other men in other places are getting more money for the same hours of toil? Will skilled and unskilled, organized and unorganized labor fare alike? And if not, which will have the upper hand, or is a mere count of noses to name the arbiter between them?

SEES A NEW STRIFE

"When the production of potatoes in Maine and Florida, of coal in Pennsylvania and Alabama, and of textiles in Massachusetts and Georgia is submitted to a common control in Washington, who again is so fatuous as to believe that even-handed justice, peace and harmony will result?

"If I have selected for my illustration states that commonly give their electoral votes to different candidates, the choice is not wholly inadvertent. The more favors and advantages government has to bestow, the fiercer must become the strife to possess them; and out of this perpetual warfare of man against man, class against class, industry against industry, section against section, all striving to influence the agencies of government for their selfish desires, there must come legislative blocs, organized lobbies, pressure politics, and the ultimate degradation and pollution of our whole political life.

"We have such evils in our midst today. In God's name, why aggravate them by broadening the field in which they can operate?

"It is in the nature of things that every increase in the powers and functions of the federal government must lessen the interest of the citizen in the government of his state. The sunflowers always turn toward the sun. To advocates of centralization this seems perhaps no disadvantage.

"Indeed, when they think, as not infrequently they do, of themselves as the persons to be snugly ensconced in the comfortable offices they seek to create, such universal adulation must seem not undesirable. But when the states are reduced to mere administrative provinces it is unlikely they can long survive, even with the map makers.

Drains Life Blood Away.

"Their life blood will be drained away and the revenues necessary for their maintenance will be steadily siphoned off, as indeed they are being siphoned off today, into the national treasury.

"Surely there is something deeply humiliating in the present spectacle of a steady procession of mendicant governors, mayors, boards of trade, and private pilgrims marching on Washington, like beggars with their tin cups, for a share of federal alms. Do they realize, I wonder, that the largess they seek can come from one or the other of two sources and two sources only? It must come either from taxes that men have toiled and labored to pay or from the proceeds of borrowings that mortgage the future not only of themselves, but of the children who will come after them.

"With every eye turned toward Washington and every hand outstretched for what Washington has to give, our federal system will soon lose all vigor. When that time comes, there must eventuate a union torn apart by the clash of group and sectional interests, or a despotism—under what name it matters not—strong enough to maintain our continental unity by force; and not by force only, but by that suppression of freedom of opinion, of speech, and of action to which every dictatorship instinctively resorts.

Quotes Jefferson Warning.

"'What,' asked Jefferson, 'has destroyed the liberty and the rights of man in every government that has ever existed under the sun?' And he answers, 'The generalizing and concentrating of all cares into one body.' Some of our high flying gentry seem to find one hundred and fifty years of American experience an untrustworthy guide. But five thousand years of human history bear witness to the truth of Jefferson's statement. Cause and effect are remorseless. They are, in Emerson's splendid phrase, 'the chancellors of God.'

"I do not charge all those who advocate such changes as those we are considering with insincerity. Not all of them would stoop to delude the ignorant with promises of impossible benefits. But they force the drawing of a dividing line between those who love the shelter of autocracy with its supposed security and those who love freedom with all its risks.

"I know it has been said that the hungry cannot eat the constitution and that it is useless to speak of liberty to those who are starving. But, if liberty cannot be eaten, without it all bread is bitter. Ask any Jew in Germany, any kulak in Russia, any liberal in Italy if he holds a different view.

Will Control Feed Hungry?

"It is quite true that distress can be relieved, and in many cases should be relieved, by the use of money drawn from the public treasury. It is also true that one man's money may be forcibly taken and given to another to the great satisfaction of the recipient. But in the light of past and present experience it requires a more than robust faith to support the belief that federal regulation and control of the industrial and commercial life of the country will, in the long run, feed a single hungry man, put a single additional loaf of bread on any man's table, or conduce in any permanent sense to the general welfare. And even if it could I should still assert that the price is one that the American can never afford to pay.

"It is evident that the aim of the proposed amendments is more far-reaching than a mere redistribution of existing power between the nation and the states. They do not stop with asking that so much shall be taken from the one and transferred to the other. They wish to endow the federal government with power which no government whatever in America has hitherto been permitted to employ.

"Starting with what I believe to be the wholly unsound premise that the paramount duty of every government, if not its sole reason for existence, is to foster the economic life of the country, they ask that all restraints be removed from any experiments whatever directed to that end. No matter what cloak of expediency or benevolence or apparent novelty may be thrown about such ideas, their coming marks but another incident in the age-long combat between man and his would-be masters.

"It is the conflict betwen a glorified state and a self-reliant citizen, between an economy artificially planned and the self-corrective efforts of free men working out their own destiny, between a government above all law and a law above all government, between autocracy and freedom—autocracy which has spelled stagnation wherever and whenever it has reigned and freedom which has been the beacon light of every step in mankind's forward march.

Not a New Contest.

"It is not a new contest. Even the tactics employed in waging it are very old. There is nothing new in inventing opprobrious adjectives for one's adversaries. There is nothing new in telling a man, as Prof. Sumner put it, that if he wants anything he has not got, it is the fault of somebody else who ought to be found and compelled to give it to him. And 300 years before Christ Aristotle wrote that democracies will be most subject to revolutions from the dishonesty of their demagogs. Partly by informing against men of property and partly by rousing the common people against them, they induce them to join together, for a common fear will make the greatest enemies unite—and this is what any one may see continually practiced in many states.

"But new ideas or old ideas, new methods or old methods, in this warfare there is no room for neutrals. I hear it said, sometimes, that it is useless to battle against the forces of centralization and collectivism; that the tide of the times, the 'Zeitgeist,' is setting in that direction too strongly to be stemmed.

"Accordingly, all that is left to a dissenter is to keep his place in the boat with the rest, hoping that by his mere dead weight he can slow its progress, even if he cannot change its direction. I cannot agree.

Holds to No Fatalism.

"I do not believe that the tide cannot be stemmed. I do not believe the dire conclusion cannot be changed. I do not believe that the American people, once they understand the issue, can be bribed or wheedled or frightened into giving over their individual lives into the care and keeping of other men.

"To more despondent souls, prematurely despondent, as I think, I can but offer the advice given by a philosophic father to a friend of mine as the young man left home to make his way in the world. 'My son,' said he, 'when things go wrong, don't go with them.'

"Mr. President, if in the course of these remarks I have said either more of less than is suitable to this occasion let me make my apology in the words of Montaigne: 'I speak truth,' he wrote, 'not so much as I would but so much as I dare. And I dare more as I grow older.'"

ITALIAN TROOPS TURN BACK AFTER RAID INTO DESERT

Flying Columns in South Seek Safer Position.

BY SIR PERCIVAL PHILLIPS.
[Special Correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph and The Chicago Tribune.]
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, Jan. 24.—Gen. Rodolfo Graziani's spectacular raid from Dolo into southern Ethiopia has been followed by a discreet rapid retirement of his tanks and motor truck troops toward a position in safer and more hospitable territory. They are said now to be about 30 miles from their starting point.

The adventure may have the desired effect of heartening anxious countrymen in Italy, but the practical results are far short of what they doubtless have been led to believe.

The moral effect of the raid on the Ethiopians is by no means as crushing as the Italians would have liked. The main army of Ras Desta Demtu, Emperor Haile Selassie's son-in-law, extricated itself with great dexterity from entanglement by the enemy's flying columns, and is now resting and reforming for the next move about which Gen. Graziani has no illusions.

"Devastate" Desert Country.

The territory "devastated" by his troops in their hurried dash of nearly 200 miles is merely a desert. There are no towns and villages, only a few scattered groups of uninhabited huts belonging to nomads who suffered little from the attack save destruction of their shelters.

Had Gen. Graziani been able to remain in the vicinity of Neghelli, capital of Galla Borana, the networks of valleys intersecting higher ground would have given him a real advantage and an excellent pushing off point for occupying more fertile and watered areas beyond.

But such a decision would have entailed precarious lines of supply through the desert and would have subjected his men to constant attacks with little chance of permanently clearing out guerrilla bands. There would also have been the constant menace of Ras Desta's army on his flanks.

See New Attack on Harrar.

There has been more activity on the part of the Italians lately in the Gerlogubi-Gorahai sector. This may mean they are preparing another frontal attack on Harrar, Ethiopia's second largest city. If this is launched it will involve hard fighting. Ras Nasibu's Ethiopian forces are now strongly entrenched at Daggah Bur and beyond.

The Ethiopians profess to believe there is no prospect of another such onslaught before the "big" rainy season, but Graziani will continue to do what he can in the southwest from Dolo.

More Italian reinforcements have arrived at Mogadishu, Italian Somaliland, and have been sent to the base at Dolo. Italians here and in other ports are again buying oil for shipment to Mogadishu and Assab, Eritrea. They are paying cash.

ENTER DESERTED VILLAGE

BY MARK BARRON.
[Associated Press Foreign Staff.]

WITH THE SOUTHERN ITALIAN ARMY AT NEGHELLI, ETHIOPIA, Jan. 20.—[By Courier to Mogadishu, Italian Somaliland.]—Jan. 24.—(AP)—Italy's "Hell on Wheels" column of the southern army climaxed a daring six day drive through the heart of the Ethiopian army today by occupying the undefended village of Neghelli, capital of Galla Borana.

The capital, only a stockaded village, was deserted. Gen. Rodolfo Graziani, commander of the southern Fascist army, personally led his men into Neghelli—mounted on a truck. Interiors of houses were strewn with débris, indicating the Ethiopians had evacuated hastily.

[The following dispatch from Barron was from Filtu, Ethiopia, Jan. 17, relayed by courier to Mogadishu and filed there yesterday.]

High Italian officials said the army of Ras Desta Demtu was completely disbanded and that the Ras and his Belgian adviser are fleeing on mule-back.

Giarsei and Sadei have been occupied by the Italian Dawa Parma column, while the Ganale Dorya column has taken over Filtu and its wells.

This motorized column of armored cars and tanks, equipped with machine guns and mountain cannon, within eighty hours routed the Ethiopian defenses from Dolo to 110 miles into the interior.

We passed many Ethiopian dead scattered over the veldt. Soldiers during their advance banked their knapsacks and supplies on the sides of the truck as bulwarks against bullets which fell like hail.

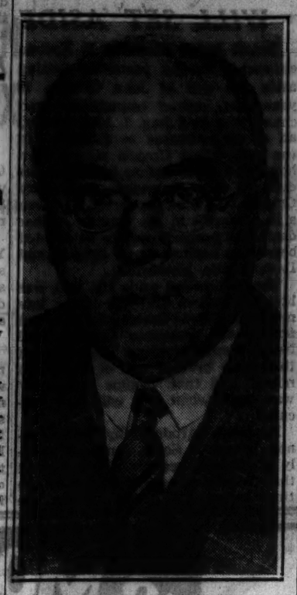
FRENCH PREMIER



ALBERT SARRAUT.

SEE NEW FRENCH CABINET AS BAD NEWS FOR ITALY

Sarraut Names Pro-British Flandin Foreign Chief.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 24.—A definite break with the foreign policy of the ousted premier, Pierre Laval, and a sharp swing back toward the league of nations were seen here tonight following the formation of a new French cabinet by Albert Sarraut.

With Pierre-Etienne Flandin, noted for his pro-British tendencies, as foreign minister, and Joseph Paul-Boncour, who once called Premier Mussolini of Italy a "carnival Caesar," as minister of state concerned chiefly with league affairs, the new government is expected to take a stand against Italy much firmer than Laval's.

With the committee of 18 scheduled to meet again shortly in Geneva to vote on an oil embargo against Italy, this is considered of real importance in diplomatic circles here.

Fantastic Cabinet.

Outside of its foreign policy, there is nothing notable about the Sarraut cabinet except the almost fantastic juxtaposition of politicians who have nothing in common save a desire to hold a portfolio.

The heterogeneous nature of the cabinet is nicely symbolized by the presence of Paul Thellier as minister of agriculture and Maxence Bibie as undersecretary of state for labor. Thellier is a youngster in parliament who distinguished himself in a recent farm debate by a scintillating speech supporting Laval's policies. Bibie, on the same day, made a violent attack on Laval's farm policy.

The new cabinet is considerably more to the left than Laval's because it includes Marcel Deat, chief of the Neo-Socialists, as minister of air, and Jean Zay, leader of the Young Turk extreme left faction of the Radical Socialist party, as the premier's undersecretary.

Franc Policy the Same.

On the other hand it retains as finance minister, Marcel Regnier, who is committeed to defend the franc and the Laval financial decree laws, which are detested by the left.

Political prophets concede the Sarraut cabinet a majority in its first appearance but differ as to its chances of lasting until the elections this spring. Theoretically the presence in the cabinet of Flandin, president of the big center party, the Democratic Alliance, together with such representatives of the left center and left as Yvon Delbos, minister of justice; Camille Chautemps, minister of public works; Paul-Boncour and Deat should give Sarraut a huge majority.

It is quite possible, however, that Flandin will be disowned by his party and that the cabinet will get no real support from the center.

HOUSE DELAYS ACTION ON NEUTRALITY BILL; FLAG ISSUE RAISED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Approval of the neutrality bill was delayed in the house today by the discovery that the administration measure as it stands would not bar use of the American flag by warring nations.

Chairman Sam McReynolds [Dem., Tenn.] of the house foreign relations committee made the discovery. After hurried consultations he reported the omission was inadvertant. He said the provision was in the neutrality bill passed at the last session and in other neutrality bills submitted to the committee.

"I plan to have a hearing on Monday to consider the proposal," McReynolds said. "The committee will call several naval officers to testify. The committee then will decide whether the provision should be inserted in the bill."

McReynolds said he expects to have the bill reported out by the committee Monday or Tuesday. Meanwhile the senate foreign relations committee is far from agreement on the administration measure.

MOSCOW CLAIMS JAPAN PREPARES FOR AN INVASION

Eyes Military Operations Around Mongolia.

MOSCOW, Jan. 24.—(AP)—The Red Star, organ of the Russian war commissariat, today accused Japan of preparing for military operations against the soviet union through the encirclement of outer Mongolia.

The newspaper said the Japanese, by making inner Mongolia "a Japanese colony," commanded the principal approaches to outer Mongolia. This movement, said the Red Star, would put Japanese troops in a position to attempt cutting off Russia's far eastern army. It quoted Prime Minister Gendun of outer Mongolia as reporting to the great Khuralu, or Mongolian peoples' congress:

"The Japanese have approached close to our frontier and are preparing for war against the Mongolia peoples' republic and the soviet union."

Some parts of the Trans-Siberian railway, the all-important connecting link between western Russia and the far eastern military centers of the soviet union, are only 100 miles from the outer Mongolian border.

Border Clashes Grow.

TOKIO, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Numerous new frontier incidents between the Japanese-advised state of Manchukuo and soviet-influenced outer Mongolia drove the east Asian border controversy today toward an apparent climax.

A Domei [Japanese] News agency dispatch from Hsinking, capital of Manchukuo, said the recurring clashes brought a vigorous protest from the Manchukuoan foreign office to Outer Mongolia—considered by officials as a virtual "final warning."

The Hsinking protest called for "immediate and complete withdrawal of all Outer Mongolian troops from Manchukuo territory."

"If the Outer Mongolian government disregards this demand," the note said, "the Manchukuoan government will not be responsible for the consequences."

Border Violation Charged.

The latest fighting was reported to have taken place Wednesday at Heilumuto, 60 miles southwest of Manchuli, a town in northwestern Heilungkiang province, Manchukuo, on the Chinese Eastern railway.

The Manchukuoan version of the incident was that 100 Outer Mongolian troops crossed the border on a raid, the details and outcome of which were not disclosed here.

The last fortnight has brought reports of several frontier incidents, both southwest of Manchuli and about Lake Bor.

Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia alike have accused each other of raids across the border, on the exact lines of which the two states apparently differ as much as 25 miles at some points.

[Soviet dispatches from Ulan Bator, outer Mongolia, to Moscow reported that a Japanese-Manchukuoan detachment was driven back into Manchukuo after attacking a Mongolian border post in the latest frontier clash. One Manchukuoan soldier was reported to have been killed and two Mongolian border guards taken prisoners to Manchukuo.]

RUSSIA DROPS CALL FOR WORLD REVOLT ON HER NEW COINS

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Jan. 24.—For the first time since the bolsheviks overthrew the czar and started turning out their own money, the slogan for a world revolution has disappeared from the face of the coins.

All soviet money in the past, both coins and bills, bore the slogan from the communist manifesto, "Proletariat of the world unite."

The new ten, fifteen and twenty kopek pieces, made of nickel and just put into circulation, carry on the face a large square-cut numeral, wreathed in wheat with the date 1935 below. On the back is the official seal of the soviet union, a hammer and sickle wreathed in wheat, with U. S. S. R. beneath.

This move is regarded as another example of definite soviet government policy away from a world revolution and toward promotion of the spirit of nationalism and love of the homeland.

British Miners Accept Pay Increase; Strike Averted

LONDON, Jan. 24.—(AP)—The British miners' national delegate conference, acting to avert a threatened general coal strike, today voted to accept a revised wage offer by mine owners in settlement of the dispute. The vote was 360,00 to 112,000. The terms of the offer will raise a miner's pay one shilling [about 25 cents] a day. The miners had demanded an increase of two shillings a day.

LEAGUE COUNCIL FAILS TO CREATE PLAN TO END WAR

GENEVA, Jan. 24.—(AP)—The 19th session of the league of nations council adjourned tonight without advancing settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian war.

Experts who will examine the effectiveness of existing sanctions against Italy will meet next Wednesday. Governmental oil experts, appointed to decide whether an oil sanction is practicable, will meet Feb. 3.

Before adjournment the council adopted unanimously a resolution designed to settle the dispute between Russia and Uruguay over the latter's breaking off of diplomatic relations. The resolution called upon the two nations to refrain from any act "which might be harmful to the interests of peace and to the resumption of their diplomatic relations in the future."

Another problem of concern was removed when Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, announced that the free city of Danzig would observe decisions of the league council, which has supervision of it. Sean Lester, league high commissioner for Danzig, had reported that the Danzig senate, overwhelmingly Nazi, failed to regard council instructions and the constitution. The senate, it said, will revoke decrees endangering the freedom of the press and freedom of the associations and conform to the spirit of the constitution.

ORDERS VERDICT FOR KELLOGG IN $250,000 SUIT

Judge Says Mrs. Dean Fails to Prove Damage.

Judge Ray D. Henson of Johnston City, sitting in the Superior court here, yesterday entered an instructed verdict dismissing the $250,000 slander suit brought by Mrs. Julia Moone Dean, 709 Briar place, against John L. Kellogg, wealthy head of the Warren Seed Cleaning company.

The suit was originally filed in 1928, and Mrs. Dean filed five amended complaints before the case was brought to trial before a jury in Judge Henson's court. The alleged slander was that in 1927 Kellogg referred to her as "a crook and a gold digger."

As a result of his remarks, she asserted, she lost an expected profit of $50,000 on the sale of stock in the Warren company, and likewise lost an expected position at $10,000 a year as personnel manager of the Chuse Engine company of Mattoon, Ill., to which she expected to sell the stock.

Conditions Essential to Damages.

In directing a verdict for Kellogg, Judge Henson stated that even if it were proved that Kellogg made the remark charged against him, and further proved that the comment was untrue, it would be necessary for Mrs. Dean, in order to collect damages, to show further that she had suffered actual damage as a result of the utterance. Holding that she failed to submit such proof, he ordered the suit dismissed.

Judge Henson found from the evidence that only one person who heard Kellogg's remarks, Walter Warren, at that time president of the seed cleaning company, was in a position to block the sale of the stock which Mrs. Dean had an option to sell.

Warren, he found, testified that the reason the sale was not consummated was because Kellogg, who was heavily interested in the company, threatened to withdraw his financial backing if the sale were made, and not because of the remarks of Kellogg about Mrs. Dean.

Notes Absence of Specific Deal.

Judge Henson found also from the evidence that there was no definite arrangement for sale of the stock. The Chuse company, he said, was in financial difficulties, and Mrs. Dean's proposal was a nebulous one to sell the stock through a subscription campaign among Mattoon citizens who were interested in keeping the Chuse plant open to manufacture equipment for the seed cleaning company.

Attorneys J. Fred Reeve and J. V. Martineau, counsel for Kellogg, and E. F. Meier and Charles Haft, representing Mrs. Dean, will appear before Judge Henson next Friday to argue a motion for new trial.

NINE JURORS SEATED TO TRY BLUMENFELD IN LIGGETT SLAYING

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 24.—[Special.] — With nine jurors, three women and six men, chosen, completion of the jury in the trial of Isadore [Kid Cann] Blumenfeld for the machine gun murder of Walter W. Liggett late today went over to next week.

As the first week of the case closed seventy-seven veniremen had been examined by Defense Attorney Thomas McMeekin and by the prosecution. No session of the court was scheduled for tomorrow.

Witnesses, numbering more than 100, were excused by Judge Selover until Tuesday when it became apparent the jury could not be completed this week.

Two bills calling for legislative investigation of crime in Minneapolis went into oblivion tonight when the legislature adjourned its special session. Both died in committee and thus leave the cleanup quiz in the hands of grand jurors who have been studying the situation since the Liggett slaying.

TRIAL OVER HINES $10,000,000 TRUST FUND IS OPENED

Trial of a suit seeking an accounting of the $10,000,000 trust established by the late Edward Hines, lumber magnate, in 1914, began yesterday before Circuit Judge George Fred Rush, who is hearing the case without a jury. The suit, charging mismanagement of the estate and asking the appointment of a receiver, was brought by Mrs. Agnes Hines Burns, 17 East Division street, sister of Mr. Hines, and by three children of another sister. Opening statements were made by attorneys after the court had overruled a motion to dismiss the suit. Named as defendants are Mrs. Loretta A. Hines, the widow; her two sons, Ralph and Charles; F. E. Weyerhauser, and M. L. Hudson, all trustees of the fund. Presentation of evidence will start Monday.

WIDOW'S STORY OF SLAYING ROOT IS GIVEN TO JURY

Takes Stand in Her Own Defense.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Daisy Alexander Root told her murder trial jury here today that the slain Brenton Root was "the only man I ever loved," but that he tortured her with tales of his affairs with other women and "beat" her "time after time."

A few hours after the state introduced her purported confession in which she said she shot the 32 year old son of a Chicago clergyman to death because of his asserted attentions to a red haired night club "cigaret girl," the prosecution rested and the comely 30 year old defendant took the stand.

At adjournment late today Mrs. Root had not reached the point in her story dealing with the actual slaying. Her attorney, A. B. Galloway, has said she will testify she killed her husband in a "brainstorm" of jealousy and because she was "apprehensive for her life."

Takes Son on Leaving.

After saying Root repeatedly tormented her with stories of his affairs with other women, she told the jury that he frequently told her of contracting a disease while "running around."

She said she separated from her husband in April "because he made it so impossible for me I could not stay any longer." She said she took her son, George, 4, with her.

Mrs. Root said Root talked to her frequently afterward of Lucile Underwood, 19 year old "cigaret girl," over whom they quarreled at a night club a few hours before the slaying.

Once, she said, she agreed to go back to her husband after he promised he would "be good to me," and "not see Lucile Underwood again."

Tells of Suicide Threat.

"One Sunday morning I asked him to take me somewhere, but he said he had to go somewhere else," Mrs. Root continued. "That afternoon he came over to the house where I was staying and told me he had been to tell Lucile good-by. He said she cried and said she would commit suicide. He laughed about it. I said 'That's no laughing matter, I love you enough to do that.' He said he had been told that so much it meant nothing."

She said Root beat her so severely before the birth of her son, who was in the courtroom, that "he caused a miscarriage." She said Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Root, his mother, and the wife of the Chicago clergyman, "pulled him off of me."

SEEK TO VALIDATE APPOINTMENT OF MEYERING TO JOB

Petitions were being circulated among the judges of the Circuit and Municipal courts yesterday to validate the selection last Friday of ex-Sheriff William D. Meyering as chief probation officer of Cook county. Chief Justice Walter J. La Buy of the Circuit court said the question had been raised on the basis of a lack of quorum or lack of authority on the part of the judges who agreed to the appointment.

The Chicago crime commission and several judges have criticized the appointment of Meyering, the crime commission citing his service as sheriff as indicating he was not qualified for the position. A judicial complaint was that only a few Circuit and Municipal judges participated with a group of Superior court judges in the selection of Meyering.

Chief Justice La Buy said yesterday that the committees from the three courts had the power to select a chief probation officer only if specifically assigned to this duty by their respective courts. The circulation of petitions and the procurement of signatures of additional judges were expected to cure any legal defect in the appointment. The chief justice asserted that a sufficient number had signed to insure Meyering's right to the position, effective Feb. 1. Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude said he asked to be recorded as voting against the Meyering appointment.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm By Bob Becker

Smoker's Pipe Freezes

January 24, 1936.

WHEN it gets so cold that a worker on the Tribune Experimental farm finds that his pipe freezes up so he can't enjoy a smoke, then it truly can be said that it has been a "mite cool" in the country during the last few days. Andy, one of the workers on the Yorkville farm, is the one who has been complaining about the low temperatures and how it affected his pipe.

He was working around the place in spite of bitter temperatures. His hands got cold and his ears and nose were getting nipped, but all was well until the stem of his pipe wouldn't draw. It just naturally froze up.

For a few minutes there was a question in Andy's mind about the reason for the failure of his trusty pipe. But after he had built a miniature "bonfire" under the stem and it began to function again, there wasn't any doubt that it had frozen up.

The boys on the farm have been talking about the weather and hoping that the mercury wouldn't drop right out of the bottom of the thermometers. Yesterday morning the thermometer at Clarence's house showed 21 below zero, but Louis Thurow reported 26 below because his mercury combination was exposed to the winds.

Although it was no picnic getting out in such weather, the boys put on plenty of clothes, including heavy woolen socks, sweaters, and ample covering for their ears and did all the chores as usual. However, in addition to the regular schedule of work the cold weather brought several extra jobs to be done.

Besides cows to be milked, hogs to be fed, eggs to be gathered, 442 steers to be given their regular feedings, and horses and lambs to be looked after, the low temperatures meant extra work to keep the pipe lines open from the hydraulic ram.

The old hydraulic ram fought its part of the cold weather battle with but little help . . . pumping spring water up the hill to the barns. But there was trouble in keeping those pipe lines functioning.

Another job was chopping ice out of the watering trough for the steers. Cold or no cold, the Herefords insist on drinking water. I noticed that the boys would work at their different chores until they got very cold and then they'd slip into the kitchen to hug the stove for a few minutes or else go to one of the sheds where a fire was going. Then back they'd go to work again.

The steers didn't seem to mind the cold very much. Of course, they added a new kind of decoration as a result of the low temperatures . . . a light coat of frost on their backs. But when the dinner bell sounded and it was time for them to come out of their shelter to get a meal of silage, they snapped into it so quickly that the same old crowding and pushing for a good spot next to the feed trough was evident.

Binks seems to be the only animal on the farm that really was baffled by the cold spell. His drinking pan froze up solid, much to the fox terrier's bewilderment. The pan, which always contains drinking water for him, is in the kitchen about 10 feet from the stove. The dog drank out of this pan the other night when the big sub-zero wave was creeping up on Chicagoland. When morning came Binks went out in the kitchen for a drink and found a quarter of an inch of ice on the water.

ORDERS $150,000 JOHN CRESCIO WILL SET ASIDE

Circuit Judge Benjamin P. Epstein entered a verdict yesterday setting aside the will of John Crescio, 78 years old, retired commission merchant, who died Aug. 7, 1934, leaving an estate estimated at $150,000. In the will, which Crescio signed in a hospital a week before his death, he directed that his widow, Mrs. Mary Crescio, 5934 Superior street, be given a life interest in the estate. At her death the property was to be divided between a nephew, David Crescio, and David's wife, Katherine.

The suit to set aside the will was brought by two brothers of the late merchant, David Crescio, 5232 Crystal street, and Pasquale Crescio, 2123 North Kenneth avenue. They charged that their brother was of "unsound mind" and that "undue influence" was used when the will was executed.

Evidence introduced by their attorney, Hirsch E. Soble, consisted mainly of hospital records which showed that Crescio was delirious part of the time before his death. Under the court's ruling the widow will receive all of the personal property and one-third of the real estate. The remainder of the estate will be shared by the two brothers and other nieces and nephews.

PRISONER DYING AFTER 62 DAYS WITHOUT FOOD

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Officials of the jail at Fozharevats claimed today that Prisoner Svetozar Lukich set a hunger strike record by refusing food for 62 days.

He drinks water, but Dr. Dragutin Yankovich, the prison physician, insisted the prisoner has not eaten since Nov. 23. He was reported near death tonight. Lukich is protesting a life term imposed for murder.

Although Lukich may have set a record for Jugo-Slavia, it is not a world one. Terence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, in a famous hunger strike died after going without food for 74 days in the Cork jail in 1920. He was protesting a two year sentence for sedition and his death caused bitter anti-English sentiment in Ireland.

Facts About Brandy
The finest brandies are distilled near the town of Cognac, France. French brandies are therefore called "cognacs." Like whiskey, brandy improves and mellows with aging in the wood. It is in the wood only that it develops the rich bouquet, the delicate flavor, and the softness which distinguish it from all other spirits.
The quality of bottled Cognacs is generally indicated by stars and by initials V. O. (for very old), etc. However, there are no fixed standards for the meaning of the stars, so that the best method of judging value is the character of the source that ships them.
Applejack is a popular brandy made from the juice of apples.

BOGUE AND 3 AIDS FREED BY JURY IN GEM THEFT HOAX

Confessed Robbers Win on Entrapment Plea.

CRIMINAL COURTS.

Joseph Johnson, larceny, sentenced to one to ten years in the penitentiary; Tim Taylor, attempt to commit robbery, sentenced to one to five years; Woodrow Flowers, Waddell Merriweather and James Flowers, robbery, sentenced to one to twenty years; Robert Mitchell and Bennie Fuller, larceny, sentenced to one to ten years, by Judge Denis J. Normoyle.

Meyer Bogue, paroled convict and erstwhile government and police informer, and three fellow defendants who aided him in staging a fake $35,000 jewelry holdup were found not guilty of robbery by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Cornelius J. Harrington yesterday. The jurors reached their verdict after an hour and a half of deliberation.

The other defendants were James Brezak, 2947 Emerald avenue, also a paroled convict; Patrick J. Sullivan, bartender in a tavern at 4210 Emerald avenue, and Harry Malin, 1208 South 57th court, Cicero.

These three and Bogue were released soon after the verdict was returned, but Bogue was immediately rearrested on a robbery indictment returned in 1931. He was released again, however, after it was found that he had aided the state in the prosecution of other indictments in the 1931 robbery case and had been promised immunity.

Victim Robbed in Loop.

The robbery for which the four were tried occurred last Dec. 8 at Monroe street and Wabash avenue. The victim was Milton Jackson, vice president of the Simon Brothers Diamond company of New York. Bogue pointed out Jackson as the intended victim and Brezak, Sullivan, and Malin robbed him of his sample case containing the jewelry, mostly diamonds.

Bogue was arrested two days later by Lieut. Thomas Kelly of the state's attorney's police as the former convict was about to make contact with Meyer Gordon and Irving Hornstein, former jewelers, in their room in a south side hotel. Bogue told the police that Hornstein and Gordon had promised him $6,500 for the stolen gems.

Police then learned that Bogue was in the employ of the Jewelers' Protective association as a stool pigeon. Bogue confessed that he had staged the robbery in order to impress his employers with his value. He named Brezak, Malin, and Sullivan and they also were arrested.

Charge Entrapment.

At their trial the men contended that the robbery was committed with the tacit consent of the police department—that it never was considered as an actual robbery in which the loot was to be disposed of in the regular under world manner—an allegation that the police indignantly denied. The defendants charged the police with entrapment, a plea that is valid in law, according to Judge Harrington's instructions to the jury.

Bogue has a prison record dating back to 1907. In 1930 he started serving a three year term in the Indiana prison at Michigan City. There he met Brezak. After his release he became acquainted with John Dillinger and his gang, and at one time he was ready to testify that Dillinger was in Florida when bank robbers shot and killed Policeman William O'Malley in East Chicago. Later Bogue became an informer for Indiana officials and the government in the search for Dillinger.

WOMAN WOUNDED BY POLICE FILES 2 SUITS FOR $50,000

Mrs. Josephine Blortzu, 52 years old, 14519 Halsted street, Riverdale, filed two suits for $50,000 each yesterday in the Circuit court against eleven officials and policemen of the village of Riverdale and three physicians.

Mrs. Blortzu was shot by police who entered her home on Oct. 21, 1935, to arrest her husband, Emil. Subsequently she was adjudged insane and committed to the Elgin State hospital, but on Nov. 29 was found sane and released by Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg in a habeas corpus proceeding.

In one suit Mrs. Blortzu asks $50,000 damages for assault from Frank Maratz, Riverdale police chief, Assistant Chief Frank Stieman, and Patrolman Lester Broockfeld. The other suit charges that her commitment to the asylum was engineered to avoid legal responsibility for the assault, and names the three policemen, Village President William J. Clausen, seven other Riverdale officials; Dr. J. H. Kollar, who signed the insanity petition, and Drs. M. T. Koenig and H. J. Gahagan of the psychopathic hospital staf.

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged intestines or constipation.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets help the intestines in a soothing, healing way. When the bowels are performing their natural functions, people rarely suffer from indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Try Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief.

YOUNG HUSBAND HELD AS SLAYER OF WIFE IN FIRE

Bottle of Anesthetic Brings Charge.

Ithaca, Mich., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Sheriff William Nestle arrested George Blank, farmer and Sunday school superintendent, today on a charge of murdering his wife by setting fire to a chair in which she lay unconscious from an anesthetic. The arrest climaxed a three weeks' investigation of Mrs. Blank's death.

Blank, 24 year old adopted son of a well-to-do Maple Rapids family, denied the charge, insisting his wife died from burns she suffered when the chair, into which she apparently sank after a stove explosion, became ignited.

Demands an Examination.

Blank demanded an examination, which Justice Howard A. Potter set for Feb. 3. State Senator Edward W. Fehling of St. Johns was retained as his attorney.

Mrs. Blank, Michigan State college graduate and an expectant mother, was found burned to death in the home, near Middleton, Jan. 5.

A telephone operator notified sherif's officers she had heard screams over the Blank telephone. Officers went to the home to investigate. Lloyd Cook, a neighbor, had already reached there and told them he found Blank in a snowbank outside the house, apparently semi-conscious, and his wife dead.

Says He Was at Barn.

Blank told officers he was at his barn when he heard an explosion. Reaching the house, he found the living room in flames, he said, vainly tried to pull his wife to safety and then attempted to call his foster father on the telephone.

Sherif Nestle said he based the charge on his investigation which showed there were no marks of the fire on Blank's clothing, and on the finding of a chloroform bottle in a stove. A kerosene bottle stood in its usual place, he said, contradicting the theory that Mrs. Blank's clothing was ignited when she poured oil on the fire.

The couple was married in 1933.

144 Police and Firemen, Retired, Sue for Old Jobs

Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson filed yesterday in the Superior court a petition for mandamus seeking to compel the city to reinstate 133 policemen and 11 firemen who were retired Jan. 1 under the new compulsory age retirement act. A total of 190 policemen and firemen, including 23 police captains and 12 division marshals and battalion chiefs in the fire department, went into retirement under the act. The petition asserts that the retirement act gives discretionary power to the heads of the fire and police departments, and is therefore discriminatory and violative of the civil service act.

Ceremony Dec. 9

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Asserting she had overindulged in liquor and could remember no marriage ceremony, Mrs. Marie Flynn Riker, wealthy young widow, won an annulment of her marriage to Edwin J. [Eddie] Tierney, Hollywood dance director. The ceremony took place in Yuma, Ariz., last Dec. 9, after a party in celebration of the marriage of Mrs. Riker's sister, Kitty O'Dare.

SLAIN ROBBER IS IDENTIFIED AS HOLDUP KILLER

The body of an unidentified bandit, who was shot and killed Thursday night when he tried to hold up a grocery at 6204 Irving Park boulevard, was identified yesterday as that of the robber who fatally wounded Albert S. Groshon, 45 years, a hotel clerk, last June 1. Groshon died in the County hospital on Jan. 19.

Mrs. Evelyn Rabbit, 30 years old, cashier in the Hawthorne Arms hotel, 3434 Broadway, where Groshon was employed as a clerk, identified the bandit's body at the county morgue. The bandit had taken $12 from Groshon and was fleeing when Groshon fired at him. The gunman turned and fired, wounding Groshon in the abdomen.

The bandit was killed Thursday night by August Maurin, owner of the grocery at the Irving Park boulevard address. Two men entered the store and ordered Maurin's wife, Grace, to hand over the contents of the cash register. Maurin fired from the rear of the store, killing one of the men. His companion escaped.

SHURTLEFF SIGNS DECREE TO PUT 17 STRIKERS IN JAIL

Circuit Judge E. D. Shurtleff, sitting at Rockford yesterday, signed a decree sentencing 17 striking employés of the Oakes Products company, North Chicago automobile accessory concern, to jail terms for violation of an anti-violence injunction obtained by the company.

At the same time the judge entered a stay of sentence and granted Attorney Joseph Bishop of Waukegan seven days in which to perfect an appeal from the sentences, imposed for contempt of court. Judge Shurtleff imposed the sentences a week ago at Waukegan.

British Ship Burns at Sea; Boats Pick Up Crew of 32

TOKIO, Jan. 25 [Saturday.]—(AP)—All 32 officers and men from the British freighter Forthbridge were rescued at sea today after abandoning the ship, which was destroyed by fire in the Sea of Japan. The crew, drifting in lifeboats off Oki Island, were picked up by the freighter Kahoku Maru and three motorboats from Saigo, on the island, to which they were taken.

CONVICT THREE MORE IN BREMER KIDNAPING CASE

Life Sentences Given to Two at Once.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—After deliberating less than three hours a federal court jury late this afternoon found three defendants guilty of conspiracy in the $200,000 kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, wealthy St. Paul banker.

Those convicted were Harry Sawyer, St. Paul, alleged "finger man" in the crime; William Weaver, a paroled Arkansas convict, indicted as one of the actual abductors, and Cassius McDonald, Detroit engineer, who was charged with having exchanged part of the ransom money in Cuba.

Two Given Life.

Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye immediately sentenced Sawyer and Weaver to life imprisonment. Sentencing of McDonald was deferred until Feb. 1. The two men sentenced will serve out their terms in prisons to be designated by the United States attorney general.

The case, which began Jan. 9, was the second involving Bremer defendants. Six were convicted and three pleaded guilty previously. Bremer was kidnaped Jan. 17, 1934, and released 22 days later after $200,000 ransom had been paid.

The jury began deliberations at 1:45 p. m. today and announced at 4:29 p. m. that it had reached a verdict. More than half an hour elapsed before the necessary persons could be assembled to hear the verdict.

Ten Minutes for Defense.

The case came to a speedy end when Everett Jennings of Chicago, counsel for McDonald, took only ten minutes to sum up the defense for the gray haired Detroiter.

George F. Sullivan, United States district attorney, shortened the government's rebuttal to a mere summary of the case. Judge Nordbye then charged the jury and gave the fate of the three men into the jury's hands.

Jennings, the last defense attorney to argue, declared the government had not shown that money exchanged by McDonald in Cuba was Bremer ransom money, or that McDonald knew it was such. The government charged McDonald exchanged part of the $200,000 ransom for the Karpis-Barker gang.

Testimony Is Assailed.

Biting attempts to impeach testimony of Edna [Rabbits] Murray and Bryan Bolton, confessed gang members, marked defense arguments.

Eugene O'Sullivan of Sawyer's counsel and A. Jerome Hoffmann, attorney for Weaver, both made much of the fact that some of Miss Murray's and Bolton's testimony related to conversations with those now dead.

Bolton was the government's star witness. His testimony last spring was a major factor when Arthur [Doc] Barker and four others were convicted on charges similar to those faced by the present defendants.

RAPPAPORT WINS EXECUTION STAY AND AN APPEAL

Justice Francis Wilson of the Illinois Supreme court yesterday granted a supersedeas and writ of error permitting an appeal of the death sentence of Joseph Rappaport, 30 years old, 3430 Douglas boulevard. Rappaport was sentenced for the murder last Oct 8 of Max Dent, an informer who was to have testified against Rappaport in a federal narcotics case. Justice Wilson's action automatically stays the execution of Rappaport, set for Feb. 14 by Judge Joseph Burke in the Criminal court, until the Supreme court disposes of the appeal at its April term.

TUGWELL'S MAGNA CHARTA.

From now on until November you are likely to hear much more from Mr. Farley than from any one else in the revolution except, of course, from Mr. Roosevelt himself. The radio has made the front porch campaign something different from what it was when McKinley received visitors at his home in Canton. The White House front porch now covers the nation. Next to Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Farley will be the fair haired boy. He is the expert in the control room of practical politics, Tammany trained.

As usual when the electorate is to be beguiled the planners and philosophers will retire to their studies and wait results. They come to the front when the returns are in if the returns are favorable. The revolutionary tactics provide that during a campaign they shall be forgotten, but not gone.

It is improbable that much of what another four years of Mr. Roosevelt would mean will be revealed in the public utterances of the New Deal campaigners. Very little of what the first four years were to bring was revealed in 1932. The first four years make it possible to form a better estimate in 1936 for the four years following if for once the Literary Digest poll proved to be wrong.

There are many explicit men in the background of the campaign. They are in the foreground of the administration although not always commanding the lights. Their unobtrusiveness, if not a part of modesty, is of policy. One of them, until recently known to few, Stephen Raushenbush, investigator and instigator of Senator Nye's munitions committee and its attack upon the profit system, described the qualifications of a key or keyhole man when he said that one good man with his wits about him and his eyes open could do more in a government job to bring the masses out against the capitalistic system than a hundred men on the outside.

The chief of the good men with their wits about them in an important government position is Rexford Tugwell, who as Mr. Wallace's assistant bored from within the department of agriculture and produced the triple A. The voter who wants to understand the campaign will read every Democratic political argument in the light of one or another of Mr. Tugwell's statements of social purpose. His planned society is found in his writings. He has compiled the New Deal's "Das Kapital" and its Communist Manifesto.

A reading of Mr. Tugwell's works is recommended to every American who wishes to understand the New Deal. Read also the concluding and prophetic part of Justice Roberts' opinion in the triple A case. Do not conclude that the plans and views are incredible because they may seem fantastic. Remember what already has been attempted.

Mr. Tugwell and his companion planners are waiting at Runnymede with the Magna Charta of the New Deal, waiting for the votes to come to them. Their great charter is not one of liberties but one of restraints, compulsions, controls, and coercions.

BUS SERVICE.

The essential kindliness of the average American citizen can find no better illustration than is afforded by the behavior of the customers of the Chicago Motor Coach company in the rush hours. The service for the most part is wretched. It would not be tolerated in London, Paris, or Berlin. The crowding approximates that in the New York subway and the discomfort is considerably greater because of the absence of head room. A large part of the equipment is obsolete and, indeed, has been obsolete for years. Many months ago the company announced its purpose to purchase new buses, but it has failed to make more than a beginning toward modernization.

The management of the company and the public officials concerned would do well to take an occasional ride on a bus at the rush hour. They would find that though the customers are long suffering their patience is beginning to be exhausted. They are beginning to ask each other where the money goes. They are wondering why the street car company, with two men on a car, can do a little better than make both ends meet while charging only a 7 cent fare. They are comparing taxicab fares from the loop to the bus terminals with the aggregate income of buses on the same runs. Even allowing for the much larger expense of bus operation, the discrepancy seems large. The suspicion is growing that the management might be a good deal more competent than it is or, alternatively, that excessive profits are being made.

The purpose of this editorial is not to assert that the suspicions of the customers are well founded but only to give a friendly warning to the management that in its own interest it had better improve its service.

THE BACHELOR ON THE THRONE.

The beginning of the reign of Edward VIII. finds perplexity in the governing circles of Great Britain, as noted by David Darrah of THE TRIBUNE'S London office. It is confessed by persons of discretion. The imponderable influence of the British crown is derived from the loyalties and attachments of a solid class of people to whom George V. in his latter days had endeared himself. These sentiments are not inalienable. No sentiments which center upon a person are.

When Victoria retired for ten years to nurse her widow's grief in a forbidding seclusion the prolonged period of her retreat while she hid her face from the people caused resentments which questioned the permanence of the dynastic head of government. It proved not to be serious, but then neither were the times threatening for the monarchical institutions in Europe.

Dynastic marriages have lost much of their political importance. The careless Charles II., whose ambitions were satisfied with subsidies from France, tossed India into the lap of Britain by making a Portuguese marriage which brought Bombay as part of the dower of his neglected and unhappy queen. The days when a marriage may build an empire, make and win or lose a war, are gone, but an unmarried king, even when alliances and the hereditary succession are not involved, does not dress the window. One throne is not enough.

The British crown is a domestic institution. Whatever stability it may be thought to give the British political, social, and economic system is derived from the esteem in which it is held by other householders. Brilliance is not demanded of it, might even be dangerous. Conventionality is required. The mores ask for conformity. A royal family with a middle aged bachelor king and a strong willed mother, probably indisposed to accept the dowager estate, falls short of the ideal.

The element most critical of the royal institution, the radical Laborites, will not, it is true, care whether the king is married or unmarried. Opinion and not sentiment governs these opponents of monarchy. There have been random and elusive indications that Edward as prince of Wales was a bit of a radical himself, showing it by the interest he took in the distressed coal mining areas and in slum clearance. In one inspection of hovels, according to report, his face flushed and he exploded with "This is a damned shame." Menshevist tendencies in a prince of Wales would have little meaning in a king of Great Britain or, if they had, would do little good either with the radicals or with the classes who look to the throne for the idealization of their habits, principles and moralities.

EASTERN TIME FOR CHICAGO.

So much has been said about the authority of the interstate commerce commission to establish standard time zones that many citizens are laboring under the misunderstanding that that body will decide at a hearing to be held in the near future whether or not Chicago will adopt eastern standard time. It is the purpose of this editorial to clear the atmosphere.

If a citizen elects to appear before the interstate commerce commission he will have two alternatives.

[a] To tell the commission that public convenience demands that railway and city clocks should be set to the same time.

[b] To tell the commission that public convenience demands that railway and city clocks should differ to the extent of the one hour spread between central and eastern time.

The interstate commerce commission will not offer a forum for argument as to the merits or demerits of the action of the city council in decreeing eastern time for Chicago effective March 1. Under the law the commission must confine itself to its regulation of railways only and cannot even express an opinion as to the propriety of the decision of the citizens of Chicago as expressed by their representatives.

The reader can readily work out the solution of his difficulties for himself if he will start with the basic facts of the case—that any order that may be issued by the commission will be directed to the railways alone. It can tell them to go along with the city's eastern time standard or remain on central time—and that is the extent of its authority.

LET'S HAVE A CONTEST.

The friendly criticism of Vice President Binkerd of the Baldwin Locomotive works, as recently printed in the Voice of the People, is much appreciated. Readers may recall that THE TRIBUNE hailed railway experiments with Diesel power as an omen of rejuvenation while Mr. Binkerd held to the theory that they should rehabilitate their steam power, which, he asserts, has made vast strides in the last ten or fifteen years.

Nothing could be better for the railroads than hearty competition between the steam engines and the Diesels, as well as electric locomotives. With the reviving interest in common carrier transportation that is being exhibited by the public, there is little doubt that each will find its sphere of superiority in the railroad of the future.

Editorial of the Day

[Rock Island Argus.]

Analyzing the ownership of wealth in this country, W. J. Cameron, spokesman for Henry Ford, says in substance that the "more abundant life" cannot be achieved by plowing under more crops or curtailing production. Abundance cannot come from scarcity, it is argued.

Refuting claims that 90 per cent of the wealth in the United States is owned by 2 per cent of the people—an ancient fallacy—Mr. Cameron makes use of United States government figures to show that 72 per cent of the nation's wealth is held by ordinary folks who are not in the "big money" class at all.

"The chief trouble," Mr. Cameron says, "is that there is not enough wealth. Our immediate and pressing job is to create more and more and render it easily accessible; create so much more that the very pressure and overflow will force adequate distribution."

This plan may not be practical in every industry and industry as a whole may not think favorably of it, but it appears to be more feasible in the opinion of many people than the plan of trying to create a more abundant life through scarcity.

Suppose we elect a President of the United States who says "constetooshun" when some of the great statesmen of England come over to visit us. My, wouldn't our faces be red! It would ruin us. Or, as the people who pronounce it "constetooshun" would say, it would "roon" us. Which would be terrible nooze; I meant news. Gosh! I've got to be careful or they'll have me talking that way.

HOMECOMING: 1870.

Morning crept across the lonely land
Reluctantly; beneath white sky the snow
Chalk marked weed and tree and penciled band
Of black along the creek. The wagon's slow
Lurching clamor ceased.

Small welcome here
For weary, timid bride! No ruddy glow
Or yellow curl from chimney stack, no dear
Familiar voice or warmth of wide flung door!
The tall lad watched her face with anxious fear.

She stood entranced, her meager household store
About her feet, her Paisley shawl a hood
To frame her dreaming eyes. He asked no more;
Assured that work and love are very good
He bundled in the first armload of wood.

Can't do it, Agatha Ann; too long. And besides if you put in the injunction about stopping at stop signs there are so many more warnings that various members would want put in that the name of the club would run a column long or maybe two columns. And it isn't necessary; anybody who is so careful of his own and others' safety that he refuses the temptation to "step on it" or "give her a shot in the arm" and so on can be counted on to stop at stop signs, to be sure the lane is clear before he starts to pass the car in front, not to pass another auto on a hill or curve and to keep on his own side of the road. And if a driver is reckless, or a speeder or a cocktail hound, he might be a member of a safety club that had a name three city blocks long and it wouldn't do a bit of good. He'd go bounding right through it as suddenly as he's liable to go cavorting through his windshield some day if he doesn't mend his ways. And if he's anything like me he'd just hate to go through a windshield.

WHY HAVE SMALLPOX?

IT is difficult for us to realize that prior to the discovery of vaccination by Edward Jenner—an English country doctor who practiced at Berkeley—smallpox was much more common than measles is today. Furthermore, it was a devastating disease. Nearly every one had it during childhood and one-third of those afflicted died. A century and a half ago a high percentage of all deaths were due to this disease, and of the victims who survived some were blind and most were badly disfigured with deeply pitted scars. The English historian, Macaulay, called it the most terrible of all messengers of death. All this was before the era of vaccination; before people learned of a procedure that could protect practically every one against this dread scourge.

In spite of vaccination, however, we have not stamped out smallpox. If every person in the world could be vaccinated for a few years in succession the disease would die out in human beings because it could not find soil on which to grow.

The reason we do not now have widespread epidemics is because most of us have been vaccinated. It is only among the unvaccinated that it can be spread. If this precaution is neglected by large numbers of people for a few years, one case of smallpox may breed a serious epidemic. In 1920 in Denver there were 953 cases of smallpox with one death; in 1921 there were 924 cases with 37 deaths; in 1922, 802 cases with 247 deaths.

This is an illustration of the increase in virulence of the infection among unvaccinated or unsuccessfully vaccinated individuals. It is estimated that there are now from ten to fifteen million unvaccinated persons in the United States and in addition many previously vaccinated have lost their immunity because the operation was performed so long ago that protection is not now certain.

The disease appears about two weeks after exposure. There is usually a chill followed by a fever, although in children a convulsion may usher in the infection. Severe headache, backache, and vomiting are the rule, and a deeply congested, red, sore throat is quite characteristic. About the third day red spots and pimples appear on the face and hands, then on other parts of the body. As soon as the eruption reaches its height the patient feels comfortable and the sense of illness declines.

Within a day or two there is a return of the fever while pus is forming in the numerous skin lesions. Sometimes the disease is so mild that but few pimples will appear. Nevertheless, a severe epidemic may follow a single mild case.

Modern methods of preparing smallpox vaccine render its use one of the safest procedures known to medical science. There is rarely much soreness or illness and the patient generally can go about his regular duties. The best time for vaccination is infancy—during the second six months of life—as babies and young children suffer less discomfort than do adults. It is not safe to assume that vaccination is protective for longer than five years and whenever smallpox appears in a community those who have not had a successful vaccination within this period should be revaccinated.

If a "take," as we say, follows, that fact proves that immunity had been lost. If, on the other hand, a small red spot appears, only to disappear within a few days without a blister and without soreness, the individual may be regarded as fully protected.

Should smallpox occur the most important factor is isolation, as the disease is spread by discharges from the mouth, the nose, and the throat, or through contact with material from the skin pustules. It is believed that it can be communicated until the skin is free from scales or crusts.

If one has smallpox today it is because a readily available form of protection has been overlooked or neglected.

CHAPPED HANDS.

E. S. writes: During cold weather my hands become chapped and rough. What is the cause and what can I do?

REPLY.

The chapping of hands in cold weather is usually due to a lowered amount of fat in the skin. There is a diminished secretion of oily material from the sebaceous glands. As a result, the skin dries readily and is more sensitive to the alkali found in some soaps. Prevention consists in the use of a mild soap that does not contain free alkali. After washing the hands thoroughly in warm water a small amount of sterile cold cream or olive oil may be rubbed into the skin. Hand lotions that contain glycerin make the condition worse, as glycerin has a pronounced drying effect.

If your hands are red and rough it may be well to use the oil treatment at least twice daily—morning and evening. On retiring, cover the hands with cotton gloves.

NOSEBLEED.

F. M. R. writes: My 5 year old daughter is subject to hemorrhage of the nose; sometimes while asleep and at other times when hit on the nose. What is the cause? Is it dangerous? Is there a cure?

REPLY.

Nosebleed is a symptom of a large number of widely diverse conditions. There is an old saying that recurrent hemorrhage from the nose may be a warning, a remedy, or a disease. In children it is a common symptom of adenoids. In many cases it is due to purely local causes. If nosebleed occurs frequently it is wise to consult a physician.

When caring for nosebleed the child should be kept as quiet as possible. A towel wet in cold water and held to the nose is helpful. Cotton packs placed in the nostrils may be of value. Often mild nosebleeds stop of themselves.

MERCURY.

M. T. writes: What are the after effects of mercury?

REPLY.

Too much mercury will produce mercurial poisoning, of which there are three forms: [1] acute, occurring generally from mercuric chloride; [2] subacute, especially from therapeutic overdosage; and [3] chronic, which may occur medicinally but is seen especially in industrial poisoning.

Permanent damage to the kidneys may follow a large dose of bichloride of mercury. Mild poisoning will be followed by inflammation of the mouth and of the colon.

CREAKING JOINTS.

B. L. writes: What is the cause of creaking joints in elbow, jaw, and fingers?

REPLY.

Too little synovial fluid [the joint lubricating liquid] is usually responsible. There may be a mild arthritis. The prolonged application of moist heat will help remedy the condition.

From Across the Sea

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—The Incorporated Association of Head Masters devoted a large part of a session at a conference recently held here to the consideration of physical education in schools.

Capt. S. J. Parker of the board of education surveyed the results of the experiment conducted at Liverpool institute during 1933 and 1934 and discussed the future of the physical education movement.

The Liverpool experiment, he said, consisted of taking two classes of 29 second-year boys, as nearly as possible equal in mental and physical quality. The board asked the school to give one of these classes a daily period of 45 minutes of gymnastic work on each of five days a week, the necessary time being deducted from their study of Latin, French, English, and mathematics. The other class continued its normal program of work.

At the end of the second term the head master sent in an interim report. He said that not only had the gymnastic class increased much more than the others in height, weight, and chest measurement, but that in mental attainments it had gained on the average 14 months in mental age, as against the 2¼ months of the normal class.

At the winter examinations the gymnastic group had led in all subjects except Latin. For detentions on account of bad home work it had lost only three marks, as compared with the normal classes' 69.

In December, 1934, the head master reported he was convinced of the experiment's success and was going to give five periods of gymnastic week to his best second-year class.

Experiments in physical education are now in progress or contemplated at City school, Lincoln; Latymer school, Edmonton; Brockley County school, Harrow County school, Walthamstow Secondary school, Kilburn Grammar school, and a secondary school in Monmouthshire. At Lincoln three classes were to be used for the experiment. One did gymnastic work, one continued its normal work, and one studied relief subjects or read during the periods the first class was occupied with gymnastics.

Capt. Parker differentiated between physical education and physical training. He said physical training was "jerks," and that was not what the board wanted to see. They wanted to educate boys in all physical movements that were performed either in or out of school.

There are training colleges which equip women teachers, who rank equally with academic teachers, to do this work for girls, but for men there are at present only the Carnegie Physical Training college of Leeds and a training college at Dunfermline.

Military instructors are not a satisfactory substitute, Capt. Parker said. He said something would have to be done to meet the great demand for physical education instructors, particularly in view of the promise in "certain manifestos" that there would be a move forward in physical education. Such education, he declared, is dangerous in inexpert hands.

There were still, he said, secondary schools where the premises were inadequate and instructors were unqualified, particularly in the case of boys' schools.

The board of education, Capt. Parker asserted, is aware of the difficulties, but its recommendation was that three school periods a week should be given to physical training, plus a fourth for physical games or swimming. Many schools now give only one period a week to gymnastics and one to games. Only the one games period is being given to examination candidates who particularly need physical recreation, the board of education official concluded.

ESTATE PROBATE.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My uncle died and I was named executor of his will by the court. He left four heirs [all sisters of the deceased]. I retained a lawyer to handle the affairs in court for me. He is going to charge me $100 to represent me and [1] $50 to represent each of the other heirs. 2. He also states that the court will set a fee for him for handling the estate in addition to the above mentioned sums. He has had no trouble with the estate, as there is no claim against it or any contest of the will. This seems exorbitant to me [the estate amounting to about $12,000]. I would like to know [3] if he can do this, and if not, what procedure to follow. I have already paid him $100 for what he has done so far.

J. E. C.

1. Ordinarily it is not necessary for the heirs to be separately represented.

2. The fee allowed by the court for handling the probate is all that should be collected in the ordinary case.

3. If you have an agreement with him, we cannot advise you to advantage without knowing its wording.

NO CREDIT.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is there a law concerning the sale of liquor or beer on credit by taverns and saloons? 2. What is the severest penalty that can be imposed for selling liquor to minors? 3. If there is any law concerning first question what are the penalties for it? D. H. F.

1. Section 41 of article VI of the Illinois liquor control act reads in part as follows: "No person shall sell or furnish alcoholic liquor at retail to any person on credit."

2. First offense, $500; second offense, $1,000 and six months in jail.

3. "If any person shall extend credit for such purpose the debt thereby attempted to be created shall not be recoverable at law."

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROMISE TO PAY.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I intend buying a real estate first mortgage bond on a building not in default. The owner of the building is an old people's home. They have a superintendent for the building. If he signs an agreement that he will pay me back what I paid for the bond, in case of default, will that be legal so I could get my money back? C. C.

We see no reason why his agreement should not be legally binding upon him, but as in the case of any other debt, your chances of collecting would depend upon his assets and income.

TAX EXEMPT SALARIES.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 20.—How many of the hard-pressed, tax-burdened citizens of our nation are aware of the fact that few, if any, of our numerous state, county, and city officials and employés pay any federal income tax on their publicly received salaries? In 1932 there were 358,809 state and county employés, 591,505 city employés, and 1,189,188 employed in public education. It is presumed that none of these salaries were subject to the federal income tax. The total compensation of these employés is given as $533,841,000 for state and county employés, $895,539,000 for city employés, and $1,664,732,000 for those in public education. It is reasonable to presume that a larger number of such public employés will be found on the pay rolls today.

Is there any good reason why these salaries should be exempt? Federal employés pay a federal income tax on their salaries. It's time state, county and city officials and employés paid one on theirs also. WILLIAM F. SPARLING.

STARVED GENIUS.

Sterling, Ill., Jan. 19.—In THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE I read James O'Donnell Bennett's interesting article about the display of Rembrandt's pictures at the Art Institute of Chicago. I wonder if Mr. Bennett or many of his thousands of readers notice how absurd it seems that these pictures of Rembrandt's should be bandied about for fabulous prices among princes, governments, and American millionaires. Rembrandt himself, who gave the pictures all their value, would have been on the "relief list" if they had had one in his day. And what is true of Rembrandt is true of most other great painters, literary men, and inventors. We frequently read of thousands of dollars being paid, nowadays, for the original manuscript of some literary work whose author was only a few jumps away from the bread line when he was alive.

It would be sort of nice if we could have a financial history of the really great geniuses of all the fine arts. Being a great artist is a little like being a saint. You have to be dead a long time before the world discovers that you were either one. C. J. BUTLER.

MEYERING DEFENDED.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—On the contrary, Meyering's appointment as chief probation officer is a happy choice. The political tycoon will get the same slowly measured, courteous treatment he got from Meyering when he was sheriff. Sympathy, understanding and a deep love for fellow men will be for him who deserves help.

Political strabismus is an affliction known to climax with old age. Meyering lost his place in the organization sun because he put loyalty to a friend above party demands.

To say "he left the county jail in a deplorable condition" is an indictment of every grand jury serving during his term, because all grand juries inspected the Cook county jail and reported in most favorable words. When guards had not been paid for seven months, a dangerous condition set up. Meyering organized a commissary for the unpaid men, dug deep into his right-hand pocket and robbed the left for the boys who were worried about the grocer and the rent and the baby. About that time a well planned jail break came to nothing because one of the gang "couldn't do that to Bill Meyering." JOHN G. ROBEL.

THE MORALS OF YOUTH.

Geneva, Ill., Jan. 20.—Today's TRIBUNE prints on its front page in heavy headlines, "Youths Scoff at Morals as Key in Picking Mate." The survey made by Dr. Ray Erwin Baker, professor of sociology at New York university, said no such thing. Reading the article we find the contrary. "They preferred good morals, but weren't emphatic about that." This does not sound like scoffing at morals. Why not lend your influence toward strengthening rather than weakening the intentions of the young toward a cleaner society? Of course, a single standard should prevail, not a lower one where feminine virtue should be eliminated, to match some men's lack of any standard of wholesomeness. JAMES V. STEAGALL, Master Mechanic, State Training School for Girls.

MEAT IMPORTS IN 1935.

Geneva, Ill., Jan. 14.—I was much interested in a story in Monday's TRIBUNE relative to imports of meats and meat animals from other countries during 1935. In other papers I have seen references to these imports as if they were of considerable magnitude, and in most of these cases the tendency is to wallop the New Deal and the AAA.

Now let's look at these import figures. THE TRIBUNE figures show that 9,449,720 pounds of beef and 9,257,841 pounds of pork were imported into the United States in 1935. Big as that amount may seem to be, in neither case would it supply the American table for a single day, for we consume more than 20 million pounds of beef and also of pork every day in the average year.

Now as for the meat animals. The figures show that 400,000 cattle and calves were brought in from other countries, and hogs, weighing a total of 2,426,755 pounds. Converting these animals into the dressed product and adding in the meat figures given above we have a total of around 180 million pounds of meat. In most years we consume over 50 million pounds of meat every day, so that this supply would be the equivalent of less than a four days' supply.

I am not for or against the New Deal. My folks are and always have been Republicans, but I fail to see where there should be much of an outcry on account of imported meats and meat animals.

LESE MAJESTY.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—The contemptible action of the "National Republican Council" in attempting to send through the mails in the form of envelope stickers libelous cartoons of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt deserves the deepest condemnation by all fair-minded, self-respecting citizens. The offenders should be given the full penalty of the law. Such creatures would defame Christ himself if they thought it would yield party advantage. Talk about "inciting class hatred"! The Liberty league and the big boys to whom Fletcher says his prayers are doing more to drive this country into Fascism than all the soapbox orators and secret societies combined. If the Roosevelt activities are wrong, let the critics meet argument with argument.

This incident discloses to what disgraceful depths those will go who desire not recovery but restoration of that oligarchy of greed and special privilege that controled the country through three previous administrations. O. J. L.

TITLES.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Dr. Harshe, director of the Art institute, explains why the picture, "Song of the Lark," has been put in the storeroom. "If this picture was called the 'Song of the Mudhen,' it would never appeal to any one. It's just the idea of the lark, and, so far as I can see, it hasn't even any lark in it."

It seems to me that the titles are the making of a great many pictures—stories too, for that matter. They assist people in understanding the artist's interpretation of his subject.

If "Nude Descending the Stairs" were called "Grandma Descending the Stairs," I'll wager most people wouldn't look twice. "It's just the idea of the nude, and, so far as I can see, it hasn't even any nude in it." And I've been searching for one since 1932. CARLOS CUTLER.

MR. HOOVER AS CRITIC.

Chestnut, Ill., Jan. 21.—A great many people are wondering to whom the Hon. Herbert Hoover has been addressing his talks over the radio and who he thinks will give any weight to anything he says in his vindictive attacks upon the present administration. Is this not the same Herbert Hoover who was President from 1929 to 1933? Is he not the same President who had prosperity just around the corner? It seems that of all the people in these United States who might criticize the present administration Mr. Hoover should be the very last.

It is as if Mr. Charley Retzlaff should have arisen from the canvas a few nights ago and addressed the assembled spectators on the proper way to conduct a prize fight. GEORGE B. MCMANUS.

FARMER IN SPATS TELLS HIS BELIEF IN DRAKE 'TRUST'

Values "Education" He Got at $3,000.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

A spruce young Iowa farmer in spats and double-breasted business suit testified yesterday in ringing tones that he had received enough "education" from the mythical Sir Francis Drake estate deal to justify his investment of almost $3,000 in it. The witness, William Hensel of Auburn, was testifying for the twenty-one remaining defendants, including his younger brother, John, in the Drake mail fraud case on trial before a jury in the court of Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

His bit of impassioned testimony was tossed in as he was being subjected to cross-examination by Assistant United States Attorney Austin Hall. As Hensel proceeded, Prosecutor Hall's face grew pink as question after question failed to shake the witness's poise.

It's the Drake Trust Now.

PROSECUTOR HALL—Do you mean by "education" that you learned all this about the Drake estate was not true? A.—No, sir. O, we knew there was no Drake estate. We're interested in this Drake trust, and I learned how it controls all the finance of the world.

Q.—Did you ever write to England to see if there were any such fund? A.—No, sir. We're satisfied in our minds it's there.

Q.—Did you ever buy cattle and hogs without seeing them? A.—No.

On direct examination by Attorney George M. Crane, who with Edward J. Hess is acting as defense counsel, Hensel said that he, his three brothers, nine sisters, and mother, and "90 per cent of the people around Auburn" were "in the Drake deal."

$2,500 Investment Told.

Guy Doty, retired farmer of Lake City, Ia., a defendant, followed the young farmer to the witness stand. Nervously he swung a foot encased in a high laced shoe such as many of the defendants wear. Long winter underwear was visible under the sock in a neat bulge. Doty told how he had put up $2,500 into the Drake estate for himself and his wife, his children and grandchildren.

In attempting to pin down the witness as to what his understanding of the Drake estate was, Mr. Hall strode up and down before the jury, spoke in an angry tone, and before court adjourned appeared himself bemused and a little bewildered.

Let's See, Now.

Q.—What is this Drake estate? A.—There isn't any.

Q.—Well, what is it then? A.—A financial deal.

Q.—What is the financial deal? A.—What? O let's see. [A long pause, while he stared ceilingward.] It's called the settlement of the Drake estate.

Q.—But there isn't any estate, you say. You mean, then, the settlement of something about which you know nothing? A.—No, sir. It was the settlement——.

Q.—Tell the court and the jury what the settlement is, in terms they can understand. A.—I thought that was plain.

Doty admitted he had received money from Drake donors for a defense fund, and that he had given it to "the boys here for our expenses in stayin' at the hotel."

WOMAN PLUNGES TO DEATH FROM 8TH FLOOR ROOM

Mrs. Jean Moore, 45 years old, was killed yesterday when she apparently leaped from an eighth floor window of the Commonwealth hotel, 2757 Pine Grove avenue. She registered at the hotel on Wednesday, giving her home city as Pittsburgh, Pa. Her body was discovered in an areaway. Both wrists were slashed. In room 832, where she had spent two days, police found a note asking that her sister, Mrs. Samuel Glick, of Clairton, Pa., be notified. A book found among her belongings was entitled "She Made Her Bed," the story of Sylvia Barry who knew that her husband was unfaithful to her.

Elmer Kempf of the Sheridan Plaza hotel, who was once a clerk in the office of Senator James Hamilton Lewis, viewed the body of Mrs. Moore and announced that she was his former wife. He added that the same woman, then known as Mrs. Jeanette Corper, slashed her wrists and then leaped from a window of the Southland hotel at 1330 Hyde Park boulevard on Sept. 5. She recovered from the suicide attempt.

TEACHERS URGED TO ASK FOR THEIR SHARE OF $231,000

James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, yesterday issued an appeal to teachers and other employés of the board to call for their respective shares of $231,000 which the board has been holding for them for more than two years. The money accumulated as a byproduct of the payless pay days of 1931, 1932, and 1933. It consists of $100,000 in unclaimed pay checks and $131,000 in balances which remained after issuing participation certificates, based on a tax warant trust, which were put out in denominations of $25 and higher.

PAYS BRITONS

JOHN FACTOR.

BRITISH ACT ON $1,300,000 PAID BY JAKE THE BARBER

Hearing on Repayment to Clients Begins.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 24.—A British chancery court today opened the hearing on an application asking for instructions on how to dispose of a sum of $1,300,000 which John "Jake the Barber" Factor of Chicago has paid over to reimburse British holders of shares in three firms allegedly promoted fraudulently by Factor.

The application was brought by a senior official receiver for the three firms—the Broad Street Press, Ltd., the Vulcan Copper Mine, Ltd., and the Rhodesia Border Mining Corporation, Ltd.

Referring to Factor as "the notorious share pusher," an attorney for the receiver declared that Factor owes the Broad Street Press about $3,000,000 received in the course "of its fraudulent activities and converted by him to his own use."

Action Started in 1931.

Action was started by "the victims of his frauds" after it was found in 1931 that Factor had placed $2,000,000 in Chicago banks, the attorney asserted. He announced that Factor subsequently agreed to pay out of those funds $1,000,000 in cash and $300,000 in mortgage securities.

The liquidator now has received about $1,300,000 from America, the attorney said, and about $300,000 from other sources.

PAID IN 1932.

Factor's agreement to repay British investors was announced in 1932 after hearings in Federal Judge Wilkerson's court in Chicago. Despite fulfilment of this agreement, the one time west side Chicago barber still faces criminal fraud charges in Britain.

The United States Supreme court ordered him extradited on Dec. 4, 1933, but before the order was carried out Factor was kidnaped by the "terrible Touhy" gang and paid $100,000 ransom for his release. After he appeared in court against the Touhy band the extradition proceedings were unofficially shelved, but the charges have never been stricken.

Factor is reported now to be in San Francisco or Palm Springs, Cal.

DANNY STANTON FREED ON BOND IN WARANT THEFT

Hearing on a charge of receiving stolen city tax anticipation warants against Danny Stanton, 35 years old, 7815 Yates avenue, former Capone gangster, was continued until Feb. 14 when the former beer runner was arraigned before Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in Felony court yesterday. Similar charges against Stanton's wife, Lucille, 25 years old, and his brother-in-law, Robert Bock, were continued to the same date.

Detectives found two tax warants—in denominations of $1,000 and $5,000—in a dresser drawer in Stanton's home after he had been arrested for questioning as to the whereabouts of Charles Yarnowski, wanted for robbery, kidnaping, and murder by the New Jersey authorities. The warants were identified as part of a total of $87,000 stolen from a branch office of the county treasurer on Sept. 7, 1933.

Following the court arraignment Stanton and his wife were released on bonds of $3,500 and $2,500, respectively. Bock was held under $2,500 bond. The continuance was requested by the police, who said they wished more time to investgate.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Prize Award May Puzzle Some Readers

But 'Perish in Their Pride' Is Standard of France.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Perish in Their Pride," by Henry de Montherlant [Knopf, $2.50]. Published on Monday.

"Haven for the Gallant," by Thomas Rourke [Knopf, $2]. Published on Monday.

"Darby and Joan," by Maurice Baring [Knopf, $2]. Published on Monday.

"East Indiaman," by Frank Pollard [Little-Brown, $2]. Published yesterday.

FOUR novels are offered us this week which, while not distinguished, have a certain distinction about them. They are all excellent mill-run fiction.

"Perish in Their Pride" is the most intriguing to the potential reader because its author, Henry de Montherlant, won with it two literary prizes, the prize of the French academy in France and the Heinemann prize in England. The world dearly loves a prize novel, for it offers its readers not only the opportunity of agreeing with the judges but also the stimulating opportunity of disagreeing with them, and there is nothing certain readers enjoy more than to disagree with some one's estimate of a work of art, and the more distinguished that some one is [or the larger the group of judges] the more fun disagreeing. It's human nature.

Here's Opportunity for Such Readers.

Those very human readers will have a very good time with "Perish in Their Pride," for they can well ask what all the shootin's about. The reason they will feel that way probably is the very reason why the book won the French prize, because it is perfectly, completely, exactly in the French tradition. When our own American novelist, Julian Green, became so popular in France with his tales of lives steeped in an emulsion of gloom and doom he was not offering the French something remarkably American but something remarkably French, something so well done in one of their most popular patterns that they were enchanted.

Many American readers found his books surprising and gave him credit for inventing something. What he did, and brilliantly, was to work in an already established French genre.

Book Maintains Atmosphere of Gloom.

"Perish in Their Pride" is more like the early Julian Green novels than anything that American readers who do not read French know. It is the story of three men, two brothers and a nephew, one a banker who suffered agonies when he gave help [not from the pain of parting with money but from the embarrassment of finding himself in the relation of benefactor], to his brother who lived in squalor through an insane anti-social complex, and their nephew who could not work because he could not face human contacts.

Each one of the three men is mad in a quiet way and the author chronicles each detail of their gentle phobias. There is unrelieved—or shall we say completely consistent—gloomy doom from cover to cover of the book, the kind of consistent "atmosphere" which the French find the expression of high art in literature. American readers are inclined to care more for reality than they care for "atmosphere," and that is partly because our language is a more factual one.

"Darby and Joan" Completely Victorian.

Maurice Baring's "Darby and Joan" has a prefatory note saying "This story is true. It happened between 1546 and 1629. I have transposed the dates to 1855 and 1930. I have not had to invent what happened, but only to try to guess how it happened."

Lest that statement lead you to think that Mr. Baring has turned the high powered lens of modern psychology onto a situation let me assure you that such is not the case. The period covered by the novel is the Victorian and so completely in the mood and tense of the period has Mr. Baring told his tale that psychology in its pages [stated as such] is as well covered as were ladies' knees in that day and the exposure of one would shock the reader as deeply as the exposure of the other would have disrupted the trafic of the Strand in the eighties.

"Darby and Joan" ends with her grandchild's declaration to the heroine, "How calm you look. The Victorians always look calm. I suppose it's because nothing ever happened to you," and the heroine's calm reply, "Nothing."

The book tells, in all of its harrowing emotional details, what that nothing was . . . but the details are harrowing only by the reader's natural reactions to events, not because he is told how harrowed the heroine was by them.

The tale is so simple as to seem almost mediocre. But when it is finished the reader realizes that he has read a tour de force . . . a novel with the distinction of being written with the almost prudish restraint of the period in which it takes place. Interesting. Not a distinguished novel, but one with distinction.

Thomas Rourke's Novel Deals with 1935 Living.

Thomas Rourke's "Haven for the Gallant" is as 1935-ish as "Darby and Joan" is Victorian. It is concerned with two comparatively young married couples who once were gold encased and whom the depression has landed on a riverside in New Jersey where eeling and crabbing supply a livelihood for one pair and a different kind of crabbing is the daily fare of the other.

One pair love each other and are happier in their poverty than they ever were in their riches.

The other, which consists of a southern belle [and does Mr. Rourke dig a scalpel into the sweet talking Stella Mae!] and her hard drinking husband, is misery on the half shell. Into their four lives comes a very rich man who had been in love with the happy wife, but what happens is only the merest addenda to the book, it seems to me, because the important thing about it is the reaction of human beings to financial misfortune, and the distinction about it is that Mr. Rourke has fictionally admitted that happiness CAN be achieved or preserved.

There is nothing sloppily sentimental about "Haven for the Gallant" and yet it chronicles real happiness in the face of difficulties, and is, incidentally, one of less than a handful of modern novels conceding that a happy marriage is even worth writing about.

"East Indiaman" Story of 18th Century.

"East Indiaman," by Frank Pollard, is a lusty tale of the 18th century whose distinction [what it has] is in its background and in the revivifying of the customs rather than the psychology of the period. Its hero is a swashbuckling, seafaring young man who makes a marriage for the sake of convenience and an alliance for the sake of allurement.

His inamorata is a servant girl in the house of the father of the girl he makes his wife, a servant who unfortunately picks up a diamond brooch and is accused of theft. Much of the book concerns her arrest, her life in prison and her trial and her commitment to transportation [all satirizing the period], and her escape from the gallows which was managed by the hero in a novel fashion.

But all of the book concerns young John and his way with women, his servant girl mistress, his lady wife . . . he treated them both with a high handedness which reminds one of a lusty Clark Gable movie—which, indeed, "East Indiaman" may turn out to be if the movie scouts are smart.

The morals are a little broad for the movies [though authentic 18th century], but perhaps as everybody gets married properly before the finis it might be treated as "quaint."

Cicely Hamilton Takes Ireland for New Topic

Noted British Woman Adds to World Studies.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.] — Having written her autobiography and having successively recorded the state of contemporary life as it is to be seen in Austria, Germany, France, Italy, and Russia, Miss Cicely Hamilton has turned her attention to Ireland. She has written a book called "Modern Ireland" [Dent], which will stand beside the other studies and interpret another land and another people.

By the time she has visited America and recorded her impressions of life in the United States Miss Hamilton will have held the mirror up to most of the great modern nations, and as she brings to each book her own exceptionally honest personality and an experience of significant life which few women of this age can rival, the embrace of her survey will be extraordinary.

Miss Hamilton was a great suffrage worker before the war. She spoke from thousands of platforms and wrote endlessly in support of the woman's cause. When the war came she went to France and noted especially the differences between men and women as they were shown in that violent experience. I think she found men rather better than she had supposed them to be.

She played a leading part in Bernard Shaw's "Fanny's First Play," wrote plays of her own, has written novels [which she thinks much easier than plays], and now describes the world for those less courageous and less perceptive than herself. She deserves gratitude for such work, which is undertaken with enthusiasm and judgment in rare combination.

Under the title "Joy Court" [Chatto & Windus], Lady Layland Barratt, the wife of a former high sherif of Cornwall, has written a very macabre novel dealing with the lives of a number of people living in small cottages in a part of Suffolk.

Although I understand that this is a first book, it is described to me as one of unusual skill and power which should attract the attention of those who care for original fiction.

The competition announced by Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton for the best book [not a tale of school life] on any subject in any field, novel, biography, book of travel, etc., written by a school teacher will stir the hearts of an entire class.

In England, despite the importance of their work to the whole community, teachers have little recognition and few privileges. Accordingly, this is the first gesture ever made to them, as far as I am aware, by a firm of publishers. An excellent gesture.

I wonder whether it may not be followed by other gestures of a similar order—for example, the announcement of a competition for books by clerks, sailors, surgeons, or civil servants.

Mysteries of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK

The hard-boiled boys have a recruit and a worthy one. The jacket tells us that R. L. Goldman is already widely known in England, but "Judge Robinson Murdered!" [Coward-McCann, $2.] is the first of his books to be published in America. It is a good lively one dealing with the murder of a mild old judge whose brother is political boss in a midwestern town which for many years has been at his mercy.

The young owner of an opposition newspaper whose family has been enemies of the boss and his family for a generation undertakes to track down the murderer and in so doing uncovers sinks of iniquity of varying depths. He also falls in love with the judge's daughter and between them and amid more different kinds of gang-ups and obstacles than would seem to be possible in a rather brief account, the villain of the piece gets what's coming to him and they get married.

Mr. Goldman has not been so long in England that he has forgotten the use of the American language nor does he overlook any splashes of local color. I would say that he writes with conviction about his own home town and in a way that ought to please readers of this type of fiction very much. He is smart and witty, plausible and fast. Maybe some of his English publications could be brought over to fill the interval between this and his next indictment of the American scene. I'd like to read some of them.

"The Corpse in Crimson Slippers" [Morrow, $2] is a good R. A. J. Walling, and when you have said that you have said a good deal, for although Mr. Walling can be pretty unconvincing he can also pull off some of the best of the mysteries that are being written today. His Mr. Tolefree gets involved in this one from two angles which converge with geometrical precision.

The scene is an ancient English mansion and the suspects a number of people of much more importance than the corpse, who seems to offer no excuse whatsoever for getting murdered.

But you can't fool Mr. Tolefree, who is considerably less mannered than he used to be, though just as clever. As a story of vast criminal activities and confused identity "The Corpse in Crimson Slippers" is very smooth and readable.

"In Mr. Stong's best manner — honest, simple, robustly humorous . . .
CAREER is an excellent tale, alive and pungently American."—N. Y. TIMES.
"The humor is genuine, and not merely amiable . . . The soil of Iowa sticks to him and he returns the compliment, to the enrichment of our homespun literature."—CLIFTON FADIMAN, NEW YORKER.

Miss Deborah Butler to Be Bride Today

Ceremony to Take Place in Lake Forest.

BY JUDITH CASS.

NO matter what the weather is this afternoon it will not keep any one invited to the Butler-Johnson wedding from going to Lake Forest for the ceremony, for all of Miss Deborah Butler's and young Hugh McBirney Johnston's relatives and friends are anxious to see them married, for they are two of the most popular young people in society.

It will be a lovely wedding, made especially so by the fact that the slim young bride, elder daughter of the Francis Peabody Butlers, is to wear the wedding gown of her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Hermon Beardsley Butler. The gown has been put away since that day in June fifty years ago last summer when Jessie Peabody and Hermon Butler were married, and this is the first time it has been used since then. Today's bride will wear another family treasure, a lace veil that belonged to her great-grandmother, the first Mrs. Francis Peabody.

Wedding to Take Place in Lake Forest Church.

The service will be read at 4:30 o'clock in the Church of the Holy Spirit by the Rev. Herbert Prince, rector, assisted by the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard of Christ church, Winnetka, where the bride's family worshiped when they lived in Winnetka and where the senior Mrs. Butler goes to church. The Butler and Johnston families are so large that invitations to the reception that will follow at the Butlers' Lake Forest residence were limited to relatives and close friends.

The bride's schoolgirl sister, Judy, will be the maid of honor, and two little cousins, Andrea Hunter of St. Paul and Marion Peck of Cleveland, will act as flower girls. The bridesmaids are Miss Ann Weeks of Cedarhurst, L. I., Miss Anne Pell of New York, Miss Ethel Johnston, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Fanny McPherson, Miss Nancy Ryerson, a cousin of the bride; Miss Betty Babson, Miss Cornelia Ranney and Miss May Stillwell, another cousin of the bride.

Hulburd Johnston will be his brother's best man and ushering will be Wyndham Hasler, Andrew Cooke, Ralph N. Poole Jr., Joseph Field, and William Simpson. The Robert Donners of Buffalo, brother-in-law and sister of the bride's mother, and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Croil Hunter of St. Paul, are here for the wedding and so are the former Marion Butler and her husband, Claude Peck, who live in Cleveland.

The bridegroom's uncle and aunt and brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Leidy Johnston, and Mr. and Mrs. Conway H. Olmsted, are giving a luncheon today at the Deerpath Inn for the bridal party and the out-of-town guests.

Announce Engagement of Ishbel MacLeish.

An interesting engagement announcement is one which Mrs. Andrew MacLeish is making today of the engagement of her daughter, Ishbel M., to Alexander Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan J. Campbell of Mishawaka, Ind. Miss MacLeish is a graduate of Vassar college and has done graduate work at the University of Chicago.

Mr. Campbell was graduated from Hobart college and did graduate work at Harvard university. He now is teaching at the Fountain Valley school near Colorado Springs, Colo.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

[Posed by Glenda Farrell.]

Get hair treatment conscious! The current hair ills of dryness, lack of luster, and failure to take a permanent will disappear if the fundamentals of hair health are observed.

"Nowadays," said one of the smartest beauty experts we know, "women pay too darned much attention to the superficial care of their hair—and neglect the fundamentals completely. Which is why there's so much hair trouble abroad in the land."

We agree with her absolutely. We women are inclined to get all het up about style, about tints, about curls out of the waving machine—and we're doing things backwards. The smartest hairstyle will look like a hastily assembled bird's nest if the hair itself isn't healthy; the tints will go all cockeyed if the hair isn't in condition, and the permanent will be an absolute flop if the locks are so neglected they're in no condition to take or keep a wave.

Let us, as the politicians say, get back to first principles. If we're going in for trimmings like tints or bleaches or permanents we need to cling to those principles more firmly than ever. The Lord giveth chic with these things, but he also taketh away something of hair gloss.

Get treatment minded. Just the other day we knew the joy and the improvement of a bang up reconditioning treatment, something every woman should have at least a half dozen times a year, particularly if she dips in the dye pots or has permanents regularly.

This reconditioner consists first of a brushing and massage that does wonders for scalp circulation; then a steaming, then a thorough scalp cleansing with a lotion rubbed into the moist scalp. A vigorous shampoo follows, with more massaging, then a marvelous ointment over every bit of the scalp. After this the hair may be set—and you'll never recognize that bedraggled mop of yours. It will be gleaming and soft and so dancing with high lights you'll feel like a movie star.

But what's much more important than the immediate effect is the fact that your hair has had some medicine for what ailed it. One such treatment does a great deal for hair beauty; two will do wonders—and six a year will keep your hair in better shape than you ever dreamed of.

This is money well spent. Condition is everything with hair, you know—far more important than anything else.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

A FRIEND who decided she was envious of our comfortable convalescence decided to take to her bed for a day or two of rest. Thursday she invited a friend in to have luncheon with her on a tray. To add a touch of drama to the bedroom scene she donned a black lace nightgown and a white marabou bed jacket. The luncheon guest's only comment, after observing the black lace gown, finding her working on a black and white needlework chessboard, in her white bedroom, with a black and white Noguchi kakamona on the wall, was, "Hm, I see you've gone into mourning for King George."

KING EDWARD stories are cropping up everywhere. A hitherto unprinted tale, which points up the domesticity of the late king and the British royal family, comes from Bert Hoagland. During the Wembley exposition Hoagland and Jack Pooley, then Rome correspondent of the London Daily Mail, attended it together, and encountered the then prince of Wales, who was visiting the exposition. The prince knew Pooley and stopped to chat. At his friend's instigation the newspaper man asked the prince what they did of an evening at Buckingham palace when there were no visitors. The prince replied:

"Well, Pa looks at his stamps and Ma knits, and by 10 o'clock I get jolly well fed up and say, 'Come on, Albert, let's go up town!'"

AND out at the University of Chicago they are recalling the occasion that King Edward VIII., then prince of Wales, attended a faculty luncheon at Hutchinson Commons, a replica of Christ Church hall, Oxford. After the party had been received by President Burton at Harper library, after a short reception in the Reynolds club, the procession continued down the red carpeted, palm bordered aile into Hutchinson Commons, while a string orchestra in the small balcony over the entrance to the dining room played "God Save the King."

At the close of luncheon, during the attendant slight confusion, the prince disappeared from under the eyes of the secret service men, his own equerry, and the guests. There was a hasty search, and the heir to the throne was discovered in the Reynolds club checkroom chatting with a student checker, Doyle Snyder, to whom he had extended a cordial hand, saying, "My name is Windsor. What is yours?"

ANTONIO DE MARCO of the famous dancing team is supposed to have as agile a memory as he has legs. He gave proof of this a few evenings ago when Joseph T. Ryerson approached him after his appearance at the Blackstone hotel's Mayfair room.

"How do you do? You're Mr. Joseph T. Ryerson and your office is at 135 South La Salle street," he said to the astonished Chicagoan. Before speaking to him Mr. Ryerson had commented to the friends in his party that Mr. De Marco probably would not remember him, but that he had met him eight years ago. It so happened that that occasion was when Mr. Ryerson was looking for entertainment after a dinner to be given at the Casino club for Queen Marie of Rumania. He had heard there were some pretty good dancers in town called the De Marcos, and engaged them. That was some years before the team attained its present fame.

Good Morning!

This tells the story of a lady who had a jinx.

In Joyce Heath, one time stage favorite who goes downhill via the liquor toboggan, propelled by a "jinx" she avers haunts not only herself but all with whom she comes in contact, Bette Davis has the sort of rôle she knows just how to handle.

Miss Davis, you know, has a knack for graphically portraying abnormal females of the species. Her character delineation of Mildred in "Of Human Bondage" still has fans hissing at mention of her name, and her interpretation of the unhappy hussy in "Bordertown" was a chilling and compelling one.

The "dangerous" Joyce Heath proves another tribute to her skill.

Joyce Heath's period of success had been cometike. Swift, brilliant, spectacular. Then, like a comet, she had disappeared from view. For everything she touched had, so to speak, withered. Men had died because of her. Plays in which she appeared had met with strange mishaps. At last managers refused to see her. She "jinxed" them. And so she passed down and out.

She's about as low as can be when Don Bellows, a chap whom she deeply impressed while in his teens, discovers her swilling cheap gin in a dive whither he had gone a-slumming.

Fired with the desire to reform her, he takes her to his country place . . . Joyce pulls herself together, falls in love with him. Bellows, though engaged to and in love with another woman, is a prey to her strange charm. . . . He breaks his engagement; becomes her "angel." The play in which she is about to make her comeback is due to go on in a couple of nights. Then the jinx gets busy—and—that's enough to tell you here. An undivorced husband plays an important part in succeeding events.

As for the jinx—you learn what it really is. It's just a great big A-L-I-B-I employed by a weakling to stall off payments owed to and demanded by life. . . .

"Dangerous" is synthetic—but interesting. It's well acted, fairly well directed, and sports spots of really bright dialog.

WEDDING

Pin Vegetable Bouquets in Smart Lapels

Tiny Carrots and Radishes Decorate Suits.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Vegetables, flowers, and fruit, some in miniature, some in actual size, but all of them in most effective colors, are featured as the newest botanical bits the fashion-wise shopper will stick in the lapels of street suits and ensembles. These vegetable plate lunches in the buttonhole cheer up a dark dress with much high magic.

The vegetable stunt is a kitchen bouquet gone dressmaker. Tiny carrots and peas with the fluttery green tops still intact are one selection. Another smaller tid-bit is composed of carrots, radishes, and peas. They aren't half as funny as they sound.

If you like carnations you'll like the new arrivals. Lovelier than ever, and more realistic, touched with a drop of carnation perfume they'd fool the best gardener. Two new colors this time, "golden wedding" and "Rose of the Rancho," with some fascinating pink affairs, almost take your allegiance from the deep maroon and crimson successes of last season.

For your pet brown tweeds, pale green wools and beige knits, try the boutonnieres of small oranges, with gay green foliage for contrast; or the first artificial edelweiss, snowy white star pointed flowers with accenting leaves. And what you need to go with patent lether costume accessories are the shiny bunches of lackered huckleberries, in white, red, bright green, and brown. These last lapel bunches are especially interesting to the shoppers who have sniffed dubiously at flowers of patent lether.

Even if you are sold on the idea of real flowers or nothing at all, you'll succumb to this artificial display. These decorations are exceptionally gay and colorful for immediate wear, ana do not wilt at the first chilly breeze. So wear these frivolous bouquets while you can, while they are so new and different!

Congregationalists See Hot Contest in Moderator Election

A keenly contested election for the next moderator of the Congregational-Christian churches was predicted as the national executive conference of the united churches opened its annual meeting yesterday at the Hotel La Salle. A layman will be elected to succeed the Rev. Dr. Jay T. Stocking of Newton Centre, Mass., and the moderator will be chosen at the biennial meeting of the general council to be held in June at Mount Holyoke college, Hadley, Mass.

Prominently mentioned are Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke college; Donald J. Cowling, president of Carleton college, Minnesota; Roger Babson, the statistician, of Wellesley, Mass., and former Gov. William E. Sweet of Denver, Colo.

I'll Never Tell

By Roy Vickers

SYNOPSIS.

Julius Saranack is murdered in his home, Hillfoot, in Callingham, England. Two days previously, Torrance Enlair, childhood sweetheart of Gerald Saranack, the murdered man's nephew, had appealed to her American employer, Hartland Massiter, to give Gerald an engineering job in Mexico. Gerald is to return from Spain in two days. Though they had quarreled before he left, Torrance writes Gerald, in care of his uncle, her plans for their marriage. Then Torrance learns that Gerald has married an English girl in Spain. She secretly gains entrance to Hillfoot and retrieves the letter. Then she hears voices, hides, and watches as a girl secretes some jewels behind a brick in the fireplace. When the girl and her companion leave Torrance calls the police, then leaves, not wishing to explain her presence. When Gerald brings his bride to see her next day she recognizes Annabelle, his wife, as the same girl she had seen in Uncle Julius' house and at the hour it was later discovered he was murdered, though she keeps silent about it. Alone with Torrance Gerald confesses he still loves her. He married Annabelle out of pity and thinks she needs his protection. Massiter unearths a motive for the crime. In his youth Julius Saranack befriended John Ellister, who was accused of theft. Later Prof. Ellister grew enormously wealthy through Mexican mines and made a will leaving everything to Uncle Julius. Through the American consul in Paris Mr. Massiter learns that Prof. Ellister has disappeared. Torrance tells Mr. Massiter about Annabelle. They fly to Paris. There Torrance is followed by a rat faced man with a falsetto voice and huge hands. Prof. Ellister they discover has also been murdered. Torrance rushes back to warn Gerald who is next in line to inherit the fortune.

MARRIAGE FOR MONEY.

"As if I could be jealous of you!" continued Annabelle. "If he had ever been able to compare us he would never have chosen me. You're all the things I can never be, Torrance—cool and clever and able to understand things and be pally with him. If you had wanted him, you could have had him. Do you think I don't know that? Good night, darling! And don't you be afraid of the jealous wife, because in this case she doesn't exist."

Annabelle touched her cheek and Torrance was constrained to peck back. Beneath the too sweet manner Annabelle was apparently giving every possible guarantee of frankness and friendliness.

She went into the library as Annabelle went upstairs. Gerald was sitting at his desk, leaning back, smoking a pipe. There was every suggestion that he had been sitting like that since dinner.

"Annabelle has gone to bed. She thought I might be able to help you."

"Do you remember helping me with my Latin for Matric?"

An old times discussion would be much too personal.

"She meant with the papers Vackery wants you to fill up for probate."

"There aren't any. I invented 'em."

"O!" She was taken aback. "Then I had better go."

"Yes—much better. But I hope you won't." His voice was almost humble as he added: "I hope you will sit down—just for a few minutes."

The words might have been purely conventional, but they were nothing of the kind. She sat down opposite him. His hands reached across and gripped her wrist.

"Gerald—we simply can't! In her house. The moment her back's turned."

"I know." He did not release her wrist. His grip tightened. "I've been thinking about it ever since dinner. Whatever we do, it's bound to be wrong." His voice thickened. "So let's please ourselves."

"O, yes, in theory! But in practice—kisses behind the door—wondering whether the servants have noticed anything."

It was not, she had already decided, a matter of respectability, but a matter of self-respect. He released her and picked up his pipe.

"Sorry! We've got to keep our heads. And I jolly well nearly lost mine. Look here, I've told you once, but heaven knows whether it was the real reason. Why did I marry Annabelle?"

"I don't think you did," she said and laughed mirthlessly. "I think she married you."

He bit on the stem of his pipe.

"That's the first time I've known you to say anything vulgar. . . . It's ridiculous as well. Why the hell should any woman want to wangle me into marriage?"

"For money."

"My dear girl! Uncle Julius' bit? She didn't know he was going to die as—as a wedding present."

"Didn't she?"

She realized then that it had all slipped out. She knew that she could still save it, but she did not want to. Gerald now believed her to be "beautiful," as Mr. Massiter had put it. But there was no solution that way. She owed it to Gerald to warn him.

"I'd like to know just what you mean by that," he said ominously.

"Gerald, what on earth is the good of our getting angry with each other! You're saying to yourself that I've insulted your wife and you're attitudinizing about it as you were when you talked about having her life in your keeping. Tell me this: Was she really with you in Paris on that Wednesday night—the night Uncle Julius was murdered?"

"I've already told you. I left her in the hotel round about 6 and picked her up again shortly before 12."

Again Torrance was checked and Gerald saw it.

"You intended to dine with Prof. Ardus Ellister?"

"Well—what of it? Uncle Julius fixed it up a long time ago. They used to be cronies in the remote past—when he was in America."

"And that's all you know about them—just that they were cronies?"

"Yes. You were going to tell me something about Annabelle."

"All right. Prof. Ellister was very rich. He has left all his money to Uncle Julius. Uncle Julius was murdered—strangled. On the 11th of the month at about 9 o'clock in the evening."

As he stared at her she went on:

"Prof. Ellister was murdered—strangled—in Paris on the same day at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. That's why he couldn't meet you for dinner."

"Good lord! How on earth did you get hold of that?"

"Prof. Ellister, in law as well as in fact, has predeceased Uncle Julius—which means that his estate will pass to Uncle Julius' estate."

He was standing up now and she came close to him.

"Your wedding present isn't Uncle Julius' 400 pounds a year—it's about 2 million, Gerald."

He walked over to the window.

"I can't quite take this in!" he said uncertainly.

"No? In a few days, or whenever the news is brought to you officially, just remember that I told you first and that you couldn't take it in."

He was dazed and began to pace the room.

"They were both murdered. On the same day. What is the purpose? If the two murders are connected, the only purpose could be to—to present me—with a couple of millions."

His jaw dropped and he stared at her foolishly.

"We began by talking about Annabelle . . . Annabelle?"

"That marriage settlement, Gerald!"

For an instant Torrance wished she had not said it. A vein stood out on his forehead. If she had been capable of feeling physically afraid of him she would have felt afraid then.

But the violence he was feeling was not apparently directed against herself.

"We must keep our heads," he repeated. He had complete control of himself. "Men have been fooled by women from the beginning of time—and generally they believe that the woman is hopelessly in love with them.

"Annabelle married me you said just now. O, you may be right! Standing in with a gang to murder the two men—get me to make a settlement in her favor—and then presumably murder me?"

"Yes," faltered Torrance.

His excitement now had completely left him.

"Sounds a little lurid, doesn't it!"

"Murders always do sound lurid. But murder happens." Again she was quoting Massiter.

There was silence while he wrestled with a stubborn pipe. Then he put the pipe down.

Beauty Answers

Lotions Aid in Hand Care.

K. H.: A lanolin soap would be a wise choice. In addition to this you want to form the habit of using a hand lotion after you wash the hands. The lotions now on the market dry in a moment's time, and they are not the least bit sticky.

White Hair Needs Care.

G. V.: White hair should be washed carefully with a bland soap. Strong soap mixtures never should be used. To eliminate yellow streaks, add to the last rinse water just enough French blueing to make the water a light blue.

GASOLINE ALLEY—LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE?

I BELIEVE EVERY WORD OF WHAT YOU'VE TOLD ME—JEAN DEAU. AND YOU STILL WON'T REVEAL WHY YOU ARE SO INTERESTED!
NO. IT DOESN'T MATTER.
NOW IT IS MY TURN TO DO SOMETHING FOR YOU.
I WASN'T GOING TO ASK ANYTHING, MR. WALLET, BUT IF YOU FEEL THAT WAY—
WHERE CAN I GET IN TOUCH WITH YOU?
NOWHERE. BUT WHEN I'M NEEDED I'LL BE WITHIN REACH.

Gyula Sandor Mero, son of Dr. and Mrs. Gyula Mero of Vienna and Budapest. There is no party to announce the engagement because Mr. Jaques is ill, and for this reason, too, the wedding, which will take place next Wednesday, will be a quiet one at home with just members of the immediate families present.

Mr. Mero and his bride will sail for Budapest to make their home as soon as the bride's father is in better health. Miss Jaques and Mr. Mero met in Vienna last summer while she and her sisters, Miss Anna Ri and Miss Abbie Jane Jaques, were traveling abroad on a continuation of a trip which they began with their mother. The three young women returned to Chicago after eleven months on the continent just a week before Christmas, and Mr. Mero followed them a week later, making the story of this international alliance a romantic one indeed.

Miss Jaques was educated at the Girls' Latin school here, at the Finch school in New York, and at the Finch school in Paris, where she spent a year and a half. She was presented to society at a tea dance at the Drake hotel during the Christmas holidays four years ago.

Mr. Mero, who was born in Budapest, was educated in Germany and Austria.

Jean Stevens May Miss Prenuptial Party.

The parties that are being given tonight and tomorrow for Miss Jean Stevens and James O. Heyworth Jr., may be minus the feminine guest of honor for she is in bed with a very bad cold.

The party tonight is a dinner-dance at the Onwentsia club in Lake Forest at which the Gordon P. Kelleys will be hosts. Tomorrow Donald R. McLennan Jr., is giving a luncheon at his Lake Forest residence for Miss Stevens and Mr. Heyworth who will be married next Saturday.

More parties planned for other brides-to-be over the week-end include a cocktail party at which Miss Martha Lee will be hostess tomorrow afternoon at the Ambassador East for Miss Alice May Dickinson and Gilbert H. Robinson who are to be married Feb. 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Talcott Griswold are entertaining at a buffet supper tomorrow evening for Miss Harriet Tilden and Robert E. English. Mr. and Mrs. Griswold will give their party in the home of his mother, Mrs. Howard C. Phillips, in Winnetka.

On Monday Mrs. Winn Canfield will give a linen shower for her cousin, Miss Tilden, and on Monday night Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Bouscaren will entertain at dinner for Mr. English and his fiancée.

Mrs. Gary Re-elected by St. Luke's Board.

Mrs. John W. Gary has been elected to her tenth term as president of the woman's board of St. Luke's hospital, so she again will be in charge of the Fashion show that will be held next fall. The other officers elected at the annual meeting yesterday were: First vice president, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf; second vice president, Mrs. A. Watson Armour; third vice president, Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr.; treasurer, Mrs. Harold C. Smith; recording secretary, Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, and corresponding secretary, Miss Harriet Borland.

Daniel Burnham Portrait to Be Shown.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Burnham will receive in their Evanston home tomorrow from 4 to 8 o'clock to show a portrait of his father, the late Daniel H. Burnham, copied by Christian Abrahamson from a portrait by Anders Zorn. Mr. Abrahamson will be at the tea.

The Harold F. Whites left yesterday for Useppa Island, Fla., where they will be joined in a week by Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Hopkins and their small son.

Moving pictures of winter sports at Garmisch-Parkenkirchen in Germany and at Eagle River in Wisconsin will be shown at the Exmoor club tomorrow at 5 o'clock, after which there will be a buffet dinner for members and guests.

Nest Egg Is Latest Lesson of Young Cooks

Miss Meade Instructs Juvenile Chefs.

"Refrigerator Cakes and Cookies," a booklet containing recipes for sixteen refrigerator cakes and ten refrigerator cookies, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Thanks so much, cooksters and mothers, for all your letters! To know that you are interested in this Saturday cooking club means a great deal to me—and your suggestions are a big help in planning the dish of the week.

Today, because so many of your letters tell me that you want to cook things that actually may be a part of the family meals, it's going to be Nest Eggs. Ever eat them? Well, if you haven't, first we'd better describe a Nest Egg. It's a fluffy nest of goldy brown egg white on a piece of toast, with the yellow yolk right in the middle of the nest.

If you can have your Nest Eggs part of the family lunch today, fine. But if you'd rather fix them for Sunday breakfast, when your father can be home to enjoy them, too, we'd suggest that you try just one for practice this afternoon. You can divide it for an afternoon snack—and then you'll be sure you know just how to go about things in the morning!

Now for the step-by-step recipe. This makes just one serving, so repeat it for every person who's going to eat with you.

NEST EGGS.

1. Make one piece of toast and butter it lightly. Keep this hot on top of the toaster or oven.

2. Turn on the heat in the broiler so that there's just a low flame, or on an electric stove, turn the broiler switch to "Low." [Here's something to remember just any time you cook eggs, and any way: They have to be cooked with a low heat. Otherwise they become tough and not at all as you want a cooked egg to be.]

3. Take one egg. Break it and separate the yolk from the white. The white goes into a small mixing bowl. The yolk then is dropped into an ordinary teacup which has been rinsed out with cold water first. [If you don't have the cup a little wet the yolk will stick or break when you try to slide it out later.]

4. With an egg beater whip the egg white until it's fluffy and stands up in little peaks. About half way through the beating add a quarter teaspoon of salt to the white. Don't beat it until it's dry looking, however—just stiff and fluffy.

5. Pile the beaten egg white on the piece of toast to make a nest. Just spoon it on lightly and then make a hollow in the center.

6. Gently slide the whole egg yolk right into the center of the nest.

7. Put just a little sprinkle of salt over the top of the egg yolk, and right in the middle of it lay a tiny piece of butter, about as big as the end of your little finger.

8. Put the nested egg on toast under the broiler, and let it cook until the egg white is a golden brown.

9. Serve the nest egg right away. Like so many other hot foods, eggs are at their best just as soon as they have finished cooking.

If you're making enough nest eggs for several people, it's much easier to do them one at a time, I've found. So have enough pieces of toast ready, to start with. Then whip the egg whites one at a time, slip the yolks in the center, and finally, when they all are ready, put them all in the oven at once. It doesn't hurt them to stand a few minutes before they're cooked.

See you next week!

Novel Fastenings Are Chic

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

The bodice and skirt take opposite sides in this tailored frock, but their apparent difference of opinion really is the basis of a great deal of chic. Strips of the fabric give the effect of clip fasteners and their novel arrangement lends decided distinction to the otherwise rigid simplicity of the dress. The draped neckline is gracefully smart [and easy to sew] and the sleeves are raglan, obviating the difficulty usually associated with setting sleeves into armholes.

The original of this delightfully tailored frock was of beige wool crêpe. Plain or printed crêpe silk also is attractive for this model. You may make a choice of long or short sleeves.

Style No. 3288 is designed for sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material.

Novel Gadgets Aid in Program of Loveliness

Adviser Reports on Several Helps to Beauty.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Let's review some of the helpful little gadgets that can be had at comparatively small cost and which play no mean part in keeping up the standard of the woman beautiful.

There's the little roller which you fill with ice and keep ready in your refrigerator for use at any moment, which for chin lines and general skin toning and preserving has my unqualified support. Even those who say they can't use ice on the face will find this item satisfactory, stimulating, and good to use. No mess, no fuss about the cold face, and skin tonic.

A pair of gloves that really are easy to wear overnight after you have swathed the hands in beautifying cream are an important contribution. Not only do you manage in this way to protect good hand skin, but you improve not-so-good hand skin and, at the same time, manage just enough of the nail oiling to keep the nails from cracking off.

There are funny little rubber finger tips in case you just want to oil the finger ends for nail protection, growth, and beauty. Enough for all your fingers appears in one package.

It's annoying to get rouge up under the newly whitened nail tip, so the trade can supply you with a little suede affair to cover the first and second finger for spreading rouge on cheeks without the undernail suffering.

A tiny eyebrow comb with a handle, so that your eyebrow hair may be cleared of powder particles; also, so that the hairs may be combed up as they should be before they're brushed down along their usual route.

There is simply no end of fine complexion brushes out right now and, in this connection, I learn from sales reports that faces are being attacked with complexion brushes more generally than at any time heretofore. As a blackhead preventive or corrective, these brushes are proving a godsend.

Five and ten counters and department store notion counters are loaded with curling gadgets and some of them are so effective in their treatment of straggling ends that you can put them on before breakfast and take them out after the meal with the assurance that you'll do until you get to your regular salon appointment.

Girl Still Is Judged by Her Acquaintances

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The old world changes little in its manner of judgment, as Marjorie is discovering. "Tell me who your friends are and I'll tell you what you are" proves to be an enduring maxim.

In order to meet a certain popular young man, Marge cultivated a girl whose reputation was frankly bad. The young man proved attracted and took Marge about for a while. She started out with a great longing for said young man. Now, she's in love. BUT—

"I soon discovered," she confides, "that my reputation became a duplicate of the girl's through whom I met the one for whom I have fallen so hard. Suddenly he stopped taking me out. I found out it was because there was nasty talk about me because of my association with the girl. Well, I know I made a mistake seeking her out, but she was the only person who could introduce me to the man. I thought I could just throw her off afterward, but it didn't work that way. Is there any chance of restoring my good name with the young man?"

We'd like to know, if the girl's reputation was so bad, why was your young man on such friendly terms with her?

You've had your lesson. But you needn't let it write finis to your romantic adventures. Only, we think it would be better to let this particular knight of yours ride right out of your life and keep an ear to the ground for new hoofbeats.

Praise Better than Blame in Teaching Child

Criticism May Destroy His Self-Confidence.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Without always realizing it we have hundreds of occasions to correct or admonish our children in the ordinary routine doings of the day. There are so many things they don't know, so many things they do wrong, that we get into the habit of being free with our blame. We can without half trying get into awfully bad ways—we mothers—and this being so lavish with blame and fault finding is one of them.

For that reason we should make it a point to show approval whenever there is the least excuse for it. Everybody relishes a word of praise—even grownups. I know I do. Don't you? Everybody expands—flourishes—gets a warm little feeling inside from basking in the sunshine of approval.

With the little child, especially, the approval of those he loves is almost his only key to behavior. The reins that guide him are largely your approval or disapproval.

It's so easy, for example, to reprove a child when he's upset a whole room playing railroad, and doesn't want to put back the chairs and pick up tickets and so forth. But it isn't so easy to notice the reverse of this, and to say, "Isn't it nice to have this dining room all straightened out and ready for me to set the table? I never did see a railroad train chug out of sight so fast!"

Children learn with a "lift" under the warmth of approval. They really get a much better idea of what we expect of them from our praise than from our blame. One way conveys to them: This is wrong—don't do it. That's merely a negative. The other way conveys to them: This is right—do it.

A helpful kind of patience is described in our fully written booklet, "Make Patience Your Handmaiden." A stamped, self-addressed envelope will bring it to you.

Notes of the Music World

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The most brilliant week of music since long before the holidays opens tomorrow with a recital by Josef Hofmann. The great pianist, one of the few who can be said to have become legends in their own lifetime, plans two offerings of epic size and importance for his Studebaker program. One is the Beethoven Sonata in A flat major, the next to the last of the thirty-two, the other the set of Chopin Preludes, opus 28.

At the same hour, 3:30 o'clock, Eric DeLamarter and the Civic orchestra of Chicago will begin their Orchestra hall concert. Two conductors will appear besides Mr. DeLamarter. George Henry is scheduled to direct a toccata of his own composition, and Albert Goldberg the Schumann First Symphony. Honegger's "Pastorale d'Ete" finds a place on the program, also the Von Weber overture to "Oberon," Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody, and the "Meistersinger" prelude.

A young Negro contralto whom the writers of Europe have showered with superlatives sings at the Auditorium tomorrow evening. Marian Anderson closes the downtown sessions in Northwestern university's history and enjoyment of music series when she appears on the historic boards of the old building in a program of standard art songs and Negro spirituals. Included is Schubert's "Death and the Maiden." Felix Borowski will lecture on "The Racial and Cultural Elements of Song" before the recital. The sessions starts at 7, with Miss Anderson beginning her part at 8:30.

The Kolisch String quartet from central Europe, which exhausted eastern critics' store of adjectives last spring, makes its first public appearance in Chicago in the Gold room of the Congress hotel Monday night. In the course of the program a new Bela Bartok quartet will come to its first local hearing. A point you will be interested in is that Rudolph Kolisch bows with his left hand because of an injury in mid-career which prevented the use of the fingers of that hand on the strings.

Sir Hamilton Harty makes his third and last Chicago appearance of the season next Tuesday afternoon. He will lead the Symphony orchestra through three large scale works, the Seventh Symphony of Sibelius, the Twelfth of Haydn, and the New World Symphony of Dvorak.

Robert Sanders a young Chicago composer of accomplishment and promise, will be represented on the Thursday and Friday Symphony programs by his "Symphonic Impressions."

CROSS-RUFF MANAGEMENT.

Inexperienced players, watching an expert manipulate a cross-ruff hand, are apt to form an erroneous impression of this most deadly—but most delicate—weapon. Often they are blinded by the pyrotechnical rapidity with which tricks apparently are snatched out of thin air, and it is this form of play, I think, that gives rise to the ridiculous impression that So-and-So "makes aces out of deuces." Actually it is largely a question of entries [assuming sufficient trumps] when the success of a cross-ruff plan is involved. Today's hand does not illustrate a true cross-ruff situation, but the entry management is the same.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	Dbl.

Certainly South's bidding was not characterized by great pessimism, but the end justified the means.

West opened the jack of spades and North's king won the trick. It was obvious that dummy's clubs could not be used for discarding purposes because of lack of entries, so declarer's first play was the diamond finesse against the king. The queen held and the ace was laid down, a spade being discarded from dummy. A third round of diamonds was ruffed and dummy's remaining spade led to the ace, after which a spade was led and ruffed. Now the eight of hearts was covered by East and won by South, who had simply to exit from his hand with either a diamond or a club to insure that his A K 9 tenace be led to for the final three tricks of his doubled contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Must a revoke be called immediately in order to impose the two trick penalty?

Answer: No. It must be called before the cut for the next hand is completed, or if the revoke has occurred on the concluding hand of a rubber, before the rubber score is agreed upon and entered.

HOUSE APPROVES 296 MILLION FOR FARM CONTRACTS

Appropriation Passed on Roosevelt Demand.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—With only ten minutes' discussion, the house today blithely voted an appropriation of $296,185,000 to meet President Roosevelt's demand that farm contracts made prior to the Supreme court decision invalidating the AAA be carried out as a moral obligation.

The addition of this appropriation raised the total of the first appropriation bill at this session to $353,389,100. The bill was passed almost unanimously and sent to the senate with the recommendation that action be taken quickly in the upper chamber so that spending of the money can be started by Feb. 1. The funds, exclusive of the farm benefit payment appropriation, are to be used to put the social security act and other new laws into effect.

Called Moral Obligation.

Chairman Marvin Jones [Dem., Texas] of the committee on agriculture offered the farm appropriation as an amendment to the bill, submitting President Roosevelt's letter of request as an explanation. No opposition came from Republican leaders who admitted that farmers, who had carried out their contracts, ought to be paid although questioning the wisdom or necessity of making the contracts in the first place.

A lone protest came from Representative Samuel Pettengill [Dem., Ind.], who pointed out that the house had had no opportunity to examine the amendment.

Potatoes Provide Debate.

In contrast to this speedy approval of almost 300 millions expenditure, the house spent two hours in a wordy debate on the proposal to appropriate $1,000,000 to investigate the potato marketing situation.

The suggestion was finally voted down as was a compromise to cut the appropriation to $500,000. In a militant mood, so far as the potato act was concerned, the members then voted to knock out a $1,250,000 appropriation to carry out provisions of the law. This left the potato act dead to all practical purposes just as it was in effect killed by the Supreme court's AAA decision.

An attempt by the Republican minority to omit an appropriation of $400,000 to set up a national bituminous coal commission was defeated.

The bill appropriates $42,664,500 for the social security board and other agencies which will carry out the social security act, $6,284,000 for the soil conservation service, $290,000 for the national labor relations board, and smaller appropriations for other federal agencies. The funds are intended to carry agencies from Feb. 1 to July 1 when a new fiscal year begins and additional appropriations will be made available.

U. OF C. GETS 18 MORE LETTERS BY LAFAYETTE

The acquisition of 18 letters written in English by Marquis de Lafayette to William Harris Crawford, early American statesman, was announced yesterday by officials of the University of Chicago libraries. The letters will be added to what already is the largest collection of material in any American university of the young Frenchman who placed himself and his wealth at the disposal of the American revolutionists.

Included in the important data revealed by them the letters contain the hitherto unsuspected historical fact that Lafayette tried to make it possible for Napoleon to gain refuge in the United States after his defeat at Waterloo. Napoleon preferred to surrender to the British.

The university acquired the letters from three direct descendants of Mr. Crawford. They are N. M. Dudley and W. H. C. Dudley of Americus, Ga., and Mrs. L. G. Henderson of Albany, Ga. Among the high offices he held during his career, Crawford was a senator from Georgia.

Clergyman on Mission of Mercy Loses His Life

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHN'S N. F., Jan. 24.—The Rev. Ebenezer Davis, minister of the United church at Nipper Harbor, Notre Dame bay, was drowned last night while returning from a mission of mercy. During his journey back from Harry's Harbor, where he had taken persons to receive medical aid, the minister's motor boat engine failed. The boat was smashed on the rocks of Green Head and the minister drowned. A companion leaped to safety.

INJURIES IN FALL FATAL.

What's new in books?

Among the new books reviewed and commented on by Fanny Butcher in today's book page are:

A lively, picaresque novel of the Eighteenth century, when the East India Company was adding India to the British empire.

A powerful American novel dealing with the destinies of two couples disrupted by the depression.

A realistic French novel which tells the story of three men, the last descendants of a decayed noble family.

2. This print does ingenious things with its tie. It may be worn as a bow in front, or worn long with each end thrown over the shoulder. Such a bright clustery print, with a black, navy, or brown background. 14 to 20. The 2-tone sash echoes the colors of the print. 14 to 20.

3. A carved pendant on a chain gives this dress an individuality all its own. It's a frock that has the knack of fitting as though your own private dressmaker had made it just for you. Perhaps it's the shirring at the hips that does it—or the draped neckline. In black, brown, navy, beige, gray, or powder blue. 14 to 20.

Misses' Moderate Price Frocks, Fourth Floor.

Take your "cue" from Junia—the Chinese influence is shaping many a smart young hat these days. This one has a dash of the Coolie combined with a drop of the Mandarin—and don't miss the ribbon queue in back, which can also be worn under the chin as a chin strap. Priced at $5.

Millinery, Fifth Floor.

Net and organdy bows with deep, flattering cuffs. Light hearted, a bit frivolous, with accent on youth—that's how you'll feel in one of these sets. They get their inspiration from the Catherine de Medici period. Four charming styles—embroidered organdy with net ruffles; organdy with open work; embroidered organdy lace trimmed; and embroidered net.

Neckwear, First Floor.

A young slip of a girdle of sleek rayon satin lastex, designed to smooth you out to just the right proportions, and making those proportions smooth as your own skin. The waist is fashioned to fit down in back, up in front with a slight boning, which gives a flat and fashionable narrowness. Last, but not least, you zip the side open or shut and are in and out in a jiffy. In 16 inch length. Also 14 inch in brocade at $3.50.

STRONG HOOSIER FIGHTERS SEEK GOLDEN GLOVES

Terre Haute Boasts of Its Star.

BY FRENCH LANE.

There are mighty men in southern Indiana and that section of the Golden Gloves empire wants to tell about them.

Comes word from Terre Haute that a 19 year old farmer boy from that territory has been fighting very much like Jack Dempsey did in his palmy days.

Besides that he is a strong man and at the age of 17 gained distinction in his community by lifting a horse.

His name is Foy Parker. Bob Nesbit, sports editor of the Terre Haute Tribune-Star, reports that Foy can do just about everything but stage a juggling act with a horse in one hand and the cooking stove in the other. In addition he is a skillful boxer.

Many Teams Entered.

So this big fellow no doubt will be one of the stars of the first Golden Gloves tournament ever conducted in Terre Haute where boxing has been a popular sport since Bud Taylor was the bantamweight champion of the world.

Teams from Brazil, Greencastle, Clinton, Linton, and Sullivan, Ind., will compete in the Terre Haute tournament in addition to a team from Robinson, Ill. George Grammell will coach the Terre Haute boxers for their engagements in the Tournament of Champions.

The Evansville Courier and Journal and the Vincennes Sun also conduct large sectional meets in southern Indiana. Not many of their contestants are using cows and horses as sparring partners, but strange stories come from their territories that attics, barns, and back yards are being turned into rude gymnasiums so that ambitious youths may try to emulate Barney Ross and Joe Louis and find their fortune at the end of a Golden Gloves trail.

100 Boxers to Compete.

The field in the Evansville tournament will number slightly more than 100 and these boys will represent a dozen towns and smaller cities in southwestern Indiana, southeastern Illinois, and western Kentucky.

Walter Lemon, formerly a football player at Evansville college, may be one of the stars of the team. He has been boxing only a short time, but has been a handy winner of the ten amateur bouts in which he has engaged.

"We have two heavyweights that can hit hard enough to knock any man out," writes Dan Scism, sports editor of the Courier and Journal. "But of course we don't know what will happen if they get hit first."

Sixteen southern Indiana towns will be represented in the Vincennes Sun tournament. A majority of the 100 entries are farm boys.

Two Champions Return.

Dale Knight, lightweight, and Lloyd Walker, featherweight, are the only two champions from last year's team who will defend their titles.

Forest Oliphant, 17 year old brother of Elmer Oliphant, famous Purdue and West Point athlete, will make his boxing debut in the Vincennes tournament. He will fight in the lightweight division and shows great promise, according to George Byers, sports editor of the Vincennes Sun.

The dates for the southern Indiana tournaments are: Terre Haute, Feb. 3, 4, and 10; Evansville, Feb. 6, 7, and 14; Vincennes, Jan. 28, Feb. 4, and 11.

Woman Golfer Who Beat Edward VIII. Will Retire

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—An attack of rheumatism which has settled in her left hand has caused the retirement from golf of Bea Gottlieb, only woman player to defeat King Edward VIII. of England. The ailment has so slowed up her swing that she has been forced to give up the game. Miss Gottlieb defeated the then prince of Wales in 1933 at Sunningdale, England, 5 and 3, and after the match presented him with one of her favorite clubs, which he had admired.

Battaglia Knocks Out Quaill in 6th Round

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Frankie Battaglia, Winnipeg, knocked out Al Quaill, Pittsburgh, tonight in the sixth of their scheduled ten round bout. It was one sided from the start. Quaill was down twice in the first round, three times in the third, and twice in the final round.

GOLDEN GLOVES TICKETS

The mail order sale of tickets for the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions Feb. 24, 25, and 26, and also for the finals March 6, has opened.

These fights, bringing together the greatest amateur boxers in 13 states, will be held at the Chicago Stadium.

The thousands of regular Golden Gloves fans who attend these bouts every year know the value of obtaining tickets early. And here's a tip to new Golden Gloves fans who are due for their biggest boxing thrill—Tickets are distributed on a first come, first served basis.

Prices for the Tournament of Champions are 40 cents, 66 cents, and $1.10. For the finals they are $1.10, $1.65, $2.20, and $3.30. Send check or money order to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

WILDCATS MUST WIN TO REMAIN IN TITLE RACE

Michigan Plays at Minnesota.

Although Northwestern's average points per game is topped by only two quintets, Purdue and Michigan, the Wildcats have broken even in four games and are fifth in the Western conference standings. Tonight Northwestern hopes to continue in the first division, but to keep that position the Wildcats must trounce Chicago at Patten gymnasium.

The Maroons still are looking for their first Big Ten victory. By defeating Marquette Wednesday night, in recompense for defeat at Milwaukee a month ago, Chicago served notice of improvement. Two of Chicago's defeats have been sternly contested battles. Indiana won at Bloomington, 33 to 30, and the Badgers took an overtime scrap in the opener at the Midway, 38 to 36.

Must Stop Haarlow.

Capt. Bill Haarlow, defending individual point getter of the Big Ten, is worry number one for the Wildcats. If Haarlow is shackled Northwestern can anticipate victory. Otherwise it may take a lot of points to balance Haarlow's activities, and the assistance he generally receives from Bill Lang, diminutive forward. Lang's specialty is shooting from far out on the court.

Northwestern's defeat at Minnesota was perhaps a more severe setback to Wildcat aspirations than the opening game defeat at Indiana. Northwestern had beaten the Gophers, 45 to 24, at Patten gymnasium by virtue of a brilliant second half attack which scored 25 points to Minnesota's 6. The Wildcats couldn't duplicate Monday and now they are faced with the task of whipping Purdue twice if they wish to share in the title. Even if the Wildcats should beat the Boilermakers they must win tonight and every other night to stay in the race.

Michigan at Minnesota.

Michigan, steadily improving, faces the Gophers tonight at Minneapolis. Like Northwestern, Michigan won from Minnesota on home territory, 38 to 28. The Wolverines have won three games and lost two. They trail Purdue in offensive strength. On the return trip to Ann Arbor, Michigan will stop off here to play the Maroons on Monday.

Notre Dame, with a five game winning streak which included Pennsylvania and Syracuse last week-end, plays Butler tonight at Notre Dame. The Irish have won the last four contests with the Indianapolis Bulldogs. Butler's best game this year was a licking administered Purdue.

Only two Big Ten games are scheduled next week. Chicago, after being host to Michigan Monday, travels to Lafayette on Saturday to start the second semester activities of the Boilermakers.

SIGNS AGAIN

ANDY LOTSHAW.

Mrs. Moody Again at Top, Richards Says

New York, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Vinnie Richards, professional tennis player and one-time doubles partner of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, concurred with the general opinion that she has regained her best form after defeating her, 7-5, 6-1 in a practice match today.

Richards and Mrs. Moody won the national mixed doubles title in 1924. Today the court queen gave Vinnie a stiff struggle through the first set, then requested that he play his hardest in the second to see if she could hold the pace. Richards turned on the steam and won easily, keeping her busy chasing baffling cross-court shots.

Gains Power in Stroking.

Afterward Richards said Mrs. Moody's footwork seemed a trifle slower than before her injury two years ago but her stroking was much stronger.

"She is hitting harder than ever from the ground," Vinnie commented, "and there is less spin on the ball because she hits it with a flatter racket. In my opinion there is no woman player in the world who is Mrs. Moody's equal and I doubt if even Helen Jacobs could give her much of a match."

Mrs. Moody has never seen a big league baseball game, never had a golf club in her hand and doesn't know the difference between a spinner play or a double reverse in football.

Little Is Golfing Hero.

But she admitted today her golfing hero is Lawson Little, though she only knows him "slightly," and that Knute Rockne was her favorite personality in football. She met Rockne on a trip to Europe.

The tennis queen's first and foremost hero on the courts was little Bill Johnston, the Californian who held the national singles crown until Big Bill Tilden came along.

PACK UP YOUR TROUBLES, CUBS; LOTSHAW SIGNS

Medicine Man Ready for Fourteenth Season.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Manager Charley Grimm of the Cubs yesterday barged into Chicago from his home in sunny St. Louis county and forthwith announced some news, not the least exciting of which was that he had succeeded in signing Dr. Andy Lotshaw to train the champs for the fourteenth successive season.

Each year Dr. Lotshaw, a modest chap, goes from his Christmas shopping anxieties to worries about whether the Cubs' front office is going to be a holdout in the matter of his contract. And each year along about this time he signs with great elation, never suspecting that the team practically would have to disband if Old Andy wasn't along.

Dr. Lotshaw's balms and lotions, his salves and unguents, and his tapes and gauzes are invaluable. His artistry in manipulating a fancy lamp, whether it be a heater or a penetrating ultra-violet ray, amounts to wizardry. But these are not the things that have made Dr. Lotshaw as essential to the Cubs as the very parks in which they play.

Old Rah, Rah Andy.

Dr. Lotshaw, for one thing, is a master cheer leader. His optimistic, inspiring oratory is everywhere. His effervescence in success is boundless; his sympathy in adversity ever soothing. Dr. Lotshaw can exhort in a thunderous voice or he can purr like a kitten.

At 54 Dr. Lotshaw stands ready to lick, or at least thinks he can lick, any ball player who is an enemy of the Cubs. He probably would be as confident if ever a belligerent were to spring up on the Cubs. But mostly he more than holds his own with the saucy fellows on the team because he is of sharper wit and more agile tongue than 99 per cent of the ball players now in captivity.

Never a season passes but what shining examples of the trainer's activities are discovered and recorded. Two incidents reported in these columns last year give a key to Dr. Lotshaw's heavy responsibilities. Near midseason the Cubs were in a playful mood at Cincinnati. They had placed their valuables in the locker trunk—their jewelry, their dough, and their horse bet receipts were under lock and key, and Dr. Lotshaw had the only key.

Dr. Andy Gets Even.

There was romping in the clubhouse and the boys started tossing around Dr. Lotshaw's personal property, including his watch, his alarm clock, and his lodge emblems. Andy warned the roisterers, but they kept up until they busted his alarm clock. Then Andy went to a sink and dropped therein the key to the valuables trunk. A locksmith got the trunk open about 9 o'clock that night and that was the last day the Cubs tossed around Dr. Lotshaw's personal property.

Another anecdote illustrating Dr. Lotshaw's finely sympathetic character developed earlier in the season when the Cubs had lost a doubleheader in their first meeting with the Giants, making a grand total of seven hits in the two games off Clyde Castleman and Tarzan Parmelee.

That night Dr. Lotshaw dropped in at Manager Grimm's hotel apartment. Wearing a most funereal puss Dr. Lotshaw, his voice choked, said: "Boss, I know just how you feel. I haven't eaten any supper because I am so sad my appetite has left me completely."

Manager Grimm wasn't feeling so gay himself, but he smiled bravely and replied: "Doctor, we can't win 'em all. Don't let it get you down. Before you leave here I want you to order a little snack on me. You just mustn't go hungry on account of a couple of setbacks."

Baggage Smasher, Too.

Grimm's cheerfulness immediately was contagious. Dr. Lotshaw promptly ordered and consumed a special sirloin, a giant Idaho flooded with butter, four other vegetables, and a

De Paul Five Beats Western State, 53 to 34

De Paul university went on a scoring rampage to whip Western Michigan Teachers' basketball team, 53 to 34, last night. It was De Paul's 100th victory since Jim Kelly took over the job as coach of the Demons seven years ago.

The score was close on only two occasions. After the first five minutes of play, it was tied at 8-8. Then Nick Yost made a free throw and Capt. Ray Adams dropped in a basket to start a rally which netted the De Paul team 16 points before David Arnold, 6 foot 4 inch center, added a basket for the Kalamazoo team.

Adams Leads Rally.

With Adams leading the way, De Paul ran the count to 35 to 10 at halftime. At the outset of the second half, however, the Teachers' squad found itself. With the score 38 to 14, Western State duplicated De Paul's 16 point scoring string to bring the score to 38 to 30.

George Word, with four baskets, Dave Arnold with two and Devon Smith and Carl Fischer with one each, accounted for this rally. But the turn for a spurt was De Paul's again and Adams, who led the scoring with eight baskets and a free throw, was the spearhead of this drive of 10 consecutive points.

It's Tenth for De Paul.

De Paul's fast passing attack in the first period completely baffled the Michigan boys. The victory was De Paul's tenth in twelve starts for the year, and it was Western State's second loss.

Nick Yost, De Paul's gangling center, with six baskets and a free throw, captured runner-up scoring honors for De Paul, while Dave Arnold, with 11 points, and George Word, with 9 points, were State's leaders.

THREE YANKEES AND ONE GIANT SIGN CONTRACTS

New York, Jan. 24.—(AP)—The mailman brought three signed contracts to the New York Yankees and one to the Giants today.

Those who entered the Yankee fold are pitchers Irving [Bump] Hadley and Steve Sundra, obtained in deals with the Washington Senators and the Cleveland Indians respectively, and Bill Baker, catcher brought up from the Newark Bears.

George [Kiddo] Davis, clever outfielder, returned his signed contract to the Giants.

The Yankee office also announced that Outfielder Myril Hoag and Bernard Uhalt, who was purchased from the Oakland club of the Pacific coast league, will go south with the first squad which leaves here March 1.

Fight Decisions

At New York—Andre Lenglet beat Hans Birkie [10].
At Philadelphia—Jack Portney beat Johnny Craven [10].
At Buffalo—Charley Belanger stopped Tom Williams [4].

BRUNDAGE SAILS; SEES FULL U. S. OLYMPIC ENTRY

New Sources Aid Drive for Funds.

New York, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Before embarking tonight on the Bremen with the last detachment of the Olympic winter sports forces bound for Germany, Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee, declared all indications point now to financing full American participation in the summer games at Berlin.

"The reaction to America's decision to support the Olympics has been to draw financial backing from many sources not anticipated," Brundage told the Associated Press. "The response already has been such as to warant going ahead with plans for full entry in track and field sports as well as all major events on the main program next summer."

Among other things, this means the United States will enter the maximum of three athletes in each event of the track and field program, feature of the Olympics, Brundage indicated.

Trials Must Decide Team.

Proposals to alter the team selection policy by naming a number of outstanding record breakers for the squad, regardless of what happens in the final tryouts, have been discarded by the Olympic committee, Brundage revealed.

It had been suggested, with previous disappointments in mind, that such stars as Jesse Owens, Bill Bonthron, Ben Eastman, Glenn Cunningham, Jack Torrance, Keith Brown, all world record holders, be assured their places on the American team in advance.

"There's some argument in favor of such procedure," Brundage conceded. "But it would only lead to more trouble. Where could we draw the line if we attempted to be arbitrary about the selections? We would be charged with favoritism, and if some of the stars we picked in advance failed to come through in the Olympics, we would never hear the last of it.

"The only fair thing we can do is conduct the tryouts, as formerly, with the Olympic selections based on actual performances in the final tests."

Three to Aid Robertson.

Lawson Robertson, veteran University of Pennsylvania coach and the choice of the A. O. C. to be head Olympic track coach for the third straight time, will have the aid of at least three assistant coaches, Brundage said.

Gustavus T. Kirby, the treasurer, and Dietrich Wortmann, a member of the American Olympic committee, both of New York, were in the group of officials and athletes leaving for Germany. The party also included Audrey Peppe of New York, Grace and Lester Madden of Boston, and Louise and Estelle Weigel of Buffalo, all members of the figure skating team.

NAME 8 GIRL SKIERS

New York, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Three girls from the far west, one from the middle west, and four from the east have been selected as America's Olympic women's ski team. This was announced today by Roland Palmedo, chairman of the selection committee.

The team will be headed as captain by Helen Boughton-Leigh of London and Cleveland. The other members will include Mary Bird of Boston; Elizabeth Woolsey of New Haven; Lillian Swann of New York; Marian McKean of Beverly Falls, Mass.; Grace Carter and Elissayr Smith of Seattle, and Clarita Heath of California.

The team, along with six others named to the original squad, has been in Germany for some time.

CHANGE OLYMPIC SLIDE.

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Because present Olympic rules forbid leaps of more than 213.36 feet, the German Olympic committee has been forced to change the big ski jump which will be used next month by international stars.

The change was ordered by the In-

READY TO QUIT

SONJA HENIE.

Sonja Henie Will Retire at End of Season

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—Sonja Henie, the 24 year old Norwegian girl who has reigned supreme over the world's figure skaters since her 'teens, is going to abdicate.

Miss Henie made the announcement of her intended retirement, which she has threatened for several years, as the European figure skating championships opened here today. She declared that 1936 will see her making her last defense of her titles. After that, she will confine her activities to exhibitions for friends, since training for regular competition is too arduous and requires too much time.

Seeks Tenth World Title.

The present championships here will be Miss Henie's first chance to begin the concluding stage of her career. The Olympiad at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Bavaria, next month, and the world meet in Paris in March will follow. If her performances in these three events are successful, and there is little doubt that they will be, the Norwegian girl will have won ten world titles, nine European championships, and Olympic honors three times.

In the European meet, one of Miss Henie's strongest competitors, Maribel Vinson of Boston, will be missing since the American Olympic figure skating team decided to forego the European championships because of insufficient time to practice since arriving here from America. Other members of the American team are Robin Lee and Earl Reiter of Minneapolis and George Hill of Boston.

Plenty of Opposition.

Norway's Henie will have plenty of opposition despite Miss Vinson's absence, for in the field which opened the meet today was Vivi-Anne Hulten of Sweden, who finished so closely behind Miss Henie in last year's event that the decision was widely criticized.

Other entrants in the women's competition include 11 year old Yetsuko Inada of Japan; Viktoria Lindpainter of Germany, Estelle Taylor of Great Britain, Liselotte Landbeck, former Austrian who is now a citizen of Belgium, and Heddy Stenuff of Austria.

Schaefer, Baier Favorites.

Karl Schaefer of Austria and Ernst Baier of Germany are the favorites for the men's championship, now held by Schaefer. In the prescribed figures event this afternoon, Schaefer was the winner, with Baier fourth. H. G. Sharp of England and Felix Kasper of Austria were second and third.

Baier returned, however, with Maxie Herber to win the pairs contest, in which the decision placing them first was almost unanimous. Mr. and Mrs. L. H. I. Cliffe of England took second place, followed by Pirosta and Atilla von Szretenyessy of Germany, Eva Prawitz and Otto Weis of Germany; Stephanie and Erwin Klaus, Poland, and Marise Contamine and Robert Verdun of Belgium.

U. S. Olympic Hocky Team Loses to British Six, 8-4

LONDON, Jan. 24.—(AP)—The Streatham hocky team defeated the United States Olympic squad, 8 to 4, in an exhibition game tonight. It was the third loss for the Americans in four pre-Olympic games in England, the other ending in a tie.

COLD POSTPONES STADIUM SHOW UNTIL TUESDAY

Treest, Bath Hear Chance of Bigger Gate.

Due to continued cold weather the ten round heavyweight elimination bout between Hank Bath, Fort Morgan, Colo., and Billy Treest, former Chicago Golden Gloves champion, scheduled at Chicago Stadium last night, was postponed until Tuesday. This was announced as the windup of the principals and fighters in the six supporting matches assembled at the Illinois boxing commission yesterday at 1 p. m. preparatory to being weighed in and examined.

Immediately after being informed of the new date the boxers headed for Trafton's and Madison Square loop gymnasiums to resume workouts.

Stadium officials said, with an advance of $3,000, at least $7,500 would have been taken in last night. They felt, however, that a larger crowd would attend under better weather conditions and predicted that the show on Tuesday would draw gate receipts of $15,000. This was cheering news to Treest and Bath, each of whom will be paid 20 per cent of the net receipts.

Shortly after the Stadium announcement was made Promoter Billy Cepak sent out word that the twelve round welterweight elimination contest involving Harry Dublinsky and Billy Celebron which tops his show at Cicero stadium, has been set back from Wednesday to Friday.

Gustav Eder of Hamburg, lightweight champion of Germany, who claims the European championship, is making arrangements to go on tour in this country soon. . . . Isadoro Gastanaga, Spanish heavyweight intends to leave Havana, Cuba, Tuesday for Detroit, where he may battle Lorenzo Pack at the Olympia there this spring. . . . Phil Grueber and Charley Peterson yesterday were matched to meet in a preliminary bout on the wrestling card at White City Monday. Tony Falletti and Lefty Pacer are main event principals. Other matches will bring together Del Harris and Tiger Nelson, Cleve Welch and Kay Fenlon, and Benjamin Cohen and Toots Culver. . . . Tommy Howell, Danville, Ill., lightweight, and Sammy Verse, Omaha, will be semi-final opponents in a five rounder at Marigold Gardens Monday. Eddie Zivic and Geno Salvatore meet in the feature attraction. Tony Michaels will oppose Davey White and Ben Irving has been matched with Willie Ross at four rounds.

Gene Meany yesterday was removed as secretary of the state athletic commission.

Eight amateur bouts between representatives of the Catholic Youth organization will be offered tonight at the 132d Infantry armory, 2653 West Madison street, in conjunction with the carnival being sponsored by the Union Printers apprentice school. John Bittner, flyweight, and Harry Sparrow, lightweight, who won Illinois Athletic club championships Thursday, will appear in feature matches. 84 MORE SEIZED IN MIAMI DRIVE ON ILLEGAL BETS

Miami, Fla., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Police arrested 84 persons in two horse race booking establishments in downtown Miami today as the city continued its drive against illegal gambling. In raids yesterday and the day before some 2,000 patrons were surprised at play in two large clubs. Those arrested were being released from custody on questioning unless officers found they had criminal records.

Gambling charges were made against only five of those taken to the police station today.

Mission Basket League Teams to Play Tonight

Grand Crossing and Bethany, leaders in the south section, will meet tonight in the feature contest of the Mission Basketball league at Calumet High school gymnasium, 81st and May streets. In other games Lockport will meet Ogden Park and Englewood will oppose Roseland. The first game will start at 7:30 o'clock.

Time, 1:12 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Pretty Busy, $5.60 straight, $3.80 place, $2.90 show; Cantakit, $5.50 place, $4.10 show; Joan D., $4.20 show. Winner ch. f., 3, by Busy American-Pendleton. Owner, Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs. Trainer, H. Jacobs.

PRETTY BUSY broke alertly, raced BROCKTON into defeat in the first half mile, then drew away and won nicely in hand. CANTAKIT was a stout factor from the start, ran very wide entering stretch, but was next best. JOAN D. away slowly, worked her way up, and closed a big gap. BROCKTON displayed good speed but tired suddenly in stretch. WIGGLE IN had no mishap.

SECOND RACE—Three furlongs. Claiming. Two year olds. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25.

GOLDEN GLOVES ENTRIES MUST BE MAILED JAN. 30

Change Deadline Because of Record Turnout.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

More than 3,150 entries now have been received for the Chicago Golden Gloves sectional tournaments. This number is nearly one thousand more than last year, when approximately 2,200 entered the bouts. Because of the unprecedented entry list, with increased detail for the clerks and printers who will publish the programs, the deadline for entering the tournament has been changed to midnight Jan. 30.

Six days remain in which to file application for Golden Gloves. This is more than sufficient time for any boxer who desires to apply for assignment to a physical examination. All dates for next week have been assigned. The C. Y. O. boxers will be examined Wednesday night and 800 boys have been assigned to the examination at Trafton's gymnasium Thursday night. Six hundred and fifty letters have been prepared for the examination at Trafton's on Feb. 4. This number will be increased to 1,000, and then all other applicants will be assigned to the last examination on Feb. 5.

Savoy Enters 58.

The Savoy Athletic club will be represented by 58 boys in this year's Golden Gloves tournament. Twenty-four of these are entered in the open division, leading to the Tournament of Champions. The others are novices. The open division list follows:

112 pounds—William Edwards and Terry Flannigan.
118 pounds—Edward Miller, Robert Taylor, and Theodore Taylor.
126 pounds—Wendell White, Robert Cole, and George Johnson.
135 pounds—Palmer Dewberry, William Johnson, Burnell Johnson, James Watson, and Verdie Patterson.
147 pounds—Robert Hall, Dan Calloway, and Robert Brooks.
160 pounds—Paul Frazier, Jeff Duncan, Nate Bolden, and William Ford.
175 pounds—Warren Pumphrey, Charles Richardson, and Webster Epperson.
Heavyweight—Arthur Oliver.

The Savoy entry was submitted by Robert W. Mackie. Robert Brooks, welterweight, and Note Golden, middleweight, won Illinois Athletic club championships Thursday night.

Jerry Kumin, a University of Wisconsin heavyweight, comes up with an idea whch, if translated, means he is ready to win the championship in this class.

A Badger Bristles.

"After all of the adverse publicity the University of Wisconsin has been getting," Kumin writes, "I imagine most persons think that the Badger collegians are made of whipped cream, that we are a bunch of softies and cream puffs. Well, I'm entering the Golden Gloves just to prove that we are not.

"I am 6 feet 2½ inches tall, tip the scales at 209 pounds, and I have fought 14 fights during a period of two months last summer and came out on top each time. I don't want to make myself sound too conceited, but I'm willing to step out and prove to the world what the men at Wisconsin are like."

We didn't know that any one was disparaging of the prowess of Wisconsin athletes, but if Heavyweight Kumin can lick all the other heavyweights in Chicago and from Golden Gloves land he can have a ticket to New York for the intercity matches right now.

MRS. ARNOLD AND BILL TILDEN WIN TENNIS MATCHES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Ethel Burkhart Arnold tonight defeated Jane Sharp, her professional rival, 6-3, 6-2, in an exhibition match at Catholic university.

Miss Sharp teamed up with William Tilden to win the doubles from Mrs. Arnold and Bruce Barnes, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3. In the fifth game of the first set the gallery applauded loudly when Barnes smashed over three consecutive service aces, two of which were on Tilden.

In the windup singles Tilden won from Barnes, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2.

WILSHERE SIGNS NEW CONTRACT WITH ATHLETICS

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Vernon [Whitey] Wilshere, former Indiana university pitcher, today signed his second contract to play next season with the Philadelphia Athletics of the American league. Wilshere received the contract yesterday from Manager Connie Mack.

The southpaw, who enrolled in the university for his senior year last September, was graduated this week. He will report to the Athletics' spring training camp in Fort Myers, Fla., March 2.

DE PAUL PREP QUINTET ROUTED BY ST. GEORGE

St. George piled up a 51 to 11 score on De Paul academy heavyweight basketball team in a north section Catholic league game last night. The victory sent St. George into a tie for first place with Loyola academy. Loyola remained in the running for the sectional title by defeating St. Michael, 27 to 23.

Callihan was the leader of St. George's attack against De Paul, collecting nine field goals and five free throws. St. George led at the half, 33 to 7.

A field goal by John Drish in the final forty seconds enabled Morton to score its sixth consecutive victory in the heavyweight division of the Suburban league, at the expense of Evanston, 27 to 26. It was Evanston's second defeat. Morton held a 20 to 9 advantage at the half.

Lenglet, Young French Boxer, Whips Birkie

New York, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Andre Lenglet, French heavyweight, opened his American campaign tonight by beating Hans Birkie of Germany in a ten round fight in Madison Square Garden. Lenglet weighed 208 pounds and Birkie 189.

It wasn't much of a fight, but the big French youngster showed the small gathering he is a prospect who may be heard from. The decision was unanimous. The smallest crowd of the indoor season turned out, only 2,338 paying less than $7,000 to watch the bout.

Lenglet flashed a good right hand and a willingness to use it. He is a better than fair boxer and he forced the German trial horse to miss repeatedly.

ST. VIATOR FIVE IS DEFEATED BY WESLEYAN, 30-25

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Illinois Wesleyan defeated the previously unbeaten St. Viator basketball team, 30 to 25, tonight for its sixth straight Little Nineteen victory of the season and retained first place in the conference standing. The visitors led Wesleyan during most of the opening half and had a 12 to 11 margin at half time. Score:

Carnegie Tech Quintet Defeats Georgetown, 37-31

Crane Basket Team Defeats Tuley, 54-39

Harry Krotish, tall forward, led Crane Tech's senior basketball team to its third consecutive victory in the west section of the Chicago Public High School league yesterday. Krotish scored eleven field goals and six free throws, the outstanding individual performance of the season, as Crane Tech defeated Tuley, 54 to 39.

It was Tuley's second defeat of the league season and the triumph enabled Crane Tech to remain in first place in the division. Crane held a 34 to 19 advantage at the end of the first half and led, 43 to 29, at the third period. Shearly and Gordon starred for Tuley, the former collecting 13 points and Gordon contributing six baskets and two free throws.

Roland Young of Roosevelt was on Krotish's heels for the individual scoring record as he led the team to a 44 to 36 victory over Schurz. Young scored eight field goals and seven free throws. It was Roosevelt's first victory in three games and the first setback for Schurz.

Hirsch remained in first place in the south section by defeating Parker, 32 to 28, for its third triumph. Cogan, guard, and Moore, forward, starred for the winners, the former with six baskets and Moore with three field goals and two free throws. Parker led at the half, 17 to 10.

COX PREDICTS HE WILL WIN $5,000 OPEN

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Wiffy Cox, the 38 year old Brooklyn veteran who is rapidly becoming the prophet of his own golfing fortunes, today made another prediction—that he will win the $5,000 national open match play tournament beginning here tomorrow.

Cox, who recently forecast his own victory in playoff with Bill Mehlhorn for the Sacramento open title, said he is playing better golf now than he did five years ago, when he took the match play event here. His prophecy was made in the face of several sub-par practice rounds by the field of 74 entrants over the Lake Merced course, best of which was a 66, six under par, by Ky Laffoon of Chicago.

Others who are on the premises to argue with Cox and Laffoon include Horton Smith, Walter Hagen, Sam Parks Jr., Paul Runyan, Harold McSpaden, last year's winner; Craig Wood, Jimmy Hines and Olin Dutra.

MICHIGAN SWIM TEAM DEFEATS STATE, 58 TO 26

East Lansing, Mich., Jan. 24.—[Special.] — University of Michigan national intercollegiate championship swimming team defeated the Michigan State team, 58 to 26, in a dual meet here tonight.

Members of the Wolverine team broke three pool records. Kasley lowered the pool record for the 220 yard breast stroke by 12 seconds, and Barnard knocked 5 seconds off the old record for the 400 yard free style. His time was 5:12.5. Michigan's 180 yard medley relay team lowered the record to 1:46.2 for that event.

State's only first place came when William Bell won the 100 yard free style. The two sprint events were the only ones in which State swimmers finished ahead of the university's entrants. Bissell won a third in the 100 yard free style and McNamara tied for second in the 50 yard free style.

GRAND CIRCUIT PLANS EXTENSION TO TWELVE CITIES

Cleveland, O., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Grand circuit stewards announced today that the annual meeting of the Trotting Horse club of America, which will open its annual meeting here Monday, may extend the field of its 1936 activities to a dozen cities. In 1933, eight cities were in the circuit, with nine entering in 1934 and last year. About sixteen weeks of racing are in prospect for this year.

Additions are expected from such far western cities as Pomona and San Diego, Cal., and Phoenix, Ariz. Likely racing centers for the 1936 program include Springfield, Ill., Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Goshen, N. Y., Cleveland, Toledo, and Columbus, O., Boston, Syracuse, N. Y., and Lexington, Ky.

Brooks Beats Hardgrove in Amateur Cue Meet

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Lester Brooks of Philadelphia today broke a two game losing streak in the national amateur pocket billiards tournament by defeating Al Hardgrove of Detroit, 125 to 118, in 42 innings. It was Brooks' first victory and Hardgrove's first defeat.

Iowa State Bowling Meet Opening Delayed

Davenport, Ia., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Because of the cold weather the 22d annual Iowa state bowling tournament will not begin until Sunday afternoon. It originally was scheduled to start tonight.

Muskegon Out to Repeat Rout of Shamrocks

The Muskegon Reds of the Michigan-Ontario league, who won a wild 9 to 7 game from the C. Y. O. Shamrocks on Thursday night at Muskegon, will try to repeat that achievement tomorrow afternoon when the teams renew their rivalry at Chicago Stadium. Thus far the Shamrocks are undefeated on their home ice.

In Ray Shoberg, Ed Rodell, and Mike Kuzma, Muskegon, boasts a strong scoring line. However, a member of the second line, a former University of Minnesota star who joined the club only a few weeks ago, promises to break into this combination. He is Alex MacInnis, a left winger and the best stick handler on the team. Mac Innis made two goals in his first start with the Reds and scored one of the overtime goals that beat the Shamrocks Thursday.

Jerry DeMocko, 200 pound Shamrock defenseman, is wearing a mask to protect a broken nose. Last Sunday when the Shamrocks triumphed over the highly regarded Detroit Tools, De Mocko played his usual brilliant game despite his injury.

BALLADIER, STAR COLT IN 1934, MAY RETURN TO RACES

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Edward R. Bradley's Balladier, the colt which many turf men claimed the best juvenile of 1934, probably will return to the races this year. Dick Thompson, his trainer, reports the colt is doing well and gives promise of developing into a real high class handicap horse.

Balladier now is in training, but he is not under saddle. His trainer has broken him to harness, and he is hauling a buggy several miles a day over the roads in and around Lexington. He retired to winter quarters as a juvenile with a suspicious tendon, was turned out all last year. While in pasture the tendon hardened and straightened. In the opinion of experts it will stand hard training and racing this year.

Bradley does not want him ridden in his preliminary work. He believes that the weight of a jocky or exercise boy on his back when he first resumes training might tend to hurt the impaired tendon. So he suggested the colt receive his air with no weight on his back and recommended that he be hitched to a buggy and driven four or five miles a day.

ARONSON, HOOVER LEAD FIELD IN ROLLER DERBY

Wes Aronson and Libby Hoover last night were leading the field of eleven teams in the transcontinental roller skating Derby at the Coliseum. They were closely pursued by the teams of John Rosasco and Jean Vizena, Joe Kleats and Esther Runne, and Joe Laurey and Ivy King.

Within another week, they will have reached a point equivalent to Chicago on the dash from San Diego, Cal. to New York City, a trip which started on Christmas day.

Four skaters have dropped out of the race within the last few days. They are Tom and Albie Whitney, and Jerry Owen and May Walters. Several in the field are racing in spite of injuries incurred in spills.

MAINE SWIM TEAM TO MEET CENTRAL TODAY

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Maine Township High school of Chicago will open South Bend Central's swimming schedule here tomorrow afternoon in a dual meet. Central, Indiana state champion, will have seven meets this season, including an exhibition match with the University of Michigan team, national intercollegiate and Western conference champion.

Tilden Tech of Chicago will appear here in a dual meet Feb. 13.

Comedy Team to Headline Stadium Skating Carnival

Spark Plug, the horse that dances on skates, and a rough and tumble acrobatic number will be the comedy contributions of Oscar Johnson and Eddie Shipstead at the third annual Chicago Stadium Ice carnival next Friday and Saturday nights. Johnson and Shipstead are rehersing and producing the Stadium show, as well as headlining the bill with their two comedy numbers.

Shipstead, ten years ago the boy speed skate champion of St. Paul, and his veteran partner were engaged for the full winter season last year at the Madison Square Garden in New York and performed their comedy stunts on the ice between the periods of all Ranger hocky games. They have appeared in previous Stadium carnivals and have headlined more skating shows in the United States and Canada in the last ten years than any pair in history of figure and acrobatic skating.

The Maxsons, a kid pair from St. Paul, will appear in an act rated as the best juvenile number on ice. Ruby, age 10, and Bobby, age 12, will be making their first Chicago appearance.

ternational Skiing federation, which overruled appeals by Germany and Switzerland for amendment to the rules so that there will be no restriction as to the distance. American, Canadian, and mid-European representatives also are said to be in favor of new regulations.

Before federation representatives examined the jump and ordered it changed a record leap of 271 feet had been made from the towering slide.

Constructions which allow a wider range, even when built along the lines fixed by the federation, are taboo. Advocates of a change pointed out that ski jumps in Germany, Switzerland, and Norway proved that longer distances are not necessarily dangerous to skiers.

Pack Up Your Troubles, Cubs Lotshaw Signs

salad and a special wedge of apple pie a la mode. He didn't take any coffee, explaining that he was afraid it and the two losses would keep him awake.

But we were saying Dr. Lotshaw's greatest value is when the team is traveling. He can dry the Cub raiment, pack the eight property trunks and beat the players to the depot on a quick jump. And he mothers the personal luggage with all the loving care a hen shows for her chicks. With Andy along all anybody has to do is get on and off trains. [Personal note to Lotshaw: We are wondering if you will take personal charge of our golf clubs between Catalina island and Tampa, Fla. We can't see where we will have much use for them on the series of 5 a. m. daily unloadings from the Cubs' "Dawn Patrol" special across the southland, and you ought to have room for them in your berth.]

After announcing the signing of Lotshaw, Manager Grimm and the doctor went to the Cub clubhouse, where Grimm placed his OK on four sets of 1936 uniforms. They are to be virtual duplicates of the costumes worn last year in the race for the championship.

Cocker Spaniel Club to Hold Meeting Tonight

Discussion of plans for the spring puppy match, and a talk by Dr. J. T. Kilfoy on the treatment of intestinal disorders in dogs, are on the program of the Cocker Spaniel Club of the Middlewest tonight at the Sherman hotel.

CUNNINGHAM TO FACE M'CLUSKEY, SEARS IN MILE

Two Milers to Try Luck Against Glenn Tonight.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 24.—(AP)—A pair of star two milers, gunning for Glenn Cunningham, are expected to force the world record holder into one of his amazing performances when he defends his Curley mile honors here tomorrow night in the Prout Memorial games.

Those distance runners, Ray Sears, Butler, and the New York A. C.'s Joe McCluskey, will report to the starter along with Cunningham, Joe Mangan, Billy Ray, and Frank Crowley.

He May Turn in 4:12 Mile.

Cunningham, who has no great fondness for the Boston track, refused to extend himself last year when he romped to a 4:16.4 victory. Although few admit that Glenn is risking defeat, most of Boston's track followers agree he will be forced to turn in at least a 4:12 performance.

With Sears and McCluskey concentrating on the shorter event, the Leo Larrivee two mile field suffers, and Don Lash, Indiana runner, is expected to win as he pleases from Harold Manning, Wichita, Kas., Joe and Paul Mundy from the Millrose A. A., Joe Murphy, Manhattan, Andy Zamparelli, Northeastern, and Tom Russell, Providence.

Hornbostel Enters Cheverus 1,000.

Charley Hornbostel, last year's winner in 2:17.2, stands out in the Cheverus 1,000, which also will have Harry Williamson, North Carolina, Jim Herbert of the New York Curb exchange, Louis Burns, Manhattan, and George Eiss, New York university in the field.

Eulace Peacock, Temple, national 100 meter and broad jump champion, tops the 50 yard dash field, which includes Manny Krosney, New York university, Harry Kellar, Bates, the Millrose's Phil Cody, and Francis Zelmetz, Boston college.

Wisconsin and Maroon Swim Meet Is Off

The Chicago-Wisconsin swimming and water polo meet scheduled for this afternoon at Bartlett gymnasium has been canceled. J. C. Steinauer, Badger coach, wired Midway authorities that because the examination date at Madison has been put forward, most of his men are engaged with tests.

Minnesota's wrestling team, which has shutout two nonconference opponents, will appear at Bartlett gymnasium tonight at 8 p. m. to face the Maroons in the opening Big Ten meet for both schools. Minnesota will bring three men who won third place in last year's Big Ten meet. Three promising Maroon wrestlers will make their conference debuts, Bob Finwall at 145 pounds, Miles Brousil at 135 pounds, and Fred Lehnhardt, football letterman, at 175 pounds.

George Williams Swimmers Beat Armour Tech, 50-25

George Williams college won, 50 to 25, over Armour Tech in a swimming meet in Bartlett pool at the University of Chicago last night.

Wayne University Quintet Beats George Williams

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Wayne university defeated George Williams college, 48 to 32, tonight.

ONE SCOTTSBORO DEFENDANT SHOT IN FIGHT IN AUTO

Deputy Slashed; Charge Escape Attempt.

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—A deputy sherif was slashed in the throat and Ozie Powell, one of the nine colored defendants in the Scottsboro rape case, was wounded today in a break for freedom, allegedly made by Powell and a companion while the nine colored men were being transferred from the seat of their trial at Decatur to the county jail here. A detail of 50 National Guardsmen was ordered to "stand by" as county and state officers remained on the alert.

The wounded deputy sherif, Edgar Blalock, was taken to the hospital at Cullman, Ala., near where the fight occurred in one of the caravan of cars filled with the defendants and their guards. Hospital attendants said that, although he had a deep gash in his throat, his condition was such that he had been allowed to go home.

Sherif Tells of Shooting.

Powell, who was said to have wielded the knife, was brought to the County hospital here.

Sherif Sandlin said that Roy Wright, another of the defendants, who was sitting beside Powell on the trip from Decatur, tried to attack him at the same time Powell assaulted Blalock. Sandin said he then shot Powell.

Notified of the incident and of the possible uprising of ill feeling against the colored men, Gov. Bibb Graves kept a telephone connection between his office and Birmingham. He instructed Sherif Fred McDuff here to see that Powell "is protected at all costs."

Suspect Ordered Arrested.

Sherif Sandlin ordered the arrest of a suspect for smuggling a knife to Powell at the Decatur jail. Questioned later, Powell said he bought the knife from a delivery boy in the Decatur jail for thirty cents. He identified the delivery boy only as "Ernest," a colored youth.

The nine colored men were being brought to the Jefferson county jail here for safe keeping pending resumption of the trial of Clarence Norris, the second of the defendants, at Decatur. Heywood Patterson yesterday was found guilty of the mass attack on two white women and was sentenced to 75 years in the penitentiary.

T. E. GALLAGHER DEAD; RETIRED INSURANCE MAN

Funeral services for Thomas E. Gallagher, retired insurance broker, will be held Monday morning in Old St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, 9th street and Wabash avenue, of which he had been a trustee for a number of years. Mr. Gallagher, who was 87 years old and had lived at the Union League club for 15 years, died on Thursday in Cincinnati, where he had gone to visit his daughter, Mrs. W. A. Earls.

Mr. Gallagher retired as western general agent of the Aetna Fire Insurance company in 1920, after an active career in the fire insurance business in Chicago, Cincinnati, and New York. He was a charter member of the first chapter of the American Red Cross, founded in Dansville, N. Y., in 1883 by Clara Barton.

Mr. Gallagher was a widower. Besides Mrs. Earls, he is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. John Morris of Athens, Ga., and Mrs. Francis McKeever of Chicago, and a son, Vincent L. Gallagher of Chicago.

T. E. GALLAGHER DEAD; RETIRED INSURANCE MAN

Funeral services for Thomas E. Gallagher, retired insurance broker, will be held Monday morning in Old St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, 9th street and Wabash avenue, of which he had been a trustee for a number of years. Mr. Gallagher, who was 87 years old and had lived at the Union League club for 15 years, died on Thursday in Cincinnati, where he had gone to visit his daughter, Mrs. W. A. Earls.

Mr. Gallagher retired as western general agent of the Aetna Fire Insurance company in 1920, after an active career in the fire insurance business in Chicago, Cincinnati, and New York. He was a charter member of the first chapter of the American Red Cross, founded in Dansville, N. Y., in 1883 by Clara Barton.

Mr. Gallagher was a widower. Besides Mrs. Earls, he is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. John Morris of Athens, Ga., and Mrs. Francis McKeever of Chicago, and a son, Vincent L. Gallagher of Chicago.

RICHARD R. QUAY, SON OF LATE U. S. SENATOR, IS DEAD

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Richard Roberts Quay, 72, only surviving son of the late United States Senator Matthew Stanley Quay, died today.

Like his father, who was a Pennsylvania political leader in the late '90s, Richard Quay was active in politics until his retirement more than 20 years ago.

The younger Quay launched Theodore Roosevelt's "Bull Moose" presidential campaign in 1912, and was chairman for Pennsylvania.

Quay with several others 40 years ago organized the Monongahela Tin Plate company, which later became the American Sheet and Tin Plate company.

Survivors include two sons, Richard Roberts Jr. of Washington, and William Waters Quay of Jacksonville, Fla., and a daughter, Miss Elizabeth Waters Quay of New York.

CHARLES T. ALLEN, M'HENRY COUNTY JUDGE, IS DEAD

Judge Charles T. Allen of the County court of McHenry county died yesterday at the home of his brother, Dr. George Allen, in South Bend, Ind. Judge Allen, who was 54 years old, underwent an operation for a nose ailment last November at the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., and appeared to be recovering until he suffered a relapse yesterday.

The judge was serving his third term on the McHenry county bench. He was first elected in 1926 and was reëlected in 1930 and 1934. He had often sat in the Cook county court, hearing cases arising out of election frauds.

Judge Allen's home was in Cary. He was president of the Cary State bank and also engaged in the real estate and insurance business. He was active in Republican politics.

Besides his brother, Judge Allen is survived by his widow, Vera; two sons, Russell Allen, who is first assistant state's attorney of McHenry county, and Robert Allen; and two sisters, Mrs. Rose Austin of Woodstock, and Mrs. Anton Graff of Seattle, Wash.

E. E. HOOPER, 84, DIES; VETERAN IN INSURANCE FIELD

Edwin E. Hooper, 1152 Farwell avenue, secretary of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty Company of Chicago, at 4750 Sheridan road, died of a heart attack yesterday in his office. He was 84 years old.

Mr. Hooper had lived in Chicago for 48 years and was widely known in insurance and lumber circles. In addition to his position with the casualty company he was secretary of the American Motorists Insurance company and was a director of the National Retailers Mutual Insurance company. He is survived by his widow, Harriet, and three sons.

Dr. R. V. Turner of Aurora Dies at 38 in Milwaukee

Dr. Roland V. Turner, 38 years old, Aurora physician, died Thursday in the Misericordia hospital, Milwaukee, of Addison's disease, it was learned here yesterday. He had been in poor health since he suffered an attack of pneumonia several months ago. Dr. Turner is survived by his widow, Mrs. Carol Turner, and two daughters. Funeral services will be held on Monday in the Wesley Methodist church, Aurora. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

The Rev. Edward Drown, 74, Dies; Ex-Professor

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 24.—(AP)—The Rev. Edward Staples Drown, D.D., 74, who retired six years ago as professor of theology at the Episcopal Theological school, here, died today. He joined the theological school faculty in 1889. He was the author of several religious works.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Sherlock Holmes is coming back to radio. The famous detective series is to be revived over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system on Saturday evening, Feb. 1. The programs will run for a half hour. The original radio cast, including Richard Gordon as Sherlock, will be presented with the single exception of the actor who played Dr. Watson. He died recently. The program will originate in the studios of WOR, New York.

All of the old favorites of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's series are scheduled for presentation. Each show for the first few weeks will be complete in itself. The first dramatization will be "The Speckled Band."

Two local memorial services to King George are scheduled for broadcasting tomorrow. The services at St. James Episcopal church will be carried from 11 to noon over WLS. The Rev. Duncan H. Browne will give a eulogy and there will be bagpipe music. The Edison Symphony orchestra, directed by Morgan L. Eastman, will present a half hour musical tribute to the memory of the king at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow over WENR. A feature will be the appearance of the Chicago Welsh male choir under the direction of Dr. John Gomer Jones.

Pat Kennedy, who has been heard afternoons lately at NBC, will return to the night schedules with a new four a week program called "Half After Midnight" from 12:30 to 1 a. m. over WENR Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, starting next week. Irma Glen will play the organ interludes.

Alec Templeton, Jack Hylton's clever young blind pianist, will offer his interpretation of what he would like to have his own broadcasting station be on the CBS revue, "You Shall Have Music," at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow. "Of one thing you may be sure," Alec confided. "There'll be no commercial announcements on my station. If you want to know how I'll stifle the advertisers, just listen in."

Russell Pratt, formerly "Dr. Pratt," has teamed up with Don McNeill, one of the younger wags at NBC. This mutual admiration society is to function over WMAQ at 12:45 p. m. week days under the title "Pratt & McNeill, Unlimited."

Vivian della Chiesa, young CBS soprano, will sing at the reception for the opening of the 12th Hoosier salon at Marshall Field's galleries this evening. Like all other participants in the activities of this salon, Miss della Chiesa is a native of Indiana.

Jack Benny and his circus of clowns, stooges, poets, and musicians will abandon Hollywood after two more broadcasts and trek eastward. Their first Radio City show will be aired Feb. 9.

JOHN NELSON DIES HERE; CANADIAN ROTARY LEADER

John Nelson, Canadian journalist, a former president of Rotary International, died of a heart ailment yesterday in his room at the Bismarck hotel. He was 62 years old.

JOHN NELSON.

Mr. Nelson came to Chicago ten days ago from his home in Montreal to attend a meeting of the international board of directors of Rotary in his capacity as a trustee of the Rotary foundation. He became ill several days ago and his wife, Clara, was summoned to Chicago.

Mr. Nelson was managing editor and publisher of several daily papers in Canada for many years. At the time of his death he was supervisor of the public relations department of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada. He was a contributor to Canadian and American magazines and was the author of a book, "The Canadian Provinces—Their Policies and Problems."

He was also honorary secretary of the Canadian Institute of National Affairs, one of the founders of the Institute of Pacific Relations, and was twice a delegate to imperial press conferences in London. He was president of Rotary International in 1933 and 1934. In addition to his widow, Mr. Nelson is survived by two sons and two daughters.

Mrs. Ella Condie Lamb, 74, Famous Artist, Is Dead

Cresskill, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Mrs. Ella Condie Lamb, 73, internationally famous artist, died unexpectedly here at her home, the Fold. She was the wife of Charles Rollinson Lamb, a prominent artist, with whom she collaborated on many important art projects. Mrs. Lamb was particularly well known for her mosaics, murals, and portrait work. With Violet Oakley she was the first women ever elected to the National Society of Mural Painters. She also was a life member of the National Arts club.

ARMOUR SEEKS BRITISH LOAN TO RETIRE STOCK

Move Planned to Aid Common Shares.

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

Frederick H. Prince, chairman of the board of Armour & Co., will sail for England shortly to complete a financing operation with British interests which will permit the retirement of the $57,728,600 outstanding 7 per cent preferred stock of Armour & Co. of Delaware.

F. H. PRINCE.

The Boston capitalist disclosed his plan after the annual stockholders' meeting of Armour & Co., at which he said the management is committed to a policy of reducing prior charges to aid common stockholders. He told shareholders the Delaware retirement was the first step under consideration, but was not definite as to means of carrying out the plan.

Expects to Sell Bonds.

Prince later indicated that he expects to sell a bond issue on the English properties of Armour & Co. and use the proceeds for retirement of the Delaware issues. He disclosed that he has received "a very attractive offer" from British interests and let it be understood that he expects to close the deal in the next few months. One obstacle to the plan, observers said, was the possible difficulty of obtaining consent of British authorities to the release of the funds in England.

To retire the Delaware preferred, which is callable at 110, requires $63,501,460, but the premium paid would be offset quickly by the expected saving in charges. Interest on the proposed bonds, it is believed, would be little more than half the $3,826,186 annual dividend requirement on the stock. This would mean a saving of nearly 2 millions annually to Armour & Co. of Illinois, the parent company.

Prince Explains Situation.

It was in answer to a question put to President Robert H. Cabell concerning the $12,000,000 processing tax refund that Prince made his statement of policy.

"That's a question I'd like to answer, if you don't mind," said the chairman. "We inherited a capital structure which was most unfortunate. Our policy is to reduce prior charges to benefit common stockholders. Details are up to the legal department, including application of processing tax refunds.

"We plan to call the Delaware preferred stock. That would be a saving of four millions and would mean about a $1 a share to the common. We are going to do everything possible to aid the common stockholders' position."

Proxy Fight Settled.

The stockholder proxy fight led by Fred J. Leuckel on five of the Armour directors because of their interest in stock yards properties was settled amicably with Leuckel and his nominee, Allen R. Walsh, being placed on the board of directors. Both live in Trenton, N. J.

The board was cut from 21 to 18 members. Retired from the board were Philip L. Reed, recently resigned as vice president and treasurer to become associated with Winslow Brothers & Smith; Arthur Meeker, Henry W. Boyd, president of J. K. Mosser Leather company, an Armour subsidiary; Harry G. Mills, vice president of Armour & Co., and Charles F. Curtiss, dean of agriculture of Iowa State college.

The other 16 directors were reelected and the two new men added. The validity of the election was protested by Attorney Lewis F. Jacobson on the ground that proxies obtained by Leuckel prior to Jan. 23, when some misstatements of a previous letter to stockholders by Leuckel were corrected, were illegal.

Charles J. Faulkner, director and general counsel, and Attorney Kirkland were agreed that the proxies were valid, whether misrepresentations had been made or not.

Improves Advertising Program.

Cabell confined his presidential remarks to an explanation of steps taken by the management to coördinate the various divisions of the company and increase efficiency while keeping costs down.

"We are well satisfied with our equipment and facilities for producing products of high quality, he said.

"We are not well satisfied that we are doing the best possible job of merchandising. Accordingly we have revised and, in our opinion, improved our advertising program."

The present advertising program through "outstanding magazines and newspapers" has been more effective in reaching consumers and obtaining coöperation of retail dealers than any he can remember, Cabell said.

Tribune Will Help Income Tax Payers Compile Returns

A marked increase in early requests for assistance in compiling income tax returns is being shown this year at THE TRIBUNE'S public service offices. To meet the demand a representative of the internal revenue department has been stationed at 1 South Dearborn street, two weeks earlier than is customary. Aid in filling out the returns and notary service are provided without charge.

Top Deposit Interest Rates Set by FDIC

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—The Federal Deposit Insurance corporation today announced maximum rates of interest that may be paid on deposits by the 7,800 government insured banks that are not members of the federal reserve system.

Under the federal insurance scheme, deposits are guaranteed [in insured banks only] up to $5,000 per depositor. The FDIC assesses the banks to gather funds for administrative expenses and to set up a reserve from which the guaranties may be met whenever an insured bank fails.

Become Effective Feb. 1.

The maximum rates for the nonfederal reserve member banks must be observed after Feb. 1, 1936. The only exception to the rule is that the banks which have already entered into contractual obligations to pay higher rates, and cannot legally void these obligations, may carry out their contracts.

Not more than 2½ per cent interest, compounded quarterly, may be paid on savings deposits or on time deposits with a maturity date at least six months after the date of deposit. This amount of interest may also be paid on a postal savings deposit "which constitutes time deposit."

A maximum of 2 per cent, compounded quarterly, may be paid on time deposits with a maturity date from 90 days to six months after the date of deposit.

Not more than 1 per cent interest may be paid on time deposits with a maturity date less than 90 days from the date of deposit.

Indefinite Maturities.

Banks which on Jan. 23, 1936, have outstanding certificates of indefinite maturity representing deposit liabilities drawing interest as savings deposits must, before Feb. 1, 1937, discontinue to pay the rate applicable to savings deposits unless the certificates are converted into savings deposits as defined in the regulation just issued.

A year ago, when the FDIC proposed to set uniform maximum interest rates on the deposits of nonmember insured banks, Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] criticized the proposal. Authority to set rates for banks was specifically given the FDIC in the banking act of 1935. The rates set are the same as those prescribed for the federal reserve member banks.

NEW NATIONAL BANK WILL BE OPENED TODAY

The new Madison-Crawford National bank will open formally today in the Garfield park building, 4010 West Madison street, with reception hours from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. It is the first National bank to open in 1936 and is the largest bank to open in Chicago since the 1933 moratorium.

It has capitalization of $300,000 including $50,000 surplus and $50,000 contingent reserve. Stockholders subscribed to 2,000 shares at $150 each. The new institution will offer every banking and safe deposit facility, President T. H. Golightly announced. It is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

Organization of the bank was sponsored by local business men led by the Garfield Park Business Men's association. There was no bank in the district for five years.

Reports Output of Autos Recedes for Second Week

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Cram's Reports, Inc., said today that production of passenger cars and trucks in the United States and Canada declined for the second successive week to a total of 87,415 units, compared with 95,170 for the week ended Jan. 18. A year ago this week the output was 68,490 units.

U. S. TO TAKE CONTROL OF CHICAGO POULTRY MARKET ON MARCH 4

Federal control of the Chicago poultry market will go into effect on March 4, according to an announcement made in Washington yesterday by the bureau of agriculture. The control will be administered under the provisions of the federal packers and stockyards act.

Placing the Chicago market under federal supervision means that several hundred poultry dealers operating here and all other handlers of poultry and truckers dealing in poultry must obtain federal licenses to carry on business.

The decision to make Chicago a federally controled poultry market follows a hearing which took place here last December at which leading poultry interests, including the Live Poultry Shippers' association, favored it. George R. Sweeney, vice president and general manager of the association, said it was believed that federal control would bring a reduction in the present spread of 12 to 15 cents between wholesale and retail prices.

V. E. Foster, charged with administering the federal packers and stockyards act in Chicago, will direct the poultry control.

RADIO CAPITAL PLAN SUBMITTED TO DIRECTORS

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Directors of the Radio Corporation of America today received from Joseph P. Kennedy, former head of the securities and exchange commission, a report of his studies of the company's capital structure and his recommendations as to what should be done, David Sarnoff, president of the corporation, announced. Sarnoff said the directors will meet at an early date for full consideration of the subject.

According to the reports in the financial district, the plan involves the exchange of the present 7 per cent preferred "A" shares of $50 par value for $30 cash per share and a certain amount of new 5 per cent preferred stock. Holders of the present $5 preferred "B" shares would be offered $7 a share in cash and new 4 per cent convertible preferred stock. Dividend arrearages on the preferred B stock amount to $20 a share.

Sing Sing Prison Requests Return of $25,000 AAA Tax

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Sing Sing prison wants a refund of $25,000 of processing taxes which it paid for the operation of its industrial department under the agricultural adjustment act which was held unconstitutional by the United States Supreme court. Warden Lewis E. Lawes announced today that application for the refund had been made to the government.

Federal Bonds Drop as Bonus Veto Is Beaten

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—United States government obligations responded to the swift passage of the soldiers' bonus bill over the presidential veto by the house of representatives with the sharpest declines of the week today on the New York Stock exchange.

Declines ranged up to 11-32 point with thirteen of the issues sustaining losses of ⅛ of a point or more. The guaranteed loans proved vulnerable to the selling. The Home Owners Loan 3s of 1944-'52 made the widest decline, while the Federal Farm Mortgage 3s of 1944-'49 closed off 9-32 point. Sales of federal issues amounted to $1,010,800, compared with $1,111,100 on Thursday.

Speculative Issues Quiet.

The speculative demand for second grade rail and the more sensitive public utility bonds was decidedly less in evidence today and those that extended Thursday's advances were the exception rather than the rule. On the average domestic corporate bonds were moderately lower on a somewhat smaller turnover.

Total transactions of all groups today amounted to $18,358,800, compared with $22,879,100 on Thursday. The declines among the lower priced rail list, however, were confined to fractions in a majority of cases, while a few recorded slight gains on the day.

Two Oil Issues Are Weak.

Weak spots in the industrial list included the issues of Pan American Petroleum and Richfield Oil, both sustaining losses of 3 to 3¼ points. Higher grade corporate loans held within a narrow price range in quiet trading.

Foreign dollar bonds were irregularly higher. United Kingdom loans rose, while several of the less active European issues were fractionally better. Mixed movements ruled among the Latin-American bonds.

Southern Pacific's 1935 Operating Profit Rises 20%

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Southern Pacific lines had a net profit of $20,319,879 from operations in 1935, president A. D. McDonald reported today. This was an increase of $3,316,222 over the net in 1934—a gain of about 20 per cent.

4 OF FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD TO LOSE PLACES

Eccles and Szymczak Likely Holdovers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Four members of the federal reserve board have been notified by President Roosevelt that they will not be reappointed when the new board is announced on Monday, it was learned today.

ADOLPH C. MILLER.

Those who received their walking papers are the following:

J. J. Thomas, vice chairman and a former campaigner for Roosevelt in Nebraska.

Adolph C. Miller, appointed to the original board when organized in 1914.

Charles S. Hamlin, also an original member of the board.

George R. James, former Tennessee business man.

This left Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the board of governors, and M. S. Szymczak, former city controller of Chicago, as the only two members of the present board virtually certain of reappointment.

Asked about the appointments at his press conference, the President said that he expected to send them up to the senate for confirmation on Monday. He disclosed that he had selected six of the seven members that will constitute the new board under the recent banking act. They are to take office Feb. 1.

Four Names Mentioned.

Besides Eccles and Szymczak, it was learned from reliable sources that the other four men picked are as follows:

Joseph P. Broderick, former superintendent of banks in New York.

Ronald Ranson, official of the Fulton National bank of Atlanta.

John H. McKee, chief bank examiner of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Ralph W. Morrison of San Antonio, a delegate to the London economic conference in 1933.

The President, it was said, had listened to the advice of Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], who pushed through the federal reserve act as a member of the house of representatives in 1913. Glass vetoed a list presented by Eccles. One of the men on the list was William Trufant Foster, a writer, lecturer, and advocate of large government expenditures during a depression.

At his press conference the President waved airily to one side reports that the government would soon embark on new monetary experiments. Inflationary rumors based on the paying of the veterans' bonus and continued governmental spending have been current here and abroad during the last week.

Told that there was some discussion that the government was going to establish a free gold market, the President said that sounded grand and asked whether it meant that anybody could come in and help themselves.

A free gold market would be one in which all government restrictions would be lifted on foreign exchange trading. Under the present policy the government permits gold to be exported under license through the federal reserve system to foreign central banks.

Advised to Shun Market.

Informed that the stock market was going up on reports of a silver revaluation policy to be announced, the President told his hearers that it was just another one of those things and advised them to stay out of the market.

Silver revaluation, urged by persons interested in the metal, along with the 1 billion 800 million dollars in the treasury's exchange stabilization fund have been proposed as sources for paying the bonus. The treasury is carrying 282,000,000 ounces of silver bullion at the cost price of purchase. The average price paid was 64½ cents. The metal would be revalued at the monetary value of $1.29 an ounce, according to the scheme.

The President said that he knew of no negotiations going on at present in the field of currency stabilization.

Dollar Drops as Europeans See Inflation Signals Here

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Under the pressure of widespread and circumstantial rumors of an impending currency move on the part of the Roosevelt administration, reinforced by alarms stirred up by the passage of bonus legislation, the dollar fell heavily in the foreign exchange market today.

The movement, which followed a less pronounced fall of the dollar earlier in the week, was the strongest advance against the United States currency in sixteen months and appeared to reflect the start of a flight of European capital from this market. The sole impetus behind the development, according to bankers, was the flood of rumors, here and abroad, forecasting revaluation of silver, establishment of a gree gold market, and large scale issuance of currency against gold and silver profits.

Roosevelt Announcement Rumored.

The rumors, which have been heard in Wall street for several days, attained broad circulation yesterday and culminated in a report that the President would issue an important announcement on the currency over the week-end, possibly tomorrow night.

The foreign exchange market displayed its sensitivenesss to developments of an inflationary character by its responses to the day's developments in the matter of the bonus. Having started off strong the foreign currencies weakened somewhat when the President's veto of the bonus was announced, but began at once to rise again when the news of the progress of voting in the house of representatives indicated that the veto would be overwhelmingly overridden.

The pound sterling which had been advancing in the early part of the week, partly on inflation rumors and partly on strong commercial demand opened yesterday at $5, showing an overnight gain of 1½ cents. From that figure it declined to $4.98¾, but then recovered, advancing to $5.02¼ on the news of the vote in the house and closing at $5.00⅛, up 1⅝ cents net.

The French franc, which is being supported in terms of the pound, rose with it. At its highest price, 6.68 cents, the franc was within 1⅛ points of the price at which gold could profitably be withdrawn from the treasury here and shipped to Paris. The closing price of the franc, 6.66⅛ cents, showed a net gain of 2 points on the day and was better than 3 points above parity.

Guilder Above Gold Point.

The Netherlands guilder reached 68.84 cents, compared with a gold export point of 68.7458 cents, and closed at 68.65 cents, up 23 points. The Swiss franc rose to 32.95 cents and closed at 32.87 cents, up 10 points. The Canadian dollar reached a premium of ⅛ cent.

Gold imports of $1,637,200 from Canada and $241,800 from India were received here and $140,100 of gold was released from earmark. The London gold price was raised one halfpenny an ounce but at time of fixing with gold at 140 shillings 10 pence an ounce and dollar exchange at $4.99¾, the dollar equivalent for the metal was $35.19, the highest it has been since the middle of last May.

RESERVE BOARD RAISES MARGINS ON SECURITIES

Regarded as Effort to Check Boom.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—(AP)—The federal reserve board tonight issued an order, effective Feb. 1, requiring more than a 22 per cent increase in margin requirements on most securities.

The board gave no explanation. One official said privately, however, that it obviously was intended to slow down any incipient stock market boom.

Effective Feb. 1, under the board's orders, the amount of credit which can be extended against stocks will be reduced to 45 per cent of the current market value instead of the present 55 per cent. This means that the man buying stocks will have to put up 55 instead of 45 per cent of the purchase price.

Link Action with Bonus.

Some financial observers immediately speculated upon whether the action had any connection with the apparently imminent passage of a cash payment bonus bill over President Roosevelt's veto. Some experts have been reading inflationary possibilities into final enactment of the bonus because it would entail further heavy borrowing from the banks against the government's credit.

It was noted also that the action came after nightfall of a day in which inflation rumors were frequently heard in foreign exchange circles, coupled with symptoms of a touch of inflationary fever in the speculative markets over the last week.

Some time after the regulations were issued, a spokesman for the board called newspapermen to emphasize that the regulations do not apply to existing accounts, but to new transactions after the effective date.

Action Causes Surprise.

The action brought expressions of surprise in many official quarters. One member of the federal reserve board first said he did not think the action had been taken. It was "news to me," he said, that the board actually had acted. He explained, however, that he had left the board

MONEY RUMORS AND TAX FEARS CHECK STOCKS

Closing Irregular; Volume Is Smaller.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 24.—Conflicting reports on dollar devaluation prospects and fears of higher taxes as a result of headlong government expenditures put a damper on inflationary buying on the stock exchange today. Aviation and amusement shares, some of the oils, and a sprinkling of specialties were able to carry on despite discouraging developments, however, enabling the market to keep up what amounted to no worse than a mixed appearance.

Changes in prices were narrower than they have been during the last two days, few of them running to more than a point. Volume was appropriately smaller, falling to 2,557,932 shares.

Profit Taking in Evidence.

Light profit taking was in evidence in several groups which had been prominent on the week's forward movement. A sizeable cluster of new price highs for 1935-'36 were recorded at one time or another during the day.

The President's veto of the bonus bill was believed to have slowed up buying in some directions, but whatever effect it might have had was offset to some extent by the prompt action of the house in overriding the veto and advices indicating that the senate would follow without much delay.

The fresh weakness in the dollar on the foreign exchanges whetted demand for the silver issues and gains of a major fraction to about 2 points were made by U. S. Smelting, Cerro De Pasco, American Smelting, Howe Sound, and others. Some of the gold shares looked up for a while, but the close found most of them easing.

Trafic Figures Weaken Rails.

An unexpected decline in car loadings figures acted as a drag on the rails. New York Central, Delaware and Hudson, and Atchison gave up a point or so each.

Radio Corporation was depressed by uncertainties on its revamping program which Joseph P. Kennedy was scheduled to present to directors in the afternoon.

Aviation issues continued to advance. Sperry was a leader of the low priced shares, selling at the highest price on record, above 20. Curtiss-Wright was active. Boeing and Douglas gained a point each.

Utilities were firm, but the mail orders and tobaccoes were less sure of what to do. Motors were also irregular, Chrysler dropping more than a point.

COMMODITY PRICES

New York, Jan. 24.—The Associated Press wholesale price index of 35 basic commodities today advanced to 77.44. The previous day it was 77.27; a week ago, 76.28; a month ago, 77.40, and a year ago, 77.03.

RFC SAYS GRAVE CRISIS CAUSED HUGE BANK LOAN

Testifies Cermak Feared Public Upheaval.

Testimony regarding a grave financial crisis existing in Chicago in June, 1932, was submitted yesterday by attorneys for the Reconstruction Finance corporation in the agency's suit to collect about $10,000,000 from Illinois stockholders of the Central Republic Trust company, liquidating shell for the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, which ceased to function in the fall of 1932.

The high spot was the reading into the evidence minutes of a meeting of the board of directors of the RFC in which it was stated that former Mayor Cermak had advised the RFC that public sentiment was such in Chicago that he could not be responsible for law and order in the city unless relief came from some source.

State Reason for Loan.

Cermak attributed a part of this condition to the fact that the city was unable to pay its employés and was unable to obtain further credits from the banks. It was said this situation, coupled with the heavy runs on the Chicago banks, were impelling factors in the authorization by the RFC directors of a $90,000,000 loan to the Central Republic bank.

The suit, which is being held before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, without a jury, got well under way yesterday as Attorney Harold Rosenwald for the RFC presented a large number of documents and telegrams which played a part in the hectic June days when Chicago bankers were endeavoring to avert a general banking collapse.

Names of many present and former bank leaders were mentioned in the documents, including Gen. Charles Gates Dawes, the late Melvin A. Traylor, former president of the First National bank, and George M. Reynolds, then chairman of the executive committee of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company. Gen. Dawes had resigned from the RFC to return to the helm of the Central Republic.

Held Long Conference.

The testimony brought out that it was at 9:15 a. m. June 27 that the RFC directors authorized the $90,000,000 loan after a conference all day and night on Sunday, June 26, in which leading bankers in Chicago and New York and RFC officials in Washington were linked by telephone.

Authorization of the loan came, according to the testimony submitted by the RFC, only after Gen. Dawes had given telegraphic assurance that any money advanced by the governmental agency would be used in keeping the bank open and not for purposes of liquidation.

H. P. Preston of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, Reynolds, Traylor, and other bank and RFC officials had certified that they believed that the $90,000,000 loan would be adequately covered by the bank's entire assets, which were estimated at $118,000,000, it was said. The RFC now contends that even with collections of the double liability of the stockholders there will be a deficiency.

Reports on Bank's Position.

It was at the meeting on June 27, the testimony said, that messages from RFC agents in Chicago quoted Gen. Dawes as saying on Sunday that unless he received assurances of adequate loans his bank would be unable to open.

During yesterday's hearing it was brought out that RFC and the attorneys for the stockholders differed sharply as to the date when the old Central Republic ceased to function as a bank of deposit and when the last $50,000,000 in the $90,000,000 credit previously arranged was turned over.

The RFC contends that the bank ceased to exist on Oct. 6, 1932, while the attorneys for the stockholders contend it was Oct. 5. The RFC holds the $50,000,000 loan became effective Oct. 6 and the stockholders contend it was effective Oct. 5.

Stockholders assert in their defense that it was beyond the power of the Central Republic bank directors under the Illinois statutes to negotiate a loan after the bank had ceased to accept deposits. They maintain that for this reason the $50,000,000 loan in question was made without any legal powers of the directors and consequently the stockholders should not be held responsible for it.

Judge Wilkerson adjourned the hearing until 10:30 a. m. on Tuesday.

WEEK'S RETAIL NEWSPAPER ADS 6.3% ABOVE 1935

Retail newspaper advertising in the week ended Jan. 18 climbed 6.3 per cent above a year ago, the magazine Advertising Age announced yesterday. The estimate was based on a survey of 59 leading cities. Lineage totaled 13,483,383, compared with 12,684,069 in the corresponding period of 1935.

The magazine said the amount of advertising placed in newspapers by retail merchants is the most accurate and speedy index of retail business activity, because retailers must get immediate results from their advertising, and the speed with which newspapers are printed enables retailers to change their commitments from hour to hour.

Milk Producers Protest Treaty with Switzerland

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—(AP)—The National Coöperative Milk Producers' association protested today that the American trade agreement with Switzerland "will be very detrimental to the Swiss cheese industry in the United States." A statement issued by Charles W. Holman, association secretary, said that under the old tariff rate the average Swiss cheeze was dutiable at 9.8 cents a pound, while under the new rate it will be seven cents.

Railways Ask I. C. C. to Make Freight Surcharges Permanent

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Indefinite continuation of emergency freight rates was asked of the interstate commerce commission today by the nation's railroads. The surcharges were placed in effect last April and expire June 30 next. It was estimated they would raise an additional $85,000,000 in carrier revenues.

The railroads' petition asserted the additional charges have brought no disturbance in business conditions and termed their continuation "absolutely necessary" to meet increased costs of operation.

Assert Complaints Are Few.

"There has been little complaint from shippers against payment of these charges," the plea said. "They have not resulted in losses of any substantial volume of trafic to competing agencies. On the contrary, there has occurred since the charges were made effective, a slight upward trend in the petitioners' trafic."

In support of their application to have the emergency charges made part of their regular schedule of rates the railroads pointed out that increases were granted to permit them to meet increased operating expenses caused by higher costs of materials and supplies and the upturn in the level of railway wages which resulted from restoration of former peak rates of pay last April 1.

Based on 1935 operations the carriers estimate the addition to their pay rolls amounted to approximately $160,000,000 annually and that the increase in operating expenses over 1933 aggregates $100,000,000 a year.

The petition says the rate boost yielded additional revenues of $65,000,000 from April 18 to Dec. 1, 1935, and it is estimated they will produce more than $100,000,000 in additional income for the full year, April 18, 1935, to April 18, 1936.

Cite Deficit Last Year.

Although there has been an increase in railroad freight trafic during the last few months, the petition points out that railroads suffered a net deficit of $25,128,000 for the first eleven months of 1935 and that the causes which brought about increased expenses will continue to operate in 1936.

"Notwithstanding charges heretofore authorized by the commission in this proceeding," the bill adds, "railroads still stand in dire need of additional revenues."

FREIGHT TRAFIC DIPS, BUT HOLDS SEASONAL PEAK

Total Is 8.5 Per Cent Above Year Ago.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Freight trafic in the United States last week maintained a five-year seasonal peak despite a contra-seasonal decline from the preceding week, according to figures released here today by the Association of American Railroads.

The total for the week was 611,408 cars, a decline of 3,620 cars, or 0.6 per cent, from the preceding week, but 48,582 cars, or 8.5 per cent, above a year ago, and 49,506 cars above the corresponding week of 1934.

Caused by Drop in Coal.

Rail interests were not especially disturbed over the contra-seasonal decline as it was caused principally by a drop in coal shipments, which will mount with this week's cold weather.

Encouragement was taken in the more than seasonal gain in miscellaneous freight, said to reflect an expansion in the movement of consumers' goods.

This marked the eighth consecutive week in which a five year high was established for the particular week.

Trafic by Classifications.

Totals for the various freight classifications last week were:

FLOUR MILLERS GET MILLION IN PROCESSING TAX

Release of $1,078,000 in processing taxes paid under protest by the Washburn-Crosby company, flour millers, pending determination of the constitutionality of the agricultural adjustment act, was ordered yesterday by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

At the same time the court denied a petition of the Lincoln Baking company of Evansville, Ind., to intervene in the proceedings. The Lincoln company claims that before Washburn-Crosby is entitled to a refund it must first prove it bore the burden of the processing tax.

The Lincoln company was granted leave to file its petition so that an appeal can be taken to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Eckhart Milling to Erect $98,000 Storage Building

The B. A. Eckhart Milling company has obtained a building permit for a $98,000 seven story brick building to be used for grain storage. It will be erected at 1324 West Carroll avenue.

EGGS STEADY TO HIGHER; BUTTER CLOSE IS IRREGULAR

January refrigerator eggs advanced yesterday on the Chicago Mercantile exchange for the third straight day. New buying and short covering induced by the continued cold weather were responsible for the upturn. Profit taking caused a reaction from the bet prices, but the close was ⅞ cent higher at 19⅛ cents. Other futures were unchanged to ⅛ cent higher.

While there was a liberal trade in butter, prices held within narrow limits and the close was ⅛ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher. January finished at 32½ cents per pound. Cash butter was ½ to ¾ cent higher with sales at the best price of the season.

Sales of butter were 116 cars and eggs 46 cars. Prices:

SEC DISCLOSES MORE LARGE STOCK GIFTS; ONE EXCEEDS MILLION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Roy D. Chapin of Detroit, former secretary of commerce, and president of the Hudson Motor Car company, made a gift of 70,000 shares of common stock of that company, valued at about $1,067,500, on Nov. 14 and at the end of that month retained 103,270 shares, according to a supplemental report on transactions in equity securities by officers, directors, and chief stockholders of corporations for November, and some of the preceding months, made public today by the Securities and Exchange commission.

W. N. Reynolds of Winston Salem, N. C., director of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, made two large gifts of B common stock of that corporation, 10,000 shares on Nov. 4 and 20,000 shares on Nov. 7, with an aggregate value of about $1,700,000, and reported holdings at the month end of 133,397 shares.

Among the gifts recorded as made Oct. 22 was 3,112 shares of 5 per cent guaranteed cumulative preferred stock of Standard Export company, then valued at about $352,000, by Rockefeller Foundation of New York. The foundation retained 80,393 shares.

Edward S. Whitney of New York, director of Union Carbide and Carbon company, reported making a gift on Oct. 21 of 3,000 common shares of that company's stock, valued at $216,000.

Chicago gifts were reported as follows:

Lester Armour, director Armour Company of Delaware, 4,600 shares 7 per cent cumulative guaranteed preferred, through holding company on Aug. 16. Value, $487,000; holdings, 2,733.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr., director Inland Steel company, 1,200 common on Nov. 2. Value, $120,000; holdings, 9,660.

Samuel Goodman, officer, director, Florsheim Shoe company, 8,600 B common on Oct. 25. Holdings, 22,768.

GERMAN ARMING BOOSTS PROFITS OF KRUPP FIRM

ESSEN, Germany, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Germany's rearmament boosted the profits of Krupp by more than $1,500,000 during the year ending Sept. 30, 1935, the annual report of the great war time gun founders dynasty disclosed today.

Net income was approximately $4,239,400, against $2,726,500 in the preceding year. It was the second consecutive year of profits, all of which were turned back into factory improvements and research for raw materials substitutes.

A dividend may be possible, the report said, if business maintains its present level.

The report frankly attributed the increase to "measures taken by the reich government, which created demands for the company's iron and steel products." Attempts to find wider foreign markets, however, were unfruitful, and with the increasing profits Krupp's taxes, likewise, have doubled.

DECEMBER JOBS RISE 323,000, SAYS FEDERAL REPORT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—An increase of 323,000 during December in the number of workers employed in the manufacting and non-manufacturing industries, was reported today by Secretary Perkins. These industries employed 694,700 more than in December, 1934, and weekly pay rolls were $38,100,000 higher, Miss Perkins said.

"The outstanding features of the December employment situation were the substantial gains in employment and pay rolls in the retail trade, and the smaller than seasonal declines in employment in the manufacturing and private building construction," the secretary said. "Employment in the retail trades probably increased more in New York City than elsewhere."

Pet Milk Company Acquires Building Here for Plant

The Pet Milk company, which maintains manufacturing units in 30 locations throughout the country, yesterday purchased the two story concrete building at 1713 Fulton street from William Kehl for an undisclosed cash consideration, through J. J. Harrington & Co. Extensive alterations and instalation of special machinery are under way. The new building will be devoted principally to the scientific manufacture of ice cream mixes used by ice cream manufacturers in the Chicago area.

PASSING OF AAA CURTAILS U. S. MEAT IMPORTS

Restores Big Markets to American Farmers.

Since the passing of the AAA control program and its processing taxes markets for millions of pounds of meats and meat products have been restored to the American farmer. In the two weeks following the Supreme court's decree imports of foreign meats at New York dropped more than 60 per cent and American sales of meat abroad rose sharply, department of agriculture figures revealed yesterday.

Figures for the entire country are not yet available, but New York imports are indicative of the general trend. In the two weeks importations of beef, pork, canned meats, tallow, and sausage at the eastern port dropped to 665,957 pounds, as compared with 1,854,322 pounds in the two preceding weeks and 2,088,158 pounds a year ago.

Beef Imports Fall.

Beef imports at New York for the two weeks fell to 356,427 pounds as compared with 986,753 pounds in the preceding two weeks and 499,291 pounds a year ago. Imports of pork dropped from 610,720 pounds to 261,347 pounds, but even still above a year ago. Tallow imports dropped to only 7,206 pounds, against 208,746 pounds in the two preceding weeks and 1,082,806 pounds a year ago. Sausage imports at 40,977 pounds compared with 48,103 pounds and 12,280 pounds. No canned meat was imported during the two weeks, but a year ago New York received 410,503 pounds.

Although there have been several temporary declines in the volume of imports in recent months, the drop since the tax ended is by far the largest, and the first to be accompanied by a rise in exports. While the tax was in effect imports to America showed some of the largest increases on record.

WEATHER RULES LIVE STOCK

Widely fluctuating prices marked the "weather markets" for live stock at the Chicago Stockyards yesterday. Only 4,000 cattle and 7,000 hogs arrived, but with transportation facilities expected to be operating normally over the week-end the trade anticipates heavier receipts for early in the week and buyers late yesterday demanded sharp cuts in their live costs.

For the most part the sharp rise that began in midweek collapsed yesterday, the exception being selected light hogs that retained the full strength throughout the session. Hogs weighing downwards from 200 pounds rose 10 cents to 20 cents under brisk competition between local and eastern buyers, the top reaching $10.70. Other hogs opened steady to 10 cents higher, but slumped 10 to 25 cents laters.

The demand for cattle was extremely narrow, with buyers looking forward to an increase in the run, resulting in a drop of 25 cents to 50 cents in many of the longfed steers. Eastern demand for these was light.

Farmers got 15,000 sheep and lambs on the market yesterday despite the cold and snow. Prices fell mostly 25 cents, packers buying the bulk of the liberal supply at $10.50, while city butchers and shippers paid $10.60 for several carloads.

PRICES OF LARD FUTURES DECLINE 5 TO 10 CENTS

Lard fluctuated in an erratic manner yesterday, being affected largely by the action of the hog market. Shorts covered early, but on the upturn there was selling—credited to hedging by cash interests—and a reaction followed. Closing trades were at net losses of 5 to 10 cents. Clear bellies [salt pork] closed nominally unchanged.

Cash lard was quoted at $11.05 with loose $10.75, leaf $10.75, leaf $10.25, and clear bellies at $14.75 per 100 pounds. Prices, in dollars per 100 pounds:

STOCK SPLITUP BY MINNEAPOLIS HONEYWELL CO.

Directors Plan to Give 3 Shares for One.

Stockholders of the Minneapolis Honeywell Regulator company will be asked to approve a three-for-one splitup in the common stock at the annual meeting on March 3 and to increase the authorized number of shares from 500,000 to 750,000 shares. At present there are 207,321 shares outstanding, which would be reclassified into 621,963 shares.

Directors also declared an extra dividend of 75 cents, payable Feb. 15 to stock of record Feb. 4. The regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents was also declared. Last Nov. 15 an extra of 25 cents was paid in addition to the regular disbursement.

Earnings Show Increase.

Preliminary earnings figures for 1935 show a net profit of approximately $8 a share on the present common stock outstanding, compared with $4.69 a share in 1934 and $3.44 in 1933.

Other dividend actions yesterday included an increase in the rate on the Armstrong Cork company stock to 37½ cents from 25 cents quarterly. An extra of 25 cents was paid on Dec. 2. The Monsanto Chemical company declared the usual extra dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock.

The Crown Zellerbach corporation declared dividends of 75 cents a share on the Class A and B 6 per cent cumulative preferred stocks, both payable in March. On Jan. 15, when the company made payments of $1 the arrears totaled $16.75 a share on each of the stocks.

Hamilton Watch Pays Arrears.

The Hamilton Watch company voted a dividend of $2.50 on the 6 per cent preferred stock, payable Feb. 29. On Dec. 14 a $2 payment was made. At that time the balance of past due payments was $22 a share.

Michigan Bakeries, Inc., voted a dividend of $1.75 on the $7 preferred stock, payable Feb. 1. Arrears after this payment will be $21 a share.

Silver Lower at London, Unchanged at New York

Bar silver was quoted a halfpenny lower in London yesterday at 19¾ pence a fine ounce, equivalent to 44.29 cents, but remained unchanged in New York at 44¾ cents an ounce. Futures on the Montreal exchange closed 35 to 50 points lower—100 points equivalent to 1 cent.

NEW FARM RELIEF POLICIES DEPRESS PRICES OF COTTON

Uncertainty about the status of proposed farm relief legislation at Washington started a selling movement in the Liverpool cotton market yesterday which resulted in a sharp decline in prices. American markets dropped as much as $1.40 per bale in sympathy with the foreign market and on commission house liquidation.

The close showed some recovery from the lowest figure, but Chicago prices were off 25 to 85 cents per bale and other markets 35 cents to $1.20 per bale.

Spot cotton closed 50 to 75 cents per bale lower with New Orleans at 11.75 cents, Houston and Galveston 11.55 cents, and New York 11.85 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound:

GRAINS STEADY; INFLATION TALK LOSES POTENCY

Price Changes Are Limited to Fractions.

Inflation talk fell flat as a grain market influence yesterday. Prices held within narrow limits, with little evidence of broadening in outside interest. Closing prices showed only fractional changes from the preceding day.

May wheat developed independent strength as compared with the new crop futures, the former closing at $1.01, or the same as on Thursday, while the distant deliveries sagged ¾ to ⅞ cent. The forecast of a cold wave in western Kansas, which has been enjoying mild weather during the present subzero temperatures over the more eastern sections of the belt, failed to attract attention, although the wheat crop there has little or no snow protection.

Mills Drop Tax Provision.

It is understood some mills have weakened in their resent stand of not selling flour unless the buyer assumed any tax, retroactive or otherwise, which might be imposed by congress as a substitute for the recently killed processing levy of 30 cents per bushel.

Sales of flour have been made lately, it was reported, by mills which offered to assume any retroactive tax on flour, but the practice is not yet general. In the main, flour buyers are said to be decidedly uncertain as to their status, due to the conflicting reports from Washington.

A sharp advance in sterling exchange, which increased the purchasing power of the pound sterling, was largely responsible for a recession equal to ¼ to 1⅛ cents per bushel in wheat futures in Liverpool. Winnipeg eased fractionally.

Canadian Crop Report Ignored.

The final estimate on the 1935 Canadian wheat crop failed to have any effect on the market, although it did not show as much grain as many expected.

Closing prices on the May delivery follow:

	Yesterday.	Thurs.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$1.01	$1.01	$1.00⅝
Corn	.60⅝	.60½	.60⅛
Oats	.28⅝	.28½	.28
Rye	.55⅜	.55½	.54¾

There was no material pressure on the corn market as the result of the change in the government regulations covering loans to farmers on cribbed grain. Futures held within a range of ⅞ cent, with trade largely in small lots. Farmers showed little disposition to part with holdings of cash corn.

GRAIN IN OTHER MARKETS

2 CONTINENTAL INSURANCE FIRMS GAIN IN ASSETS

Show Total of $46,942,- 360 at End of 1935.

Combined assets of the Continental Casualty company and the Continental Assurance company increased more than $5,200,000 during 1935 to a total of $46,942,360 as of Dec. 31, according to the annual report submitted to stockholders yesterday by President H. A. Behrens. The Continental group is one of the leading Illinois insurance enterprises.

Cash and government bonds increased more than $3,000,000 during the year, bringing these two items to more than $10,000,000 for the two companies.

Taking the activities of the two companies separately, the Continental Assurance company, which does a life business, made an all-time record with respect to assets, income and insurance in force. After dividends to stockholders it added $115,305 to surplus, which stood at $2,291,382 as of Dec. 31.

Paid Insurance Increases.

Paid insurance at the end of 1935 aggregated $193,955,746, an increase for the year of $18,272,749, or 10 per cent. Admitted assets totaled $22,180,971, an increase of $2,226,968, or 11 per cent. Included in assets are cash and government bonds of $3,900,000. Premium income increased $586,534, or 14 per cent, over 1934.

Behrens pointed out that this is the twenty-fourth successive year in which the company had increases in insurance in force, income and assets. The organization's twenty-fifth year will be completed during August.

In his report to the stockholders Behrens disclosed that the Casualty company had net operating profit of $542,510. A breakdown of the profit and loss statement disclosed insurance underwriting loss of $121,411 and investment earnings, less investment expenses, of $663,921, producing the above operating profit.

Details of Report Shown.

Net loss from sale of securities was $46,328 and increase in market value of all bonds not eligible for amortization and all stocks was $954,936, bringing a credit to surplus of $908,608. The increase in surplus before dividends was $1,451,118, against which was charged $210,000 dividends paid, $50,000 reserve for federal income tax and $750,000 added to reserve for future fluctuation of security values, bringing the net addition to surplus $441,118. As of Dec. 31, 1935, surplus stood at $3,166,392.

The company had net premium writings in 1935 of $16,019,000, only $700,000 below the peak year of 1929. Its portfolio includes cash and United States government obligations of more than $6,200,000 and other bonds and guaranteed and preferred stocks of more than $9,000,000.

Arnold B. Keller, treasurer of the International Harvester company, was elected to the board of directors of the Continental Assurance company.

BURNHAM'S
(for 65 years the world's largest beauty school)
Will Enable You to EARN MORE
The easy-to-learn Burnham System quickly enables you to become a skilled beauty operator. Plenty of living models. You learn by doing rather than by studying. Each teacher a specialist. Fewer pupils per teacher.

SEE FOR YOURSELF WHY MORE GIRLS ENROLL IN BURNHAM'S THAN IN ANY OTHER BEAUTY SCHOOL.

BURNHAM'S AWARDS TRIP TO PARIS to student, Dorothy Eastman, winner of semi-annual Burnham scholarship for efficiency while in training, sailed June 19 on S. S. Manhattan with all expenses paid. Burnham's offers opportunities not found elsewhere.

DAY OR EVENING CLASSES.
Pay for MOST of your tuition after graduation. It is to your advantage to register now, even if you cannot start until later. Open every day and on Monday, Wednesday, Friday evenings until 9 p. m.

BEAUTY SHOPS Want DeLEE GRADUATES
Beauty shop owners know that DeLEE students are trained in a school where the equipment is 100% new and up to date. They know that only at DeLEE do students receive personal individual instruction. Shop owners like to tell their patrons that their operators were trained under Madame Louise personally at DeLEE.

Enroll at DeLEE and insure yourself [1] perfect training; [2] pleasant surroundings; [3] a good paying position after graduate. At DeLEE you get "more for your money." Visit DeLEE FIRST.
